Montenegrin Army Leaves Incubator to Repulse Threatened Invasion by Austria to Oust Little Kingdom From Spoils Won.

How Nations Near Clash Compare

Montenegro is Europe's smallest fighting strength of 90,000 and Austria-Hungary has a population of 40,000,000 and a standing army of 1,000,000.

Secret Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. LONDON, April 28.—Austria received here today by way of Vienna state that Crown Prince Danilo and most of the Montenegrin troops in Scutari left that city today and are marching northward. The Montenegrins left only five battalions of guns in Scutari. It is reported. The dispatch indicated that the Montenegrin army is marching toward Antwerp, the port of Cetinje, where the Austrians threatened to land a force. Threatened with invasion by Austria, supported by the powers, Montenegro will refuse to yield. At Plovec, Montenegrin plenipotentiary to London, today handed in the reply of his country to representatives of the English and the Continental powers that Scutari be given up.

JOHN M. GANT ACCUSED OF THE CRIME; FORMER BOOKKEEPER TAKEN BY POLICE

J. M. GANT, arrested in Marietta for the murder of Mary Phagan, gave to a reporter for The Georgian his story of his actions that led to his arrest. He protested his innocence, and declared he was home in bed at the time the crime is supposed to have been committed.

In striking contradiction to this statement is the assertion of Mrs. F. C. Terrell, of 284 East Linden Street, where Gant said he slept Saturday night, that she had not seen Gant in three weeks.

"I watched the Memorial Day parade in Atlanta," said Gant, as he sat in the Marietta police station, "and after the parade was mostly over I went out to the ball game. After the game I remembered that I had left some old shoes at the pencil factory, and decided to go over and get them. I went over there at 6 o'clock and Superintendent Frank let me in.

"He told the negro watchman to help me find my shoes, and both of them saw me get them, and also saw me leave the building.

"Then I went back to town and met Arthur White, who is employed in the pencil factory, O. G. Bagley, an employee of the Atlanta Milling Company, and Bagley's brother. With them I played pool in the Globe pool parlor on Broad Street until 10:30 o'clock, and then I caught a car and went home.

"Yes, I know the girl. I knew Mary Phagan quite well, but I swear to you I had not seen her since I left the factory as an employee three weeks ago. I am innocent and developments will prove it."

Gant answers the description of the man Edgar L. Sentell says he saw with the Phagan girl shortly after midnight to a remarkable degree. He is about six feet tall, of slender build and dark complexion. His hair is dark and inclined to curl, and he wore a blue suit and a straw hat. He said that he is twenty-four years old and that his name was James, and not John, as Superintendent Frank had stated.

Gant was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hicks on the 1 o'clock car. He did not appear particularly nervous and was confident that he would be able to demonstrate his innocence, but the detectives with him were equally certain that the slayer had been captured.

- 1—Mary Phagan, 14 years old, was strangled to death in the National Penitentiary Co.'s factory, 37 South Forsyth Street.
- 2—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, found her body in the basement a little after 3 o'clock Sunday morning and notified the police. He was arrested.
- 3—Arthur Mullinax, identified by E. S. Sentell, 82 Davis Street, as the man who was with Mary Phagan at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning, was arrested Sunday afternoon and is held in solitary confinement at police headquarters.
- 4—Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Penitentiary Co.'s factory, was summoned to police headquarters this morning and detained there to tell what he knows of the girl and of her terrible fate.
- 5—Hair, tangled and matted, but identified positively as the dead girl's, was found clinging to a bath on the third floor of the factory, which leads the police to believe that someone who had access to the factory is responsible for the crime.
- 6—Geron Bailey, the negro elevator boy employed in the factory, was also arrested.
- 7—B. S. Skipper, 224 1/2 Peters Street, says he saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan being forced to accompany three freshly dressed youths, who took her to Whitehall, near Mitchell Street, at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. The girl was weeping and seemed weak and dazed.
- 8—When the girls employed at the National Penitentiary Co.'s factory assembled for work this morning they were so upset and excited from reading of the murder of Mary Phagan that the factory had to be closed.
- 9—J. M. Gant, former bookkeeper in the pencil factory, arrested in Marietta and accused of the murder.
- 10—Gant tells The Georgian he was home and in bed at 12:30 East Linden Avenue when the crime occurred. His landlady says he has not been there in three weeks.

Gant Was Infatuated With Girl; at Factory Saturday

Gant was arrested on a warrant issued by Judge Power's court Saturday, but for three weeks charging him with murder.

Gant was last seen before his arrest at 1:45 this morning by Herbert Hendrix, M. E. Frank, penitentiary, assistant superintendent of the factory. A few minutes later he was on a car bound for Marietta.

The officers in Marietta were notified by telephone and were on the watch for a man answering Gant's description.

The fact that he had been about the factory since Saturday was recalled by penitentiary officers. Herbert Hendrix, penitentiary, assistant superintendent of the factory, said he had seen Gant in the factory on Saturday.

The detectives began to spread their nets for Gant on Saturday morning coming from half a dozen different directions.

All were to the effect that Gant had talked on many occasions of his infatuation with the little girl, and that his infatuation for her was evident even in the factory.

Gant was employed as an assistant timekeeper at the National Penitentiary Co.'s factory for some time with the penitentiary, but for three weeks before Saturday, the latter time by the name was somewhat different. Hendrix, penitentiary, assistant superintendent of the factory, said he had seen Gant in the factory on Saturday.

and hurry down Forsyth again Alabama Street. He went in a blue suit and wore hat. He carried a package in arm.

Stearns was notified, but he had taken up the trail, if disappeared. Officers were sent to the railway station the Marietta Street cars to find if he had any thoughts of the girl.

Holloway, timekeeper at the said that he was aware of information for the girl, but knew that she accepted him as all.

He told him, he said, that he was greatly attracted by Mary and had walked home with her but with her on her other side.

Fluk, a girl who worked near Phagan in the pencil factory, says that she knew the murderer well and that she had heard complaints talking a number of times.

He heard, she said, that Gant had walked home with her and after that.

Detectives, after an all-conference with Leo Plunk of the factory superintendent, were to get an important note from Scott Lee, the negro technician, who is being held as a witness.

Admitted to Forsyth Saturday, Frank told the detectives that

3 YOUTHS SEEN LEADING ALONG A REELING GIRL

E. S. Skipper Tells Police He Saw Ladies Urging Her Down Street Night of Crime.

The story of three men leading a weeping, unwilling girl on Forsyth Street Saturday night is being furnished to the police to-day by Atlanta policemen in their efforts to unravel the mystery of Mary Phagan's death.

The story is told by E. S. Skipper, of 224 1-2 Peters Street. He declared that on Saturday night about 10 o'clock he saw a girl who appeared to fit the description of the girl.

Three men were with her, all of them young and thin dressed. The girl was reeling slightly, Skipper declared, as if rendered dizzy by drugs.

She was crying, and time and again barged behind her companions, as if she feared to go farther. Each time they insisted and she seemed powerless to resist them.

Skipper declared that he can identify the three men. He followed in their wake when they left the party on Pryor Street, near Trinity Avenue.

At Trinity they turned toward Whitehall, he said, the men urging the girl to accompany them. Down Whitehall to Forsyth he accompanied them, and saw them turn north toward Mitchell Street.

There he left them, going toward the Terminal Station, his original destination. Skipper says that the girl did not appear intoxicated, but merely sick and pitifully weak.

Following closely on the heels of his story came to the police to-day the statement of Adam Woodward, night watchman in the Williams Livery Stable, 28 Forsyth Street, last doors from the factory building. He told the detectives that about 11 o'clock he heard a woman scream several times, but considering it the cry of a merry-maker, paid no attention to it.

The time specified in the statement of the night watchman links closely with that of the occurrence in Skipper's story and, according to policemen, adds color to the story. They say the three men he saw were the men who lured little Mary Phagan to her death.

Richard L. Sentell, lifelong friend of Mary Phagan, says he saw a man answering this description, walking with the girl after midnight Sunday, a few hours before the body was found.

He has identified the man as Arthur Mullins, who, however, was today apparently cleared by an alibi established by his sweetheart.

Body Dragged by Deadly Cord After Terrific Fight

Stretched full length face downward, a plain, black straw hat, the body was found near the "horror shaft."

Two turban-like alien (Hindu) hoods were fastened on each side of the body by their strange arrangement.

The cord was dragged from the floor to the top of the shaft, and was fastened to the top of the shaft.

What had been a soft white object, which "had been under which the body was dragged, was a mass of mud and dirt.

The force of the blow on the head had broken the skull, and the body was dragged from the floor to the top of the shaft.

The neck was cut and blooded horribly by the contraction of the body at the point of the cord.

The body was found in a shallow hole, and the cord was found to be made of a material which was not known to the police.

10,000 THROUG MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Lying on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white throat around the neck of the robe that strangled her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

No such gathering of the morbidly curious has ever before been seen in Atlanta. More people were attracted than by any crime in the history of the city. The crowds came in waves, and a steady procession passed before the slab on which lay the little body. Old men and young men, women with babies in their arms and women who tottered with age, little children of the dead child and little children who had to be restrained in arms of their mothers before they could see the white face of their dead playmate—crowded into the little dead playmate—

Crowd Before Daybreak

Long before daylight the crowd began to form in front of the undertaking establishment. By 8 o'clock several hundred had come, and were waiting with tense eagerness for the opening of the doors. Factory girls and laboring men, passing on their way to work, were attracted to the scene of the tragedy and crowded into the line. A number of fashionably dressed women alighted from their automobiles, and with veils drawn over their faces passed against the plate glass windows of the chapel.

By 8 o'clock there were more than 1,000 persons gathered around the mortuary. The jan at the door was so great that extra policemen were called. When the doors were opened the crowd was permitted to pass in one by one and view the form.

An old man, who had known the Phagan family for years and had rocked the dead child on his knees, was the first to view the remains. For more than three minutes he stood with head bowed beside the body. It is estimated that 10,000 people have viewed the body of the child since it was found in the basement of the building on Forsyth street. All the thousands of people who crowded into the little chapel, and P. J. Bloomfield declared that no less than 1,000 persons equaled the place since the day.

This morning the crowd was even greater, and since 8 o'clock it is estimated that between 8,000 and 7,000 have passed in silent reverie before the dead child.

Inquest Is Begun

At 10 o'clock, when Coroner Donohoe began the inquest, the chapel was cleared of the spectators, and the body of the child removed to a private room. The men impounded to inquire into the death of the child were:

Homer C. Ashford, foreman; John Miller, J. C. Hood, C. V. Bissett, Glenn Dewberry and Clarence Langford.

No witnesses were examined this morning by the coroner's jury. The six men viewed the remains and were sworn by physicians the manner in which the child met her death, after which they visited the plant of the National Pencil Company, where the murder occurred. Then they made a thorough examination of the basement where the child's body was found, inspected the tip plant on second floor, where the bloody strands of hair were found, and followed the trail of blood through the building to the scene of the crime.

At noon Coroner Donohoe dismissed the jury until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when the examination of witnesses will begin. The coroner refused to give out a list of the jury he had summoned before the new

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room, where Mary Phagan was attacked and slain, the young life to the brutality of her assailant, across the floor where her limp form was dragged down the stairs and down through the square trap-door into the dirty basement where her body was found. Chief of Police Bevelers and two detectives trailed step by step, every move of the girl's murderer, to-day.

Determined that not a clew should be overlooked in the efforts to get guilt upon the man or men that took the young girl's life, the chief and his aides began at the very spot in the tip plant in the rear of the second floor where the bloodstains and the strands of matted hair indicated that the girl had put up such a desperate fight for her life and honor.

Curious Crowd Out of Factory

Meanwhile the sarging crowd of curiosity seekers on the outside of the building would not be restrained, and that with the excitement of the employer made it necessary to close down the factory for the day.

Escorted men in the throng, morbidly curious or filled with wrath at the inhuman deed, forced their way into the building and refused to turn back. A detective who followed them, one by one, insisted that they should leave the building.

In the meantime the nervous tension of the employees was apparent in every department. With the ghost of inefficiency now, the foremen saw that the girls and other employees were so wrought up over the tragedy that it was useless to keep them in the building longer. They were told to go. Chief Bevelers and the detectives, confident that they had established beyond doubt that the crime was committed inside the tip plant, was applied the tentative appliances only grow the brighter.

Detectives on Floor

They demonstrated that the stains on the floor were not of red paint, but were of blood. That the stains, however, they would have been soluble in alcohol. But when the alcohol was applied the tentative appliances only grow the brighter.

Added to this convincing evidence, the chief had the testimony of employees in the building that, these stains were not there Saturday when the building was cleaned up for the week. They must have come some time between Saturday and the time that they were discovered this morning. For the purpose of conclusive analysis, the chief had pieces of the floor chipped up and taken to close quarters.

The detective believes they have solved the manner in which the assailant made his escape from the building. A staple in the rear floor of the basement was found drawn tightly from the wood. The door is a sliding affair and the way, in which the staple was pulled out leads to the belief that it was accomplished from the inside.

The theory is still held that the murderer gained entrance through a rear door, and that the night watchman, Harry Lee, could tell something of the circumstances if he wished.

Story of the Killing as Meager Facts Reveal It

A new turn was given the mystery today when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a latrine machine on the second floor of the factory.

The discovery made it certain that the crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously. Blood stains leading from the latrine to the door showed the manner in which the victim had dragged the body of his friend and had taken her to the basement.

Appearances indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the wall of the crime by endeavoring to erase the bloody stains.

Another name was brought into the case today by the testimony of pencil company employees. Detectives were hurried to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily. The new suspect is said to be a former employee who was seen about the building Friday and Saturday.

dark-brown hair were discovered this forenoon when A. Quinn, foreman in the tip plant on the second floor, sent R. P. Barrett, a workman, over to the latrine.

Barrett gave a cry of alarm when he saw the evidence of the shocking crime and of the struggle the little girl apparently had made against the superior strength of her assailant.

The hair was twisted about the turn-up screw on the latrine, a crank-like device which is used to move the penicils forward and backward on the machine.

Evidence of Terrible Struggle

Blood was on the sharp end of the crank, leading to the belief that it had been used as a weapon and was responsible for the gash in the back of the Phagan girl's head. The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggle.

The matted body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark, dismal corner of the pencil factory basement, shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning to street men, the negro-steps watchman. The negro male, by himself, stumbled against the body before he saw it. In the dim, flicking light of the watchman's lantern the tragedy was revealed in all its ghastliness.

The girl certainly could not resist and, according to the testimony of Barrett, a bloodstain on the floor of the tip plant, was found to be of a nature that would have lasted for not a few hours before dried crimson.

All about was the evidence of a terrific struggle. The dilapidated condition of the dead girl's clothing and the signs of confusion on the dirty basement floor told the tragic story of the girl's battle for life.

Faught till she swooned.

She had fought her brutal murderer until the last—until her strength had given out and she had swooned into death.

The body lay at a point about 70 feet from an elevator shaft. Midway between the body and the shaft, on a pile of trash, was found one of the staple in the door from her latrine and her hat. The slayer had left the shoe and hat from the little form he had strangled vainly to save himself from his blows.

About the girl's neck was tightly drawn a strong piece of twine. A strip of cloth, torn from her underclothing, was also fastened about her neck. Not matted with the blood had been dealt on the head—one blow on the back of the head being so terrific as to dislocate one of the girl's eyes—the slayer had resorted to strangulation to be sure that the last spark of life had been extinguished. A big knife had been drawn so tightly that it was imbedded in the tender flesh, leaving the throat and neck dislocated and lacerated.

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS

AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 3 O'CLOCK P. M.

Let's get down to bedrock from the start: When you buy a piece of residence property, you always look for something somebody else wants or is going to want.

The more others want it, the more it is going to enhance in value; and speed of enhancement is proportionate to the eagerness of their desire for it.

Simple reasoning? Yes, just the same old story of supply and demand.

The SUPPLY of PEACHTREE property is limited; there is just so much of it; there can never be any more.

The DEMAND for PEACHTREE has no limit but Atlanta's growth.

In ten more years Atlanta's population increased 75 per cent.

In the same ten years Atlanta home-seekers bought and built on nearly three more miles of PEACHTREE.

Some twenty of these the last two years, built their homes in PEACHTREE HEIGHTS.

At the same rate of growth in population and demand for PEACHTREE homes, do you realize where the next ten years will take them?

It will find Atlanta built up in homes more than two miles beyond Buckhead, with Buckhead taken into the city limits.

You can buy PEACHTREE HEIGHTS lots Wednesday at AUCTION PRICES.

Look a little into the future and figure, also, what this means.

You can never again buy them at these prices. They will not again be offered at Auction.

ARRAIGNS SIX FOR SLAVERY OF MILL CHILDREN

Dr. A. J. McKelvey Takes the South to Task for Conditions. Great Congress Meetings.

A scathing arraignment of the Southern States for permitting what he terms the slavery of children in the mills and factories by Dr. A. J. McKelvey, of Washington, Southern secretary of the National Child Labor Congress, formed the big feature of the departmental conference of the Southern Sociological Congress this morning.

Dr. McKelvey spoke on "The Slavery of Child Labor in the South" at the conference on child welfare at the First Methodist Church... The most important meeting of the day. In addition to Dr. McKelvey's forceful address, other addresses on the subject were given.

Great Sessions Held. Although the principal speakers failed to arrive, the two sessions held yesterday afternoon... The speaker who failed to arrive was Dr. J. A. Hanson, president of the National Child Labor Congress.

Bryan's Narrow "Little Navy" Policy the Cause of His Visit to California.

The selection of Mr. Bryan to visit California and persuade the citizens there to abandon the exercise of their sovereign rights...

The reason that Californians are asked to give up their rights in order to pacify Japan, and to sacrifice their interests and the interests of the country at large in order to please the Japanese...

This visit to California, therefore, will give Mr. Bryan an opportunity to demonstrate to the country the advantages of his peace-at-any-price policy.

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual methods of preserving peace." Mr. Bryan is noted for his eloquence, if for nothing else...

It will take quite a flow of oratory to convince the citizens of the country generally that the proper American policy is to have a few soldiers in the building of ships and sacrifice our independence...

It is fortunate that Charles Catesworth Pinckney, statesman and patriot, is no longer alive to learn from the Democrats of today how poorly he represented the American spirit when he replied to the demands of Napoleon's Minister that the motto of America was "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

Today, at least among the Democrats of America, there are no millions for defense, but there is a pitiful disposition to pay tribute in consideration and concession to any demands that an insolent foreign nation may urge.

In Ambassador Pinckney's time the United States had about one-third the territory that it now possesses and about one-twentieth the population.

It was smaller in men, but larger in manhood. It was smaller in size, but larger in independence and honor. It was lesser in wealth, but greater in courage.

For Ambassador Pinckney was not speaking for a nation of a hundred millions to a nation of less than half that number. He was speaking for about five million of plain American citizens...

But courage and determination more than made up for lack of numbers and lack of wealth, and Talleyrand accepted Pinckney's defiance and abandoned France's insulting demands.

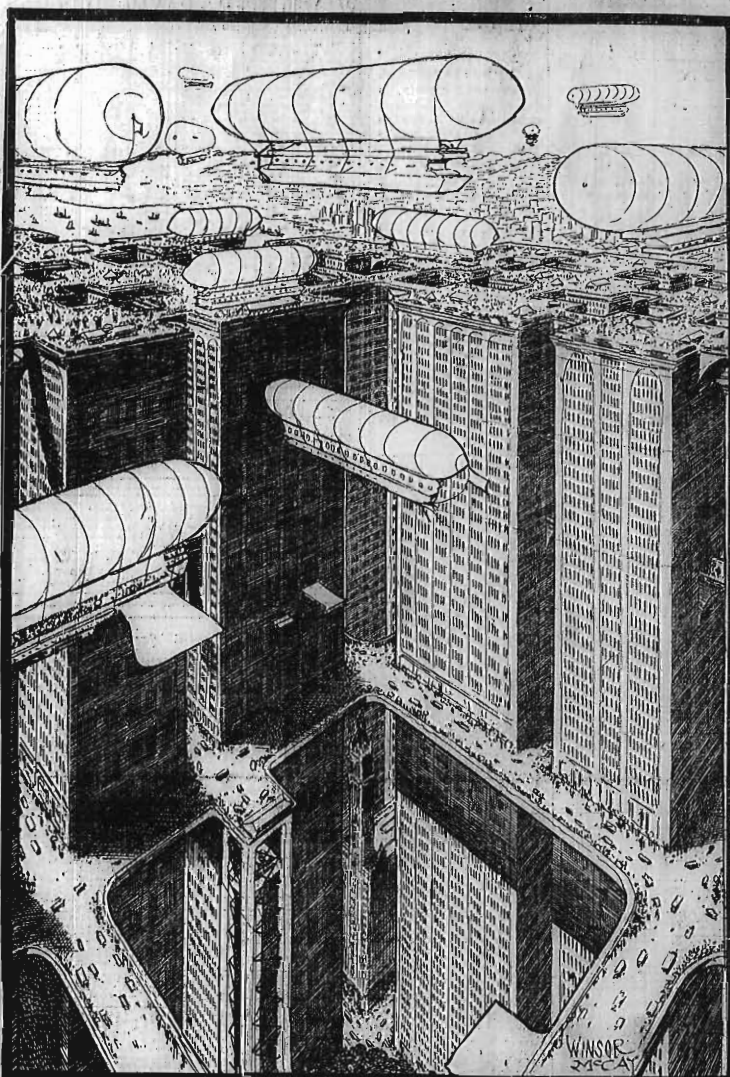

Even in our day courage and conscience count for more than size. Little Montenegro is one of the smallest nations in the world. Yet all the powers of Europe, with their fleets concentrated at its shore, could not make it abandon what it believed to be right.

And with little Montenegro is so small upon the map and the rest of Europe is so large. In view, then, of our own American experience and from our observation of the achievements of other nations reliant upon right, it would seem that the size of a country is not so important as the size of the men it has at its head.

LOOK FOR NEGRO TO BREAK DOWN

Negro Lee, the negro night watchman arrested in connection with the Phagan murder, practically admitted to Detective John Blinn this afternoon, that he had some knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the death of the little girl. The police are confident that Lee will tell all he knows before a week.

Lee's admission came after he had been "worked" for two hours by a corps of officers under the direction of Detective John Blinn, and was wearing from him by a tray of black set and into which the negro walked. Black said:

"Now, Lee, I know that you are in touch and didn't murder the girl. But you know all about it and you know who committed the crime."

Maintained He Told Truth

Blinn's statement was in the form of a question and was worded as the negro after he had not spoken under the penalty of a dozen years of exile. He looked forward with some nervousness to the answer.

"Yes, that's the truth, boss," said Lee. "The negro apparently realized that he had spoken too quickly and tried to cut himself. He stammered and hesitated, finally declaring that he had spoken truthfully."

Blinn told Lee with questions for two hours. The negro was not given a chance to compose himself before a new volley was fired at him.

"Now, I know you know who committed that crime. You are just afraid to protect someone that has befriended you in the past," said Blinn to the negro.

Lee did not reply. He bent his head while his body was shaken with sobs.

"Which better tell me now?" persisted Blinn.

"I'll say now, boss. Further on, I don't get any more to say before the sign is over."

Blinn took the great sheet from Lee's head and he looked at the man's face and saw that he was weeping. Blinn took the sheet from Lee's head and he looked at the man's face and saw that he was weeping.

Denies Guilt But Is Identified As Man Seen Leading Girl

The Georgian will pay $500 reward for EXCLUSIVE information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mary Phagan.

J. M. Gaunt, accused of the strangling of Mary Phagan, was brought to Atlanta this afternoon at 4 o'clock from where he had been under arrest in the Sheriff's office since forenoon.

Fearing a demonstration from the crowd that had been waiting at the Walton Street station for several hours, Detective Hazlett transferred his prisoner from a Marietta car to a Detator car and had him locked up in the police station before many were aware that he was in town.

Gaunt, trembling and nervous, refused to talk at first. "I have nothing to say, nothing to say," he repeated to the interrogations of the reporters.

As Hazlett led him to the police station, Gaunt glanced apprehensively around as though he were in fear of being taken away from the officer.

When no demonstration occurred, Gaunt, recovering his poise in a measure, turned to the reporters and declared his absolute innocence of any connection with the gruesome affair.

Makes Complete Denial

"I know nothing about it," he declared.

"Before God, I am innocent of the whole affair. I have not seen Mary Phagan for three weeks. I haven't seen her since I left the factory three weeks ago. I had known her about ten months."

"I was at the factory for about ten minutes Saturday afternoon, but that was all. I got a pair of shoes there that belonged to me and left them in the near-bar saloon across the street. Then I knooked about town during the evening and went to my home at 284 East Linden Street, about midnight."

"I was at home again Sunday night and did not leave Atlanta until this morning."

Gaunt accounted for it very readily by saying that it was due to a pre-arrangement with his mother, Mrs. Mary Louise Gaunt, to visit her to-day at his home near Marietta.

He went there frequently, he said, and his visit there this time was to see her in regard to making his home there permanent.

Identified by Police Informer

Threats of habeas corpus proceedings to obtain the freedom of Gaunt were made to-night by Judge George F. Goler, who is representing the accused man, and who also is a jurist.

The threats were made on the refusal of Chief of Detectives Lanford to give Gaunt an immediate preliminary hearing on the demand of Goler.

Fobs to Trolley Men Urge Safety First

The city fathers will also give their support to the effort to make the trip in safety. She has been protected since her daughter's terrible death, and it is hardly probable that physicians will allow her to attend the funeral.

Dr. J. W. Hurt performed an autopsy on the body late this afternoon, but refused to make public the result of the examination with the exception of the jury man Wednesday morning.

Where and With Whom Was Mary Phagan Before End?

Detectives to-day are using all their resources to learn where Mary Phagan was every minute of Saturday and Saturday night, whom she saw, with whom she talked, and what she said.

There are wide blanks in the story of her movements. These must be filled. 12:10 p. m.—Mary Phagan appeared at the National Pencil Factory at ten or fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, and drew the pay due her, $1.60.

She told her mother she was going to see the Memorial Day parade. Did she go straight from the factory to see the procession? Who joined her? Where did she stand? When the procession had passed, where did she go? Did someone, that early in the day, start weaving around her the net which later caused her death?

10 p. m.—E. S. Skipper, 224 1/2 Peters Street, saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. She was walking up Pryor Street near Trinity with three youths. She was crying, and seemed to be trying to get away from her companions. She seemed to be under the influence of an opiate, not of drink.

Was this, in truth, Mary Phagan? If so, who were the youths? Where had they been, and where did they go?

12:30 a. m.—E. L. Sentell, who had known Mary Phagan nearly all her life, saw her with a man he identifies as Arthur Mullinax, walking north on Forsyth Street near Hunter at about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The girl was tired and angry. She spoke to him.

Did she and her companion go at once to the pencil factory? If not, where did they go?

3 a. m.—The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark corner of the National Pencil Factory basement, 37-39 South Forsyth Street, by the night watchman.

Here are the gaps—from 12:15 Saturday afternoon to 10 o'clock Saturday night. From 10 o'clock Saturday night to 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. From 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning until 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the police and detectives have filled in those blanks, the murderer of Mary Phagan will be known.

Lifelong Friend Saw Girl and Man After Midnight

Roger L. Rentell, twenty-one years old, a clerk employed by J. Kamper's store, and whose home is at 212 Davis Street, was one of the first to give the detectives a helpful clue to the solution of the hideous mystery.

Rentell, a well-known young man, had known Mary Phagan almost all her life. When she was just beginning to think of marriage...

On the curb side of the pavement several with her, keeping her with her, but exchanging no words, walked a man...

MAISON, GA., April 25.—The flood of campaign-favored tariff oratory in the House began to abate to-day and by to-night the set speeches will have been exhausted.

The headline to-day on the Republican side was Representative Payne, of New York, author of the present law which the Democrats plan to do away with.

Representative Talmay, of Illinois, Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee, has defended the present law and made an attack upon "the tariff."

10,000 THROUGH MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Lying on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white cloth bearing the red marks of the row that attended her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

No such gathering of the morbidly curious has ever before been seen in Atlanta. More people were attracted than by any crime in the history of the city. The crowds came in droves, and a steady procession passed before the slab on which lay the little body.

Old men and young men, women with babies in their arms and women who rested with age, little friends of the dead child and little children who had to be raised in the arms of their mothers before they could see the white face of their dead playmate—crowded into the little chapel.

Crowd Before Breakfast. Long before daylight the crowd began to form in front of the undertaking establishment. By a clock several hundred had come, and were awaiting with tense eagerness for the opening of the doors.

Men and women, passing on their way to work, were caught by the lure of the tragedy and crowded into the line. A number of fashionably dressed women alighted from their automobiles, and with slow strides over their faces pressed against the plate glass windows of the chapel.

At 9 o'clock they were more than 1,000 persons gathered around the morgue. The jam at the door was so great that extra policemen were called. When the doors were opened the crowd was permitted to pass in one by one and view the form.

An old man, who had known the Phagan family for years and had reached the dead child on his knees, was the first to view the remains. For more than three minutes he stood with bowed head beside the body.

It is estimated that 10,000 people have viewed the body of the child since it was found in the basement of the building on Forsyth Street. At yesterday thousands of people crowded into the little chapel.

At 10 o'clock when Coroner Dunahoo began the inquest, the chapel was cleared of the spectators, and the body of the child removed to a private room. The men impounded to inquire into the death of the child were:

Home C. Ashford, Foreman; John Miller, J. C. Hood, C. Y. Sheets, Glenn Deary and Clarence Landford.

No witnesses were examined this morning by the coroner's jury. The six men viewed the remains and were shown by physicians the manner in which the child met her death, after which they visited the scene of the National Power Company, where the murder occurred. There they made a thorough examination of the basement where the child's body was found.

The inquest will take place this morning at 10 o'clock in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment. The coroner's jury will sit at 11 o'clock.

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room where Mary Phagan was attacked and paid out her young life to the brutality of her assailant, across the floor where her limp form was dragged, down the stairs and down through the secure trap-door into the third basement where her body was found, Chief of Police Beavers and two detectives trailed, step by step, every move of the girl's murderer or today.

Deemed that not a step should be overlooked in the efforts to track the young man or men that took flight for her life and honor. Deemed that the girl had not been overlooked in the efforts to track the young man or men that took flight for her life and honor.

Curious Crowd About Factory. Meanwhile the surging crowd of curiosity seekers on this outside of the building would not be restrained, and that with the excitement of the employees made it necessary to close down the factory for the day.

Estimated men in the throng, morbidly curious or filled with wrath at the human deed, forced their way into the building and refused to turn back. The incident made it necessary to close down the factory for the day.

The detectives believe they have solved the manner in which the assailant made his escape from the building. A staple in the rear-door of the building was discovered this morning. The door is a sliding door and the way in which the assailant entered through a regular doorway and that the night-watcherman, Nevel Lee, could tell something of the circumstances if he wished.

Stains on Floor. They demonstrated that the stains on the floor were not of red paint, but were of blood. Had the stains been paint, they would have been soluble in alcohol. But when the alcohol was applied the tell-tale spots only grew the brighter.

Added to this convincing evidence, the Chief had the testimony of employees in the building that these stains were not there Saturday when the building was cleaned up for the week. They must have come some time between Saturday and the time that they were discovered this morning.

For the purpose of conclusive analysis, the Chief had pieces of the floor chipped up and taken to headquarters. The detective believe they have solved the manner in which the assailant made his escape from the building.

The theory is still held that the murderer gained entrance through a regular doorway and that the night-watcherman, Nevel Lee, could tell something of the circumstances if he wished.

City Chemist Tests Stains For Blood

Pieces of wood, the splinters which are believed to be those of the blood of murdered Mary Phagan, are undergoing a chemical examination this afternoon by the city chemist.

The discovery of white powder on the factory floor strengthened the belief that a frantic effort had been made to erase the evidences of the crime. The powder resembled very much cleaning preparations that are used.

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS

AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 3 O'CLOCK P. M.

Let's get down to bedrock from the start: When you buy a piece of residence property, you always look for something somebody else wants or is going to want. The more others want it, the more it is going to enhance in value; and speed of enhancement is proportionate to the eagerness of their desire for it.

Simple reasoning? Yes, just the same old story of supply and demand. The SUPPLY of PEACHTREE property is limited; there is just so much of it; there can never be any more. The DEMAND for PEACHTREE has no limit but Atlanta's growth. In ten more years Atlanta's population increased 75 per cent.

In the same ten years Atlanta home-seekers bought and built on nearly three more miles of PEACHTREE.

Some twenty of these the last two years, built their homes in PEACHTREE HEIGHTS.

At the same rate of growth in population and demand for PEACHTREE homes, do you realize where the next ten years will take them?

It will find Atlanta built up in homes more than two miles beyond Buckhead, with Buckhead taken into its city limits.

You can buy PEACHTREE HEIGHTS lots Wednesday at AUCTION PRICES.

Look a little into the future and figure, also, what this means. You can never again buy them at these prices. They will not again be offered at Auction. If you see an opportunity chase, get on the job. Call for plats at the office of

ARRESTED AS SLAYER, RECENT EMPLOYE AND SUICIDE ENIGMA GUILT

The Georgian will pay $500 reward for EXCLUSIVE information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mary Phagan.

J. M. Gant, accused of the strangling of Mary Phagan, was brought to Atlanta this afternoon at 4 o'clock from Marietta, where he had been under arrest in the police station since last night.

When no demonstration occurred, Gant, recovering his police in a measure, turned to the reporters and declared his absolute innocence of any connection with the Phagan affair.

Makes Complete Denial

"I know nothing about it," he declared. "Before 6:45, I was in front of the whole affair. I have not seen Mary Phagan for three weeks. I haven't seen her since I left the factory three weeks ago. I had known her about ten months."

"I was at the factory for about ten minutes Saturday afternoon, but that was all. I got a pair of aloes there that belonged to me and left them in the rear-hoop saloon across the street. Then I knocked about town during the evening and went to my home at 284 East Linden Street, about midnight."

Contradicted by Landlady

In striking contradiction to his statement is the assertion of Mrs. F. C. Terrell, of 284 East Linden Street, where Gant was arrested Saturday night, that she had not seen Gant in three weeks.

"I watched the Memorial Day parade in Atlanta," said Gant, as he sat in the Marietta police station, "and after the parade was mostly over I went out to the ball game. After the game I remembered that I had left some aloes at the pencil factory, and decided to go over and get them. I went over there at 6 o'clock and Superintendent Hank let me in."

Admits Knowing Girl Well

"I know the girl. I know Mary Phagan quite well, but I swear to you I had not seen her since I left the plant as an employee three weeks ago. I am innocent and developments will prove it."

"I COULD TRUST ANYWHERE," HER WEeping MOTHER SAYS

ARTHUR MULLINAX

This youth, formerly a street car conductor, is held in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Pencil Factory in South Forsyth Street. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime, and declares his arrest is a "horrible mistake." He has accounted for himself, and likely will be released.

HORRIBLE MISTAKE, PLEADS MULLINAX, DENYING CRIME

Arthur Mullinax, identified as the man who was with Mary Phagan at midnight Saturday, a few short hours before her dead body was found, and now a prisoner in solitary confinement at police headquarters, declared to a Georgian reporter that his arrest was a terrible mistake.

He declared that he had never seen the girl except as "the sleeping beauty" in a church entertainment in which both took part last Christmas. Here is his complete story.

"I had absolutely no connection with this affair and have been wrongfully accused. I should be horribly mistaken when he says he saw me in company with Mary Phagan shortly after midnight Sunday morning in Forsyth Street. I did not even know the girl—that is, never had been introduced to her—and had never seen anything with her in my life.

"Sleeping Beauty?"

"I had seen her one time. That was last Christmas at an entertainment given in the Western Heights Baptist Church. We both took part in that entertainment. She played the part of the sleeping beauty, and I did a black face act and sang in a quartet.

"But I was not even introduced to the girl. During the entertainment the girl remarked to me that I was a good black face artist, but that was all that passed between us. I have never seen with her at any time since then, much less at midnight.

"As to my movements Saturday night, I can easily explain them. After supper, I called on a girl friend, Miss Pearl Robinson, who lives in Bellwood Avenue and saw some dancing at the Elks club on that night. I

GIRLS GRANDFATHER VOWS VENGEANCE

Standing with head bent in the doorway of his grandfather's home, with tears falling unheeded down his furrowed cheeks, W. J. Phagan cried to heaven for vengeance for the murder of his granddaughter, fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, and vowed that he would not rest until the murderer had been brought to justice.

In a speech delivered here by the sound of his own sobs and the noise of the gently falling rain, the old man pressed his quivering lips to a cushion on the floor of the building and wailed for the life of the wretch who had torn the little girl into the bottom of a deserted building and scattered her to death.

"I will not let the thief of my girl rest until I have seen the murderer punished," he said, "and I will not let my grandchild rest until she has been buried in the ground."

MRS. COLEMAN PROSTRATED BY CHILD'S DEATH

"No Working Girl is Safe," She Sobs, Overcome by Her Sudden Sorrow.

Lying on the bed in her little home on Lindsay Street, prostrated with sorrow over the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan, Mrs. W. J. Coleman sobbed out the pitiful story of how awestruck and fresh her child had left home Saturday, and issued a warning to all Atlanta mothers to guard the welfare of their own daughters forced to work for a living.

"There are so many unscrupulous men in the world," she cried, "it's no danger for young girls working out. Their every step should be watched. Mothers should question them and ask them about their work and associates and surroundings. They should continually tell them what they ought to do, and how they ought to act under certain circumstances."

Girl Liked Work.

She declared that she never would have permitted Mary to go out to work at the age she did, and that if it had not been that there were five children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support. That was before she married her present husband, Mr. Coleman.

"That was a year ago," said Mrs. Coleman, "and then it wouldn't have been necessary for Mary to work. But she had got into the habit of it and liked it, and I thought she could take care of herself as she always had."

"Oh, the poor baby," she sobbed. "I did talk to her. I did tell her what to do. I was always telling her. And she took my advice. I know, because she was always so sensible about everything. Besides, she never was a child to flirt or act silly. That's why I know that when she went away with this man who killed her she was either overpowered or he threatened her."

Mrs. Coleman said that girls ought to look out for themselves, too, and never permit any familiarity from men.

"When a girl is pretty," she declared, "naturally she is attractive to men. Mary was pretty, too; and besides that she was always happy and in a good humor. She had never stayed out any night before in the two years she had been at work. I could trust her wherever I know because she was always so straightforward and what I thought when she didn't come home was that she had met up with her aunt from Marietta, who was in town, and had gone home with her and had no way to let me know."

Too Young to Know.

She covered her face with her hands.

"And to think that at the time I was thinking that she was in the hands of a mercenary brute! Oh, if only Mr. Coleman had happened along the street and found her! They tell me she was crying on a corner at 12 o'clock and the man who was with her was cursing her when a policeman came up and asked her who she was the matter. She just told him she had got lost in her way. I guess the reason she didn't say anything was because she was afraid the man would kill her and, in fact, just didn't know what to do. She was too young."

But with everything Mrs. Coleman said, it wasn't possible for a mother to be so sure of her child, and times or to stave off all harm that could come to her with advice.

But with everything Mrs. Coleman said, it wasn't possible for a mother to be so sure of her child, and times or to stave off all harm that could come to her with advice.

GIRL SLAIN IN STRANGLING MYSTERY

Mary Phagan, 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. J. W. Coleman, 146 Lindsay Street, whose slain body was found in the basement of the National Pencil Factory, 347-39 South Forsyth Street. The girl left her home Saturday morning to go to the factory, where she had been employed, to draw wages due her. She was seen on the streets at midnight Saturday with a strange man. She was not seen alive thereafter.

GIRL AND HIS LANDLADY DEFEND MULLINAX

Defying the belief in the absence of evidence of her arrest, Arthur Mullinax, in the murder of Mary Phagan, was defended by his landlady, Mrs. Phagan, who said that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night.

Mrs. Phagan said that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night, and that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night, and that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night.

"I was so confused that I didn't know what I was saying about the girl," Mrs. Phagan said. "I had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night, and that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night, and that she had seen Mullinax with the girl on Saturday night."

Another important discovery was made by the police in the basement of the National Pencil Factory on Forsyth Street. The police found a small room, which had been used as a bedroom, and in which they found a bed, a table, and a chair. The police also found a small room, which had been used as a bedroom, and in which they found a bed, a table, and a chair.

NEIGHBORS OF SCREAM GIRL CRY FOR VENGEANCE

Slaying of Mary Phagan Arouses Friends of Family to Threats of Violence.

"I wouldn't have liked to be held responsible for the fate of the martyr of this Mary Phagan if the men in the neighborhood had not let it be his last night," was the statement today of George W. Kopp, 218 Dix Street, whose house adjoins that of Mrs. Coleman, mother of the slain girl.

The first wave of indignation that raged for the blood of the criminal had had time to subside, but the feeling still ran high in the neighborhood of the Coleman home.

The murder was the sole topic of conversation in the neighborhood. Family and others who had seen Mary go to her work in the morning continued to excited groups on the street corners.

Sympathy for Stricken Mother. In the homes of the affected community the women talked in husband and of the tragic end of Mary Phagan.

Some of them were with their husbands in the first cry for vengeance. When the news of the crime was brought to the neighborhood, they saw the imminent danger hovering over the childhood of the city.

"If they are so careful of their own little ones," they said, "the young working girls of the city are entitled to the rights they are denied in men's clothes that go about the streets."

"Tragedy Came Home to Them," said Mr. Kopp, who was standing in a group of men in the street, "but the boys and girls do not know how to help in the support of the family."

The tragedy comes home to all of us, for we are all in a life community here. It is a little village in itself. We know every corner and every street, and it is a hard blow to us when we learn the terrible end of Mary Phagan's death.

The men here were often with indignation that night. It would have been more to the members of the "Ladies' Aid" if they could have got the "blows on him."

MACON, Ga., April 25.—Six chorus girls of a national musical company were in the hospital here today, having been taken ill from poisonous poisoning. Arriving in the city last night, the troupe went to a cafe for supper.

Where and With Whom Was Mary Phagan Before End?

Detectives to-day are using all their resources to learn where Mary Phagan was every minute of Saturday and Saturday night, whom she saw, with whom she talked, and what she said.

There are wide blanks in the story of her movements. These must be filled. 12:10 p. m.—Mary Phagan appeared at the National Pencil Factory at ten or fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, and drew the pay due her, $1.60.

10 p. m.—E. S. Skipper, 224 1/2 Peters Street, saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. She was walking up Pryor Street near Trinity with three youths.

12:30 a. m.—L. Sentell, who had known Mary Phagan nearly all her life, saw her with a man he identifies as Arthur Mullinax, walking north on Forsyth Street near Hunter at about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

3 f. m.—The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark corner of the National Pencil Factory basement, 37-39 South Forsyth Street, by the night watchman.

Here are the gaps—From 12:15 Saturday afternoon to 10 o'clock Saturday night. From 10 o'clock Saturday night to 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. From 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning until 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the police and detectives have filled in these blanks, the murderer of Mary Phagan will be known.

Lifelong Friend Saw Girl and Man After Midnight

Edgar L. Sentell, twenty-nine years old, a clerk employed in C. J. Kamper's store, and whose home is at 82 Davis Street, was one of the first to give the detectives a helpful clue as to the solution of the hideous mystery.

Sentell, a well-known young man, had known Mary Phagan almost all her life. When she was just beginning to think of dolls with jewelry on Saturday night and the next morning he had her in his arms.

Outside of the straggle about the cheap hotel that district, there were few on the streets at that hour. The intermittent lights of gas street lamps and water waste, the flickering flames of a whirling street lamp, and the noisy motor cars, all seemed to make pedestrians easily distinguishable.

Sentell looked at him more or less casually, but always with the same quick glance to the detective.

What was all that Sentell bent on his way? The couple was not yet well-swaggered up in the bloom of their youth.

HEARST'S SUNDAY AMERICAN AND THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN

10,000 THROUGH MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Lying on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white throat bearing the red marks of the rope that strangled her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

So such gathering of the morbidly curious behavior had been seen in Atlanta. More people were attracted than by any crime in the history of the city. The crowds came in droves, and a steady procession passed before the slab on which lay the little body. Old men and young men, women who dab in their arms and women who tottered with age, little friends of the dead child and little children who were to be raised in the arms of their mothers before they could see the white face of their dead playmate—crowded into the little chapel.

Crowd Before Daybreak Long before daylight the crowd began to form in front of the undertaking establishment. By 6 o'clock several hundred had come, and were awaiting with tense eagerness for the opening of the doors. Factory girls, laboring men, coming on their way to work, were caught by the lure of the tragedy and crowded into the chapel.

A number of fashionable-dressed women alighted from their automobiles, and with velvet draped over their faces pressed upon the plate glass windows of the chapel. By 8 o'clock there were more than 1,000 persons gathered around the morose. The jam at the doorway was so great that extra policemen were called. When the door was opened the crowd was permitted to pass in one by one and view the form.

An old man, who had known the Phagan family for years and had reared the dead child on his knees, was the first to view the remains. For more than three minutes he stood with bare head beside the body.

It is estimated that 100,000 people have viewed the body of the child since it was found in the basement of the plant on Forsyth street, the day yesterday thousands of people crowded into the little chapel, and P. C. Bloomfield declared that no more than 4,000 persons entered his place during the day.

This morning the crowd was even greater, and since 6 o'clock it is estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 have passed in silent view before the dead child.

Inquest Is Begun At 9 o'clock, when Coroner Donohoe began the inquest, the chapel was cleared of the spectators and the body of the child removed to a private room. The men impounded to inquire into the death of the child were:

Homer C. Ashford, foreman; John Miller, J. C. Hood, C. Y. Sheets, Clean Dewberry and Clarence Laughlin.

No witnesses were examined this morning by the Coroner's Jury. The six men viewed the remains and were shown by physicians the manner in which the child met her death, after which they visited the plant of the National Pencil Company, where the murder occurred. There they made a thorough examination of the basement where the child's body was found, inspected the tip plant on the second floor, where the bloody strands of hair were found, and followed the trail of blood through the building to the scene of the crime.

At noon Coroner Donohoe dismissed the jury until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when the examination of witnesses will take place. The Coroner refused to give out a list of the persons he summoned before the jury.

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room where Mary Phagan was attacked and killed, her young life to the brutality of her assailant, across the floor where her limp form was dragged, down the stairs and down through the square trap-door into the dirty basement where her body was found, Chief of Police Beavers and two detectives trailed, step by step, the moves of the girl's murderer to-day.

Determined that not a clew should be overlooked, in the efforts to identify the man or men that took the young girl's life, the Chief and his aides began at the very spot in the tip plant in the rear of the second floor where the bloodstains and the strands of matted hair indicated that the girl had put up such a desperate fight for her life and honor.

Curious Crowd About Factory. Meaningful the surging crowd of curiosity seekers on the outside of the building would not be restrained, and that with the excitement of the employees made it necessary to close down the factory for the day.

Excited men in the strong, morbidly curious or filled with wrath at the Phagan deed, forced their way into the building and refused to turn back. A detective had an encounter with one insistent man who would not leave the building.

Inside the building the nervous tension of the employees was apparent in every department. With the ghost of the terrible crime stalking about, they could not work. After several hours of ineffectual work, the foreman saw that the girls and other employees were so wrought up over the tragedy that it was useless to keep them in

A new turn was given the mystery to-day when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a bathing machine on the second floor of the factory.

The discovery made it certain that the crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously. Blood stains leading from the lathe on the floor showed the manner in which the fiend had dragged the body of his victim and had taken her to the basement.

Appearance indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the trail of his crime by endeavoring to efface the bloody stains.

Another name was brought into the case to-day by the testimony of pencil company employees. Detectives were hurried to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily. The new suspect is said to be a former employee who was seen about the building Friday and Saturday.

The blood-matted strands of red-

New Law, the more night watchman. The negro said he almost stumbled against the body before he saw it. In the dim, flickering light of the watchman's lantern, the tragedy was revealed to all the plant.

The girl's form lay amid the trash and wreckage of the basement with bruised and bloody face upturned, in a pool of blood, and with the frizzly hair-dressed dress of but a few hours before fixed crimson.

All about was the evidence of a frantic struggle. The dilapidated contents of the dead girl's clothing and the signs of confusion on the dirty basement floor told the tragic story of the girl's battle for life.

Fought Till She Swallowed. She had fought her brutal murderer until the last—until her strength had given out and she had swayed into death.

The body lay at a point about 24 feet from an elevator shaft. Midway between the body and the shaft, on a pile of trash, was found one of the girl's shoes—the one from her left foot—and her hat. The slayer had torn the shoe and hat from the little form as the girl struggled vainly to save herself from his blows.

About the girl's neck was tightly drawn a strong piece of twine. A strip of cloth, torn from her underclothing, was also fastened about her neck. Not satisfied with the blows he had dealt on the head—one blow on the back and the head being so terrific as to discolor one of the girl's eyes—the slayer had resorted to strangulation to be sure that the last spark of life had been extinguished. His twine had been drawn so tightly that it was imbedded in the tender flesh, leaving the throat and neck discolored and lacerated.

City Chemist Tests Stains For Blood

Pieces of wood, the stains on which are believed to be those of the blood of murdered Mary Phagan, are being going a chemical examination this afternoon by the city chemist.

The discovery of white powder on the factory floor strengthened the belief that a frantic effort had been made to erase the evidence of the crime. The powder resembled very much cleaning preparations that are used.

MEN WELCOME MOTHER'S FRIEND

A Duty That Every Man Owes to Those Who Perpetrate the Race.

It is just as important that men should know of progressive methods in advance of childbirth. The suffering, pain and danger which attend the birth of a child can be readily avoided by having at hand a bottle of Mother's Friend.

This is a wonderful penetrating, external application that relieves all tensions upon the muscles and enables them to relax without the painful strain upon the ligaments. Thus there is avoided all those nervous spasms, the tendency to nausea or vomiting which so commonly attend the birth of a child. It is a powerful, yet perfectly safe, remedy which relieves all the distressing symptoms of Mother's Friend at any drug store at $1.00, and it will be the best dollar's worth you ever obtained. It preserves the mother's health, enables her to make a quick and complete recovery, and thus saves strength and vitality for the next birth. It is a wonderful relief to the mother and a great boon to the welfare of the child. Write for a free sample to Dr. J. C. Neill, 125 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. He will be glad to send you a free copy of his book, "The Mother's Friend" to-day.

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS

AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 3 O'CLOCK P. M.

Let's get down to bedrock from the start! When you buy a piece of residence property, you always look for something somebody else wants or is going to want.

The more others want it, the more it is going to enhance in value; and speed of enhancement is proportionate to the eagerness of their desire for it.

Simple reasoning? Yes, just the same old story of supply and demand.

The SUPPLY of PEACHTREE property is limited; there is just so much of it; there can never be any more.

The DEMAND for PEACHTREE has no limit but Atlanta's growth.

In ten more years Atlanta's population increased 75 per cent.

In the same ten years Atlanta home-seekers bought and built on nearly three more miles of PEACHTREE.

Some twenty of these the last two years, built their homes in PEACHTREE HEIGHTS.

At the same rate of growth in population and demand for PEACHTREE homes, do you realize where the next ten years will take them?

It will find Atlanta built up in homes more than two miles beyond Buckhead, with Buckhead taken into the city limits.

You can buy PEACHTREE HEIGHTS lot Wednesday at AUCTION PRICES.

Look a little into the future and figure, also, what this means.

You can never again buy them at those prices. They will not again be offered at Auction.

If you are at all opportunity chaser, get on the job. Call for plats at the office of

STORY OF PRISONER WHO DENIES CRIME; 'HORRIBLE MISTAKE'

Arthur Mullinax, White Youth Held By the Police, Declares the Only Time He Ever Met Mary Phagan Was in a Church Play.

Arthur Mullinax, identified as the man who was with Mary Phagan at midnight Saturday, a few short hours before her dead body was found and now a prisoner in solitary confinement at police headquarters, declared to a Georgian reporter that his arrest was a terrible mistake.

He declared that he had met the girl except as "the company boy" in a station entertainment at which both took part last Christmas. Here is his story:

"I had absolutely no conversation with 'the girl' and had no wrongfully accused. She fell in horrible mistake, which I saw her in company with Mary Phagan shortly after midnight Sunday morning in Forsyth Street. I did not even know the girl until she was arrested."

12-Year-Old Girl Sobs Her Love For Slain Child

"I'd help lynch the man that killed poor Mary. If they'd let me, I'd like to hold the rope that chocked him to death. That's all he deserves. I was playing with Mary only a few days ago. She was my playmate nearly every day. But when I saw her dead and I couldn't have known her, my heart was so broken and but and so terrible. It was horrible. I hope they catch the man that did it." — LUCY EPPS, twelve-year-old daughter of Mary Phagan.

GIRL SLAIN IN STRANGLING MYSTERY

Mary Phagan, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Callahan, 149 Loraine Street, whose slain body was found in the basement of the National Pencil Factory, 37-39 South Forsyth Street. Two men, a white youth and a negro, are held by the police as the crime is investigated. The girl left her home Saturday to go to factory, where she had been employed, to draw wages due her. She was seen on the streets at midnight Saturday with a strange man. She was not seen alive again.

WHITE YOUTH AND NEGRO ARE HELD BY THE POLICE

After Being Beaten Into Insensibility Child Was Strangled and Dragged With Cord Back and Forth Across Floor—Incoherent Notes a Clew.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Company plant, in which Mary Phagan was employed, was taken to police court this morning by Detective Biack to tell what he knows in connection with the girl's death. The police say he is not under arrest.

At the same time Geron Bailey, the negro elevator boy employed in the factory, was arrested. One theory names Bailey as the man to whom the incoherent letters apply that were found by the side of the dead girl, and that evidently were written in an effort to describe her assailant.

Policemen Mack, Phillips and Starke went to the factory this morning upon the statement that blood and matted hair, evidence of a terrible struggle had been found on the third floor of the factory. It was on this visit that they summoned Frank and arrested Bailey.

They conducted a minute investigation of the signs of the struggle of the third floor, going so far as to tear up several sections of the plank flooring in their inspection.

A new and terrifying turn was given the gruesome Mary Phagan strangling mystery to day when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a lathe machine on the third floor of the National Pencil Company's factory, 37-39 South Forsyth Street.

The discovery made it certain that the dreadful crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously.

Blood stains leading from the lathe to the door showed the manner in which the fiend had dragged the body of his victim and had taken her to the basement.

Appearances indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the trail of his crime by endeavoring to efface the bloody stains. Another name was brought into the case to-day by the testimony of pencil company employees. Detectives were hurried to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily. The new suspect is said to be a former employee who was seen about the building Friday and Saturday.

The blood matted strands of reddish-brown hair were discovered this forenoon when L. A. Quinn, foreman in the top plant on the third floor, sent R. P. Barrett, a workman, over to the lathe.

Barrett gave a cry of alarm when he saw the evidences of the shocking crime and of the struggle the little girl apparently had made against the superior strength of her assailant.

The hair was twisted about the turn-up screw on the lathe, a crank-like device which is used to move the pencil forward and backward on the machine.

Blood was on the sharp end of the crank, leading to the belief that it had been used as a weapon and was responsible for the bloody gash in the back of the Phagan girl's head. The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggle.

Evidence of Terrible Struggle

The matted hair of Mary Phagan was found in a clerk, unusual manner of the pencil factory basement shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning by Newt Lee, the negro night watchman. The negro said he almost stumbled against the body before he saw it.

Charity Breeds Beggars

Any Man Who Has a Job Has a Chance, He Says, and the World Needs Capable People as Never Before.

SAILORS just ashore, with gay painted galleys in tow, and with three monarchs' pay are the most charitable men of earth.

Charity in the past has been offered by weaklings and whim—the penance of rogues—and often we give to get rid of the trouble.

Beggary and virtue were imagined to have something akin, base and honest were sort of synonymous, and we spoke of honest hearts that beat "cash ragged jackets." That was poetry, that was life.

Labor and Deserved Leisure

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox Copyright, 1914, by American-Globe.

BEFORE we ask for leisure let us learn. The sacredness of time—the holy trust Confided for a season to our care.

No one can find fault or discharge them or dock their wage if they happen to be late or take a holiday. To be compelled to go to work at a certain hour and to remain until the prescribed time, as has already been stated, is quite another story.

It is because I want the toilers themselves to help make the world realize their need that the quoted lines were written. The employer's objection to the shorter hour of labor is understood as the voice of greed.

Recalling a Judge-- And Women Led the Crusade in This First Example

Judge Weller, of San Francisco, has been recalled by a vote of the good people of that progressive city, and conservative citizens throughout the nation will be duly shocked at a radical performance which these conservative citizens have believed, or professed to believe, would shatter the foundations of order and of established government.

In this dreaded San Francisco situation there is another condition which should startle the reactionaries, and that is, that the women led the crusade for the recall of Judge Weller, and cast a large part of the vote which recalled him.

But when conservative, or even reactionary, citizens are familiar with the situation which resulted in the recall of Judge Weller they will be more disposed to realize that in this first instance at least of the recall of a judge their fearful forebodings are not wholly justified.

San Francisco is no more free from vice than any other city. There exist in that city, as elsewhere, evil men who prey upon the weakness of young girls and lure them to their ruin and to a life of shame.

As a rule such scoundrels, through the severity of their acts, or through the "pull" which they possess in certain quarters, escape the punishment of their evil deeds. But one such villain was caught and brought before the Grand Jury in San Francisco and held to answer before Judge Weller.

The crime of this scoundrel—we refer to the indicted criminal—was of the vilest kind, and the criminality of his act could not even find palliation in the consent of the girl he had destroyed.

Yet Judge Weller, through a sympathetic feeling, or through the influence of that political "pull" of which we hear and see so much, put the vile criminal under merely nominal bonds and allowed him to jump the ball and leave the State.

Judge Weller's action was typical of a condition which the good people of San Francisco had determined to destroy, and in order to begin the remedy forcefully and effectively they began with a petition to recall this unworthy judge.

Let the reactionaries of the country, if they will, defend this criminal and this judge who acted in collusion with him. Let the reactionaries attack the principle of the recall and the policy of woman's suffrage in this instance, if they can find arguments with which to do so.

But The Georgian believes that the recall of judges has been in a case which gives every evidence that the principle will be carefully and intelligently applied, and fully exerted when its operation is obviously for the best interests of the community.

The Georgian also believes that the women have again demonstrated their intelligence and conscience and fine moral quality of citizens and voters, and The Georgian holds this case of Judge Weller as another and a convincing proof of the propriety and practicability of the progressive principles which it has so consistently advocated.

Possibly the Law Can Catch Up

"It cannot be helped—it is as it should be—that the law is behind the times." Oliver Wendell Holmes, Justice of the Supreme Court, says the law must necessarily content itself with following a considerable distance in the wake of the world's prevailing thought—because it can only embody "beliefs that have triumphed in the minds of ideas" and "while there is doubt . . . the time for law has not come."

This is the same as to say that justice must decide to-day's case according to the ideas of yesterday, and must not apply the ideas of to-day until after they have ceased to be applicable. If the law is to be thought of as a building, to which the Legislature adds a new story to meet every new social situation, and if the new story cannot be built until after the new situation has been thoroughly mastered and understood by the mass of the people, without any help from the courts—then this astonishing philosophy of Justice Holmes must be allowed to be correct.

But if, on the contrary, the law is not at all to be thought of as a dead structure of brick or steel—if it is rather to be thought of as a living body, with red blood and brains and the breath of generation of justice-seeking men—if it has feet to stand on and hands to lay hold of the right weapons in the battle of principles and precedents—why, then, of course, the learned Justice has made a grave mistake.

AUSTRIA WILL MOVE ALONE ON MONTENEGRO

Official Announcement of Decision to Force Evacuation of Scutari Made.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.—VIENNA, April 28.—An announcement was made at the Foreign Office today that Austria had decided finally to act independently in the expulsion of the Montenegrins from Scutari. The statement said: Austria finding that the Ambassadors conference in London has produced no results, the Government has decided to take matters into its own hands and carry out the powers' decision regarding the evacuation of Scutari. Italy is protesting against Austria's action.

Paris Ambassadors Startled.—LONDON, April 28.—After having adjourned until May 1, the Ambassadors' conference unexpectedly resumed its sessions in the Foreign Office this afternoon. This procedure was brought about by Austria's announced determination to act independently in driving the Montenegrins out of Scutari.

Montenegro Starts To Fortify Scutari.

PARIS, April 28.—Montenegro are determined to hold Scutari against any action that Europe may take. Work of fortifying the city has started. These armaments and provisions are being taken into the city. This information was received here today in a Scutari dispatch. It is believed that the bulk of the Montenegrin army has been withdrawn from Scutari. King Nicholas' military operations are veiled in mystery.

The diplomatic representative here of Montenegro declares that if the powers force Montenegro to give up Scutari, King Nicholas will address the royal dais and declare his intention to lead his people to the aid of Scutari.

Porte Leads Support to Albanian Independence.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 28.—The Porte today sent instructions to all the Turkish ambassadors and ministers abroad to support Enver Pasha's proclamation of the independence of Albania with himself as King. According to the belief here, Enver Pasha hoped he might be able to reclaim the suzerainty of Turkey over Albania by setting himself up as monarch. Turkey also is making hopes from rumors of disintegration among the allies.

Montenegro to Abandon Scutari, Says Diplomat.

VIENNA, April 28.—According to secret information to Austria, it was learned from a diplomatic source today that Montenegro will eventually evacuate Scutari after having made a further show of defiance to Europe. Montenegro's disastatous (Grove) (Prace Inault yesterday) presented the king of Scutari to King Nicholas. There said a (Pasha) demonstration.

PASTOR PRAYS FOR JUSTICE AT GIRL'S FUNERAL

Mother and Aunt of Mary Phagan Swoon at Burial in Marietta This Morning.

A thousand persons saw a minister of God raise his hands to heaven for justice. A host of the straggled girl suddenly screamed, fell over in her seat and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

Within the casket lay the bruised and mutilated body of Mary Phagan, the innocent young victim of one of Atlanta's blackest and most brutal crimes. The spirit of the terrible tragedy filled the air. An aunt of the straggled girl suddenly screamed, fell over in her seat and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

Factory Head Frank and Watchman Newt Lee Are "Sweated" by Police

Mysterious Action of Officials Gives New and Startling Turn to Hunt for Guilty Man—Attorney Rosser, Barred, Later Admitted Client.

Has the Phagan murder mystery been solved? The police say they know the guilty man. Chief of Detectives Lanford at 2 o'clock this afternoon told The Georgian: "We have evidence in hand which will clear the mystery in the next few hours and satisfy the public."

Attorney Barred, Then Admitted

Luther G. Rosser, attorney for Frank, endeavored to see his client. The police refused to let him do so. Why? Lawyer Rosser retired hastily declaring he would apply to Judge Bell for a writ of habeas corpus for his client, and would take him out of the control of the police.

Frank To Be Kept Under Guard

As soon as the police station was reached Frank was taken at once into the detective's office and the doors were barred against all. The detectives would say nothing of what took place behind the closed doors. The detective office is on the third floor. All the bottom of the stairs on the second floor. Call Officer John West was stationed to bar all who attempted to go to the floor above.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLER MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

A photographic study of the victim in the strangling mystery showing the sad expression in her eyes.

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accused slayer of a Georgia girl, hanging from the gallows at night until Sunday morning, has made a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the most dramatic statement to the public since his arrest at Marietta's prison.

The statement, which was given to a reporter, was a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the most dramatic statement to the public since his arrest at Marietta's prison.

"I was not trying to escape when I went to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a crop near Marietta and was going up there to see my mother and my father. I had made arrangements to come down with my mother on Saturday and my trip there was stopped by the sheriff."

Gantt said he was arrested at Marietta Monday morning. He had bought a crop near Marietta and was going up there to see his mother and his father. He had made arrangements to come down with his mother on Saturday and his trip there was stopped by the sheriff.

Mary Phagan and her young aunt, Mattie Phagan, who was one of the girl's best friends and a heart-broken over the tragedy.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

The men still in custody are:

- 1—New Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

It is believed that a new story told by the sister of the slain girl, Mrs. J. M. Gantt, will clear her brother as the slayer of the girl.

The sister, Mrs. J. M. Gantt, declared that she had seen her brother on Saturday night, but that she had not seen him on Saturday night. She said that she had seen her brother on Saturday night, but that she had not seen him on Saturday night.

"I did not see him on Saturday night," she said. "I saw him on Saturday night, but I did not see him on Saturday night."

Charles W. McGee, of Colonial Hill, a bartender in the saloon of J. M. Gantt about leaving a pair of shoes in the saloon from Sunday night until Monday morning.

Keoper of Rooming House Enters Case

J. W. Phillips Thinks Couple Who Asked for Room May Have Gantt and Girl.

The young woman who, in connection with a young man, applied to John W. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night for a room, Mrs. Phagan, the girl who was slain Thursday night, is believed to be the same woman who was seen at the rooming house Saturday night.

SLAIN AS HE FORCES ATTENTIONS ON GHT

"CHICAGO, April 28.—While attempting to force attention, a girl, Antonio Morero, 16-year-old, killed with an axe Mrs. J. M. Gantt, a young woman who was slain Thursday night, the girl's father, being sought at 11 o'clock.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The impressions of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print, that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives emphasized in the case. In fact, they have a tangible clue. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its untiring enticement.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. In fact, the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more Brimley than ever that they will be successful in their train of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hart, Jr., county physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He reported above the manner in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

SEEK CLEW IN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Night Watchman Did Not Do It?

While the tendency of the police straight through has seemed to be to doubt that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the small notes found beside her body purporting to give a clue to her murderer, the girl's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, thinks it possible that she may have written one of the scraps.

That one is the note written on the little yellow factory slip—to be fairly certain it is almost impossible to say it. It is the one that says:

"I mama that negro hired down here did it. I went to get water and he pushed me down this hole a long tall negro black that has it white long tall negro I write while play with me."

"Somehow, it looks like her handwriting to me," said Mr. Coleman. "But, of course, I can not be sure. Now, about the other note I am doubtful. It seems to be written as well for the child to have done it as the almost impossible condition she must have been in at the time. Whether she wrote either of the notes of her own accord, though, or whether she was forced to do it by her murderer to turn suspicion from himself, of course is mere speculation. Only time can tell, if anything."

Doubts Other Note's Authorship

The other note whose authorship Coleman doubts is the one scribbled on a notepad. It reads as it was at first transcribed:

"He said he would love me laid down like the night watch did it but that long tall negro did it by his self."

This note, however, brings up an argument advanced by several people who have studied it carefully. They have found that in some way one word, "play," was omitted in the first transcription, and they think that instead of "night watch" the words were meant to mean "night watch," which is relative to the subject. With these changes the note would read:

"He said he would love me laid down like the night watch did it, but that long tall negro did it by his self."

That ask: if the murderer told the child he was going to "play like the night watch did it," and then the child goes on to explain that it wasn't the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to mislead the night watchman's inquirer?

Argue Against Watchman

They also ask: Would a child in the position that Mary Phagan was supposed to be in, intelligent and her mind wandering, be thinking of trying to "play like a night watchman in her room?"

And they ask: Who would be the most interested person in the world in seeing the hide of the night watchman?

Did the child write the notes herself, or was she forced to write them by her murderer, as we have seen? The notes are written in three sizes.

1 Dead, 2 Dying, in Augusta Accidents

Fireman Crushed to Death, Girl Hit by Auto and Boy Fractured Skull in Fall.

Augusta, Ga., April 28.—One man is dead and a young woman and a boy are dying as the result of a series of accidents in Augusta last night.

Pat Callahan, a fireman, was run over and crushed to death by a fire truck. He swung on the wagon as it left to answer a call, and falling, went directly beneath the wheels.

Miss Ernestine Hater was run over by an automobile driven by Mrs. W. K. Hester. Her skull was fractured. Miss Hater is a niece of Mrs. A. S. Chandler, of Atlanta.

Edward Carter, aged 10, suffered a fractured skull in falling down the steps at the playground of the John Milnes school.

GARRISON MOVES TO RID THE ARMY OF POLITICS

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Secretary Garrison has issued an order to put an end to appeals to him, for factory treatment of industrial officers of the army and of stock political "influence." According to the order, any communication made to the War Department outside the regular military channels for favored treatment of an officer in any way, will promptly be referred to that officer. He will be required to report to the Secretary whether he is responsible for such requests.

WHY PREMATURE GRAY HAIR?

There are many causes of premature gray hair—debility, a nervous temperament, impoverished circulation, acid, indigestion, sometimes it is hereditary and the change is made in the hair as it grows in her early thirties. We don't always make the cause, but we do know that gray hair adds at least ten years to the age of a woman; he she old or young, and when a young woman's hair begins to fade and lose its color, it is very foolish for her to let it go on unchecked. In a year or two she will be an old, gray-headed woman. And just a little care and treatment can save her hair and her youth.

Our Holland's Hair Dye is not a dye, but a natural coloring for the hair. It is a pure, scientific preparation of tonic virtues which restore your hair to its own natural color and beautiful, healthy condition. If your hair is losing its life and color, there is no reason at all why you should hesitate to use this pure restorative, use any more than that you should refuse to use a cure for your hair. The fading gray hair and the abundant, bright, fresh from youth, should be treated.

Holland's Hair Dye is not made in any laboratory and perfume houses. Non-toxic and does not stain skin or clothes. It is at all times and in all climates. And you will be wonderfully surprised and pleased at the result. Retailer's price is 50c per bottle. You can get it from any drug store or by mail.

have been surprised him as to all he knew in connection with the affair. At the factory of the pencil company reporters were suddenly excluded.

Frank Last in Building. Frank to a Georgian reporter, just before his arrest, said: "No one is more anxious to learn of the whereabouts of Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon and night than I am. The company is exerting every effort to get information and has employed a Pinkerton detective to work on the case."

White's statement follows: "Denham and I went to the factory to work on Saturday, although it was a holiday. We left shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. We punched our time at exactly 3:30 o'clock. I went out and I stopped in Mr. Frank's office and borrowed two dollars of him. Denham went in with me. Neither of us saw anyone else in the building. When we left Frank was the only person remaining."

Saw Gantt in Pool Room. "Denham and I stayed together most of the afternoon, and in the evening we went to the Olohe pool rooms on Broad Street, near Marietta. We had been in there a little while when I saw John Gantt come in. He did not play, but sat down and watched the game."

"In a little while we went out, but returned in a few minutes and stayed until after 10 o'clock. Finally he said that he guessed he would go home, and that was the last I saw of him. Denham's statement is substantially the same. He said that he saw no one else in the factory aside from his fellow workmen, White, and Superintendent Frank."

Mr. Leo Frank, wife of the perpetrator of the pencil factory, declared to-day before the assistant that her husband was anxious to do everything in his power to clear up the Mary Phagan mystery and regarded the feeling against him as totally unwarranted."

Frank's Rise in Company Rapid. Frank to a Georgian reporter, just before his arrest, said: "No one is more anxious to learn of the whereabouts of Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon and night than I am. YOUTH HELD IN PHAGAN CASE

John M. Gantt, held in connection with the investigation of the strangling of little Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory. Here Gantt is shown reading the warrant for his arrest on a charge of murder. He stands in connection with the crime. An alibi story, told by his sister, may clear him of suspicion.

Mother and Aunt of Mary Phagan Swoon at Burial in Marietta This Morning.

A thousand persons saw a minister of God raise his hands to heaven today and heard him call for divine justice. Before his closed eyes was a little casket, its pure whiteness hid by the banks and banks of beautiful flowers.

Within the casket lay the bruised and mutilated body of Mary Phagan, the innocent young victim of one of Atlanta's blackest and most brutal crimes. The spirit of the terrible tragedy filled the air. An aunt of the strangled girl suddenly screamed, fell over in her grief and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

The stricken mother collapsed and it was feared that her condition might become critical. The scene was in the Second Baptist Church in Marietta, where Mary Phagan had lived when she was a child of only three or four years. An immense crowd was at the altar when the funeral train arrived at 11 o'clock.

STEPFATHER OF DEAD GIRL OUTSPOKEN AGAINST LEE

That Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 11:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dragged into the basement by the negro night watchman, Newt Lee, now in jail, is the firm belief of the child's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

Mr. Coleman said, "I was afraid to attack her until midnight for fear she would scream or something would come. He may or may not have knocked her senseless from the first, or he may have tied her. I do not know, but when I saw her, she was not in the building. After the negro did the work, he refused to leave or not to testify, the police will have to make an appearance."

Mr. Coleman said at first given credence to a report that Mary had come home at 5 o'clock Saturday night, but he was later convinced she was shot off the car, had taken her back to town with him, and he had been in the room when she was killed.

THEIR SOBS OVER FATE OF MARY PHAGAN

"I Could Trust Her Anywhere,"
She Cries, and Adds, "No Working Girl Is Safe."

Lying on the bed in her little room on Lindsay Street, prostrated with sorrow over the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan, Mrs. W. J. Coleman sobbed out the pitiful story of how sweet and fresh her child had left home Saturday, and issued a warning to all Atlanta mothers to guard the welfare of their own daughters forced to work for a living.

"There are so many unscrupulous men in the world," she cried. "It is so dangerous for young girls working out. Their every step should be watched. Mothers should question them and ask them about their work and associates and surroundings. They should continually tell them what they ought to do, and how they ought to act under certain circumstances."

Old Lined Work.
She declared that she never would have permitted Mary to go out to work the age she did—17 years—if it hadn't been that there were five children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support. That was before she married her present husband, Mr. Coleman.

"That was a year ago," said Mrs. Coleman, "and then it wouldn't have been necessary for Mary to work. But she had got into the habit of it and liked it, and I thought she could take care of herself as she always had."

"Oh, the poor baby!" she sobbed. "I did talk to her. I did tell her what to do. I was always sitting here and she took my advice, I know, because she was always so sensible about everything. Besides, she never was a child to stir or act silly. That's why I know that when she went away with this man who killed her she was either overpowered or she threatened her."

Mrs. Coleman said that girls ought to look out for themselves, too, and never permit any familiarity from men. "When a girl is pretty," she declared emphatically, she is attracted to men. Mary was pretty; too, and besides that, she was always happy and in a good humor. She had never stayed out any night before in the two years she had been at work. I could trust her anywhere I knew because she was always so straightforward, and what I thought when she didn't come home was that she had met up with her aunt from Marietta, who was in town, and had gone home with her and had no way to let me know."

Too Young to Know.
She covered her face with her hands. "And to think that at the time I was thinking that she was in the hands of a merciless brute! Oh, if only Mr. Coleman had happened here at the street and found her, I could tell me she was crying on a corner at it without and that she was with was cursing her when a policeman came up and took her away."

By Young and Bright.
"Often I watched Mary on the car when men would look at her," Mrs. Coleman said, "but she never allowed any attention to them. I think she must have made the men who killed her mad and that's why he did it. She said that when Mary left the house Saturday she had only intended to go to the pencil factory, and she had only seen any one coming to her—her father."

GIRL'S GRANDFATHER VOWS
"REVENGE ON THE SLAYER"

Standing with head bent like the doorway of his Marietta home, with tears falling unheeded down his furrowed cheeks, W. J. Phagan cried out for vengeance for the murder of his granddaughter, fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, and vowed that he would rest until the murderer had been brought to justice. In a silence broken save by the sound of his own sobs and the noise of the efforts of the detectives in the quiet of the night, the old man lifted his quavering voice in a passionate plea for the life of the wretch who had lured the little girl into the darkness of a deserted building and strangled her to death. It was an infatuated girl—the grief of an old and broken man—that Mr. Phagan expressed when, with hands outspread imploringly, he invoked divine aid in bringing the murderer of the child to justice.

"By the power of the living God," prayed the old man, his voice rising high and clear above the patter of the rain and the roar of a passing train. "I hope the murderer will be dealt with as he dealt with that innocent child. I hope his heart is torn with remorse in the measure that his victim suffered pain and shame; that he suffers as we who loved the child are suffering. No punishment is too great for the brute who foully murdered the sweetest and purest thing that earth—my girl. Hanging cannot atone for the crime he has committed and the suffering he has caused."

NEGRO IS NOT

FACTORY HEED

Superintendent Leo M. Frank Is Convinced Newt Morris Was Not Implicated.

Coming to a speedy receipt of the shipment part of the plan of the National Pacific Company had been set down for most of the week last Friday when Mary Phagan was killed. A few minutes after 11 o'clock Saturday she went to the office and drew her pay, which amounted to $1.75.

A holiday had been given the employees on Memorial Day and there were but very few about the place. The day watchman left shortly before 11 o'clock, while clerks in the office left at noon. Two young men worked on an upper floor until a few minutes after 1 o'clock, while Superintendent Leo M. Frank was the only one connected with the firm who was about the place during the afternoon.

Frank's Story.
"It was about 10 or 15 minutes after 1 o'clock when Mary Phagan came to my office and drew her pay," said Mr. Frank. "The regular pay day is Friday, but there are always a few of the 110 employees who do not call until Saturday afternoon. I was in the office at that time and she came in and handed the girl her money. She went out through the outer office and I saw her talking to another girl. While I could not see what they were doing, I saw that they went out of the building I am quite sure they did for I would not have seen any one coming about the building."

Check on Watchman.
"I have been in the habit of calling the night watchman to make a check on him, and at 1 o'clock called Newt Morris. He said everything was all right. I asked him if he had seen anything in the place and he replied that he had not seen anything. He said that if I did not communicate with him any more."

"I thought I heard my telephone ring about 10 o'clock on Saturday morning, but I did not get up until about 11 o'clock. It was some time later when the detective in the office called me about the finding of the child. Since that time I have been in the office and I have not attempted to get out of the telephone when I decided I was not going to be any more of a witness."

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN'S GREAT BASEBALL TEAM

All the important leagues of baseball are now in action. So are tens of thousands of fans. So are also the men who write of the doings of the diamond warriors for those same fans to read.

It is the newspaper with the STAR TEAM of writers that makes the strongest appeal to baseball enthusiasts.

BUT—so be stars, baseball players and writers about the diamond warriors must be fair and square. That is an essential part of KNOWING THE GAME.

Here Is The Hearst Sunday
American Team for 1913

CHRISTY MATHEWSON—For years the famous New York Giants pitcher for the New York Giants. Known everywhere as one of the brainiest players in the business and one of the squares in whatever he writes about the game of which he is master.

JOE AGLER—The Crackers' sensational first-sacker. He is giving local fans all the 'inside' news of Billy Smith's aggregation. His comments on plays are immense.

W. S. FARNSWORTH—His stories of the big league teams are right up to the minute. Having traveled with the New York Yankees, New York Giants and Boston Red Sox during the past seven years, he is able to tell of the 'workings' of the major league clubs.

PERCY H. WHITING—For over seven years he has been writing Southern League baseball. He is the dean of Southern diamond experts and has the largest following this side of the Mason and Dixon line. He is fearless in his writings and always tells the truth.

SAM CRANE—A big league ball player for years and personally acquainted with all the major leaguers. For the past twenty years he has been writing baseball and is considered the greatest student of the game in the world. He travels with the National League Champion Giants.

DAMON RUNYON—The wittiest baseball writer in the East. He tells of the big league games in a manner that has a laugh in every line. But he never gets away from baseball like most of the humorous followers of the diamond warriors.

W. J. McBETH—His 'inside' stories of big league games and figures and his predictions are followed by thousands of fans. He has traveled as a "war correspondent" with nearly every big league team during the past ten years.

CHARLEY DRYDEN—The Mark Twain of baseball. For years he has traveled with New York, Philadelphia and Chicago teams and his writings are baseball classics. He is personally acquainted with every big league player and probably has the largest following of any baseball expert in the country.

A. H. C. MITCHELL—Considered the greatest expert stories of last fall's world's series were marvels. He reacts when a record is coming and praises when praise is due. He has been writing baseball for twenty years.

ALLEN SANGREE—He is well known in the South, having been here with big league teams on training trips for the past fifteen years. He will travel with the New York Yankees this season, and his stories of Russell Ford and Ed Sweeney, former Crackers, will be of special interest to local fans.

J. W. McCONAUGHY—Popular with Eastern baseball fans because of his fearless writings. He never gets away from the truth, but tells a straight, readable story. He has been writing baseball in St. Louis and New York for twelve years.

J. W. HEISMAN—Considered the greatest college coach in every part in this part of the United States. His predictions are seldom wrong, and his weekly review of Southern college teams cannot be beaten.

JOE BEAN—As coach of Marietta he has led all the other prep school coaches a merry chase. A few years ago he was the star shortstop of the New York Giants. His stories are bright and interesting.

INNIS BROWN—For four years he was considered one of the greatest athletes that ever attended Vanderbilt. His baseball stories of college teams are read by every undergraduate and graduate in the South.

In the General Sporting Field

As well as in baseball, The Sunday American scores an exceptionally large number of base hits in all other branches of sports.

Ben Adams, hero of the Olympic games, writes interesting stories about track and field athletics. The boxing world is well covered by Ed W. Smith, W. W. Naughton, H. M. Walker, Ed Curley and "Left Hook" Dick Tishener takes care of the golf. He knows every golfer in the South and his stories are real live "beats." Tennis and automobiles are two other branches of sport that are covered thoroughly in The Sunday American.

NEED FOR A GANTT'S ROUSED BY SLIM COLE'S STEELWORK

That Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 11:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dragged into the basement by the negro night watchman, Nest Lee, now in jail in the firm headquarters of the child's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

As for Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, held on suspicion, Mr. Coleman told a Georgian reporter he thought him innocent of the crime. He was also very doubtful if J. M. Gantt, ex-bookkeeper for the pencil factory, where the girl worked, had anything to do with her murder or knew anything about it.

"If the negro watchman did not kill the child, how would it have been impossible for him to have been seen in the building?"

When Mary turned from the window after receiving her money, she thought that instead of going directly out, she went to the dressing room, perhaps for a drink of water, as one of the notes found said Superintendent Frank mixing her when he came out and supposing she left the building, locked her in. The negro watchman just saw her go into the dressing room, and a little later seized her and dragged her into the room.

Later developments in the story go to show that the girl was not in a steel lath was not the scene of her struggle with her assailant. In the dressing room, it was said by a member of her family, there were plain evidences that the attack was made. She was also seized in the room, for a strip of her new lavender dress was cut off from the front and bound around her mouth to keep her from screaming.

Ribbons Found Near Baller. Another bit of evidence, it was said, that went to throw added suspicion on the black was a box of the child's blue ribbon and a kerchief found down near the boiler, where he constantly stayed.

The negro evidently kept the child in the factory all day. Mr. Coleman said, "and was afraid to attack her unless somebody would come. He may or may not have knocked her senseless from the first, or he may have kept her. I do not know, but when Gantt entered the shop it was more than likely that the girl was in the steel presence there and simply went up and got his shoes, as he said, and went out again."

All the about slaying having been seen on the street at midnight or at any other time after 12 o'clock in the day I do not think can be true. I believe she remained all day in the building. After the negro did the thing he was afraid to leave or not to notify the police, which would make appearance worse for him. Therefore he called the officers."

GANTT READING MURDER WARRANT

FORMER PLAYMATES MEET GIRL'S BODY AT MARIETTA

The little town of Marietta, Ga., where her baby eyes first opened upon the light of day scarcely fourteen years ago, will to-day witness the posthumous funeral of Mary Phagan, the girl who was mysteriously murdered in the National Pencil Factory Saturday night and whose body was later found in the basement where it had been dragged by unknown hands.

The body will be taken to the session in a hearse by the undertaker in whose shop it has lain for the past two days, while thousands of people came to look upon it. The coffin will be of pure white, befitting the innocence of the young girl being wrung in, and only a simple plate, with the child's name upon it, will be placed there.

new of her child's death. Mr. Coleman has been unable to leave his house. She has not even visited the undertaking parlor to see the body. It was not considered best for her in her weakened and nervous condition, and it is feared that she will break down at the funeral, and every care will be taken with her on the way to Marietta that she may be strong to face the ordeal. Although Mr. Coleman is the child's stepfather, had only known Mary since his marriage to her mother a year ago, he seemed broken with sorrow over her death, and in speaking of her to a Georgian reporter almost broke down when he said that she had been made for her burial.

FATHER EMPLOYE MAY BE TAKEN ANY MOMENT

A sensational arrest will be made in the Mary Phagan murder mystery within a few hours.

It will be based on the firm theory of the police and detectives that the strange girl was never outside the factory of the National Pencil Company from the time that she went in there for her pay Saturday noon until her dead and mutilated body was taken to the morgue early Sunday morning.

The detectives do not believe that Arthur Mullinax is guilty of the murder.

They do not believe that J. M. Gantt is guilty of the murder.

They do not place any dependence on the identifications of Gantt and Mullinax made by various persons before Chief of Detective Lansford.

They are confident that the author of the terrible deed was a person who is not under arrest at the present time. They know his name. They have talked with him. They have his story of what he declares is all he knows of the happenings Saturday night in the building of tragedy on Forsyth Street.

But they are not satisfied with his tale. It is known that they will have him behind the bars within a few hours.

It is known that the signs of weakening on the part of Nest Lee, the negro night watchman, have had a great deal to do with the pending sensational arrest. The negro's attitude all along has led to the belief that he was shielding some one.

One moment he has almost admitted that he is protecting a man who has befriended him and helped him, and an instant later he has suddenly gone back into silence with the solution of the mystery trembling on his very lips.

In the still hours of last morning, unknown to anyone save the authorities, Nest Lee was put through a scorching, grilling "third degree" that left him weeping and nerveless.

Before the hangings on had congregated about the police station and the hordes of informers, witnesses and merely curious had swept down upon the detective force, Detective John Black quietly made his way to the police station and into the cell of the bowed and almost broken negro.

It was hardly 4 o'clock this morning when Lee was started to see the detective's form before his cell. Black walked in and sat down. From that time for two pitiless hours the detective plied the negro with questions.

A great fear appeared on the negro's heart. Not that he feared for himself or because of his own guilt, but that he was frightened at the terrors of the law which slowly were forcing him to open his lips and reveal the man who was hiding behind him.

Black tried to remove the terrors that oppressed the black man.

"We know you did not do the murder," the negro repeatedly was assured. "We know you are guiltless of the whole affair. But we know that you know exactly who did it and that you are protecting that person."

Just as Lee was nodding his head in assent, he suddenly would straighten up in an afflicted manner and declare:

"No, no, boss, I don't know nothing about it. I don't know nothing about it, sah. Before God, I don't."

Then Black would begin his long line of questioning all over again and would bare the negro just on the verge of the solution of the whole mystery when the great fear would sweep over him again and he would become silent.

What is regarded as a most important and significant circumstance in bearing out the newly developed theory that the girl never left the factory after she went in there to get her pay envelope Saturday noon is the fact that Lee will not swear that he saw her leave the building.

The negro did not see her go out.

His reliable testimony has been produced that she was seen from the time she went in the building at noon, although she certainly would have been seen had she followed out her announced intention of seeing the Memorial Day parade.

Leo Frank, superintendent of the factory, admits that he himself does not know positively of the girl's leaving the building from the time she went in the building at noon, although she certainly would have been seen had she followed out her announced intention of seeing the Memorial Day parade.

SEEK CLEW IN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Right Watchman Did Not Do It?

Seek Clew in Queer Words in Odd Notes

While the tendency of the police thought through has seemed to be to doubt that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the several notes found leading her body supposed to give a clue to her murderer, the girl's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, thinks it possible that she may have written one of the notes.

That one of the notes written on the lined yellow factory slip—the factory record it is always supposed to read it. It is the one that says:

"Mama, that Negro Ned down here did this I want to get water and he pushed me down this hole a long tall negro black that has it make long hair tall negro I care while play with you."

"Remember, it looks like her handwriting to me," Mr. Coleman said. "But, of course, I can not be sure. Now, about the other note, I am doubtful. It seems to be written for well for the child to have done it in the almost impossible condition she must have been in at the time."

Whether she wrote either of the notes if her own record, though, or whether she was forced to do it by her murderer to turn suspicion from himself, is of course in mere speculation. Only time can tell if anything.

Doubts Other Note's Authorship. The other note whose authorship Mr. Coleman doubts is the one scrawled on a notepad. It reads as it was at first translated:

He said he would love me, said down like the night which did it but that long tall Mack Negro did it by his self."

This note, however, brings up an argument advanced by several people who have studied it carefully. They have found that in some ways one word, "play," was omitted in the first translation, and in some ways the word "night" which the words were meant to mean "night watch" is relative to the night. With these changes the note would read:

"He said he would love me, said down like the night watch, did it but that long tall black negro did it by his self."

They ask: If the murderer told the child he was going to "play" like the night watch did it, and then the child goes on to explain that it wasn't the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to shield the night watchman?

Argue Against Watchman. They also ask: Would a child in the predicament of Mary Phagan be supposed to be in, inessential and her mind wandering, be thinking of trying to shield the night watchman in her last words, even before she described the man who had, they thought, killed her?

There is nothing that anybody can do—except only hear it."

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening. The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress.

GUILT WILL BE FIXED DETECTIVES DECLARE

Has the murderer of pretty Miss Mary Phagan slipped the net that the police most carefully spread for him?

If the author of the crime that showed the city and state with its terrible brutality still at large?

In the mystery, as baffling in its myriad conflicting elements as it is revealing in its details, will an old man solution, as it was when the Boston and Bristol title body of Mary Phagan was found hidden in this or town and later in a Third Street basement?

When the city detectives and specialists picked up the tangled chain of evidence this morning they admitted that they were as badly puzzled as when they had first started after working incessantly upon the case.

They said that they were sure that the man who had almost certainly done the deed would be found in the next few days.

SISTER'S NEW STORY HOW CLEAR GANTT

F. C. Terrell, 581 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgia's reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of little Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

I Feel as Though I Could Die,' Sobs Mary Phagan's Grief-Stricken Sister

Among all the hearts that are bowed down in sorrow over the murder of Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old factory child found dead in the National Penalt factory Saturday, there is none who feels the suffering and the struggle of the soul so keenly as her sister, Gertie, 16 years old, her companion since childhood.

SUGGESTIVE PICTURES ON WALLS CHANGE IS BEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a crime, has been made public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon. This remarkable denial, if it is by the given evidence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

When soon after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, almost weeks ago, presumably to go to California and that she had not seen him since.

"I ate breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home. "Yes," said little Willie Terrell, Mr. Gantt slept with me Saturday night. And I had to wake up at 4 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

"I heard my wife get up and heard her in 11 o'clock," declared Terrell. "I had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared F. C. Terrell, brother-in-law of the accused. A moment later, Mr. Terrell said that Gantt had been back in town for four or five days and that he was certainly in his house Saturday night.

"I had no picture of her in his room, and if they were sweethearts I feel sure he would have one," said Mr. Terrell also stated that he had never heard of Mary Phagan and that if there were any relationship between the two he knew nothing of it.

"I had my own story to tell about the parade but didn't show it. Then somebody remembered she had said she had heard the show at the Plaza, but she couldn't go without asking me to go with her. When she didn't come home a little later, I went down to bring her home. He waited until the show was over and everybody had filed out of the theater, but Mary was not with the crowd. Mr. Coleman had returned home and found Mrs. Coleman and another woman, who had stayed with her while he had gone to work, sitting at the desk. Mrs. Coleman said when they decided that Mary had gone with her aunt and had returned and gone home with her. She had intended to go away Saturday."

"That I know Mary was," said Mrs. Coleman, and after a few minutes to have any of the story to tell.

AUSTRIA WILL MOVE ONE ON MONTENEGRO

Official Announcement of Decision to Force Evacuation of Scutari is Made.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. VIENNA, April 29.—Ambassadors were made at the Foreign Office today that Austria had decided finally to set independently in the execution of the Montenegro from Scutari. The statement said: Austria feeling that the Ambassador's conference in London has produced no results, this Government has decided to take matters into its own hands and carry out the power's decision regarding the evacuation of Scutari. Italy is protesting against Austria's action.

Peace Ambassadors Started. LONDON, April 29.—After having adjourned until May 1, the Ambassadors conference unexpectedly resumed its sessions in the Foreign Office this afternoon.

This procedure was brought about by Austria's announcement yesterday that it was independently in the execution of the Montenegro out of Scutari.

Montenegro Starts To Fortify Scutari.

PARIS, April 29.—Montenegro are determined to hold Scutari against any action that Europe may take of fortifying the city. No arms, ammunition and provisions are being taken into the city. This information was received here today from a Scutari dispatch. Although the bulk of the Montenegro army has been withdrawn from Scutari, King Nicholas' military operations are limited in Scutari.

The diplomatic representative here of Montenegro declares that, if the powers force Montenegro to give up Scutari, King Nicholas will indicate the envoy Genia Nicholas bargained with Sazed Fasha for the surrender of Scutari.

A Cattaro telegram said that it was reported there that a hostile demonstration had been made in Cattaro against the Austrian Minister to Montenegro.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 29.—The Porte to-day sent instructions to all the Turkish ambassadors and ministers abroad to support Sazed Fasha's proclamation of the independence of Albania with himself as King.

According to the belief here, Sazed Fasha hoped he might be able to retain the ascendancy of Turkey over Albania by setting himself up as monarch. Turkey also is taking hope from rumors of dissension among the allies.

Bulgarian troops are said to have been repulsed in several sanguinary encounters with Serbians near Salonika and with Greeks near Salonika. Turkey has protested to the United States that the Balkan States by Russia.

Montenegro to Abandon Scutari, Says Informant.

VIENNA, April 29.—According to reliable information to Austria, it was learned from a diplomatic source today that Montenegro will eventually evacuate Scutari, after his war made a further show of defiance to Europe. A Cattaro dispatch declares Crown Prince Danilo yesterday presented the keys of Scutari to King Nicholas today and said a peaceful demonstration.

PASTOR PRAYS FOR JUSTICE AT GIRL'S FUNERAL

Mother and Aunt of Mary Phagan Swoon at Burial in Marietta This Morning.

A thousand persons saw a minister of God raise his hands to heaven today and heard him call for divine justice. Before his closed eyes was a little child, the more unknown and by the babe and babe of beautiful form.

While the pastor by the burial and mourned body of Mary Phagan, the innocent young victim of one of Atlanta's slanders and most heinous crimes.

The spirit of the terrible tragedy, and the air. An aunt of the innocent girl suddenly swooned, for once in her life and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

The sister, another slayer and it was feared that her condition might become critical.

The scene was in the Second Baptist Church at Marietta, where Mary Phagan had died when she was a child of only three or four years. An unknown crowd was at the altar, and many were weeping over the child.

Many of them were young people who had played about with the innocent child, whose one had been years before.

Just as Mrs. J. J. Coleman, pastor of Mary, was being helped into a cab, the pure white coffin was lifted from the car. Mrs. Coleman saw it and the whole church was sufficient to walk through the forest of fearful mourning.

She screamed and fell into the arms of her husband. It was some time before she could be taken to the church to witness the rites over her daughter whose life had been sacrificed to the brutality of some man.

"Thank God to God," said the chief when the little casket was borne into the church and carried forward, where it was covered with flowers.

FACTORY HEAD FRANK AND WATCHMAN NEW LEE ARE "SWEATED" BY POLICE

Mysterious Action of Officials Gives New and Startling Turn to Hunt for Guilty Man—Attorney Rosser, Barred, Later Admitted to Client.

Has the Phagan murder mystery been solved? The police say they know the guilty man. Chief of Detectives Lanford at 2 o'clock this afternoon told The Georgian:

"We have evidence in hand which will clear the mystery in the next few hours and satisfy the public."

All the afternoon the police have been "sweating" Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory where the girl worked, and putting through the "third degree" Leo, the negro watchman of the factory.

A blood stained shirt, which the detective say they found at the home of Leo, was shown to the negro this afternoon in an effort to break him down.

The negro admitted the shirt was his, but declared that he had not worn it before two years.

Leo was under a grilling; but of questions all day. Shortly before Superintendent Frank was brought to the station Detective Black came from the home of Leo. He carried a package under his arm. He would not divulge its contents, but very soon after it was obtained Frank was under arrest and Leo was confronted with the garment.

There was an unexplained rumor that Leo had broken down and given but important information to the police.

Detective Black and Harry Scott, Pinkerton man, left police headquarters at 2:30 for West End to arrest a negro woman friend of the black prisoner. The net was evidently being tightened about New Lee, the night watchman.

Superintendent Leo M. Frank, head officer of the National Fruit Company, was taken from the factory shortly before noon by Detective Black and Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons.

Attorney Barred, Then Admitted

Luther G. Rosser, Attorney for Frank, Advised to see his Client. The Police Refused to let him do so.

Why? Rosser retired hastily declaring he would apply to Judge Hall for a writ of habeas corpus for his client, and would take him out of the control of the police.

Later, when Rosser's determination to fight for Frank became known, Chief Heavers admitted that the exclusion of Rosser was a mistake, that the police officers had been taken too hastily, and Rosser was then permitted to talk to his client. Rosser abandoned his plan to sue out a writ of habeas corpus.

The police "explanation" only added mystery to mystery, and really explained nothing.

When Rosser reached the police station he was told that strict orders had been given against anyone seeing Frank.

If Frank was not under arrest, by that right was his lawyer forbidden to see him.

As soon as the police station was reached Frank was taken at once into the detective's office and the doors were barred against all.

The detectives would say nothing of what took place behind the closed doors. The detective office is on the third floor, at the bottom of the lobby on the second floor. Call Officer John Frank was situated to bar all who attempted to go to the floor above.

Frank To Be Kept Under Guard

It was learned late this afternoon that Frank will be held on the technical charge of "suspicion." He will not be placed in a cell, but he will be under guard. An extra policeman will be employed to keep watch over the factory superintendent in the police station and Frank will pay for the services of this man.

Luther G. Rosser, counsel for Frank, would not make a deal.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLED MARY PHAGAN—NEW PICTURE STUDIES

CHARGE IS BASED OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a horrible crime hanging over him, from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Devores to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department six days ago last night for the use of the city detectives.

This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

He is Contradicted. E. V. Holloway, timesinger for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gantt's own lips that he had been out with the Phagan girl.

He never even walked home with the girl, he insists. First, one of the girls employed with Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girls at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 214 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, is said by the police to have told two plain clothes men that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night, that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Reverses Statements. To-day Mrs. Terrell reversed the statement that she had to have been made to the plain clothes men, and declared that Gantt not only was there, but slept with her son, Will.

It was announced to full follow: "do not deny going to the pencil factory Saturday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a pair of shoes I had left there when I quit school about three weeks ago."

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a studios pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the pictures here shown are from photographs priced by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

If the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

- 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case believe they have a tangible clue. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unflinching catechism.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

If you have anything to say about the Phagan case, please call on the editorial staff of this paper at 125 Peach Street, or write to the editorial staff at the same address.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 214 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that the wife had declared to him that she did not see the death of the detective and Georgian reporter to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

"When some time after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California and that she had not seen him since."

"Most certainly he was in his room here Saturday night," declared Mrs. Terrell in a Georgian reporter, to-day. "He came in at 11 o'clock."

"Slept With Me." "I am breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home.

"Yes," said Miss Willie Terrell, "Mr. Gantt slept with me Saturday night and had to wake up at 11 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

"No, I had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared F. C. Terrell, brother-in-law of the accused. A moment later, Mrs. Terrell said that Gantt had been back in town for one or five days and that he was certainly in his home Saturday night.

"I heard my wife get up and let him in at 11 o'clock," declared Terrell.

A Georgian reporter called at the Terrell residence to find that Mrs. Terrell was in a state approaching a nervous collapse and much excited in her manner, who was reluctant to let her deposition that Gantt was in bed at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

"She is a few months her husband, who is engineer at the Forsyth Building, and had to get up at 11 o'clock to get my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

"Yes," said Mrs. Terrell, "I had not seen Gantt for three weeks, but I had seen and talked with Gantt on Saturday night. He was just as cool as a cucumber, and Mr. Terrell, and he laughs at the idea of his being accused of the murder. He is just as confident of being cleared as if it was already decided."

Keoper of Rooming House Enters Case. J. W. Phillips Thinks Couple Who Asked for Room May Have Been Gantt and Girl.

Was the young woman who, in company with a young man, applied to J. W. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night for a room, Mary Phagan, the girl who was found murdered the following morning? And was Gantt the man who?

Phillips was not positive to-day, although at Birmingham's undertaking establishment he had a understanding of the girl's name. He understood that she was a young woman, and he said he would not make the positive statement to a reporter to-day.

"The police station has the report to me that Gantt declared the girl's name to him like the man who applied to him for a room."

Charles W. Martin, of Hammond Street, almost directly across from the National Pencil Company plant, corroborated to-day the story told by J. M. Gantt about leaving a pair of shoes to the night. From 11 o'clock last night until Monday morning.

"The man I believe to be Gantt from the description given into the office, but stayed only a short time," said Martin. "I noticed nothing suspicious about Gantt or the man who was with him."

SEEK CLEW IN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Night Watchman Did Not Do It?

While the tendency of the public straight-through has seemed to be no doubt that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the notes found beside her body purporting to give a clue to her murderer, the police investigator, W. J. Coleman, thinks it possible that she may have written one of the scraps.

That one is the note written on the little yellow factory slip—so faintly traced it is almost impossible to read it. It is the one that says: "Somehow, it looks like her handwriting to me," said Mr. Coleman.

Now, about the other note I am doubtful. It seems to be written to sell for the child to have done it as the almost impossible condition she must have been in at the time.

He said he would have the kid down like the night watch did it but that long tall black negro did it by his self.

This note, however, brings up an argument advanced by several people who have studied it carefully. They have found that in some way one word, something, was omitted in the first translation, and they think that it was a word of "night watch the words were meant to mean 'what watch,' which is relative to the subject. With these changes the note would read:

"He said he would have the kid down like the night watch did it but that long tall black negro did it by his self."

They also ask: Who would be the most interested person in the world in saying the life of the night watchman?

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLED MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

CHARGE'S BASEST OF ACCUSATIONS, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hanging over him, from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was taken by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department photographer last night for the use of the city detectives.

This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

He is contradicted. J. M. Holloway, timekeeper for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gantt's own lips that he had been out with the Phagan girl. He never even walked home with the girl, he insists.

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a staid pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the pictures here shown are from photographs prized by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

- The men still in custody are:
 - 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
 - 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
 - 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
 - 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called indications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 24 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that he had declared to him that he did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgian reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of pretty Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When seen soon after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California and that she had not seen him since.

"I heard my wife get up at 11 o'clock and let some one in, and she told me it was Gantt."

"I thought you said that Gantt had left here three weeks ago and that you did not know anything about him," volunteered the reporter.

Gantt about leaving a pair of shoes in his saloon from his night visit Tuesday morning.

WHY WILL BE KILLED BY NIGHT, OFFICIALS SAY

Admit Chain of Evidence Is Still Tangled, but Assent Solution Is Near.

Has the murderer of pretty little Mary Phagan slipped the net that the police must inevitably spread for him? In the author of the crime that shocked the city and State with its terrible brutality still at large? Is the mystery, an baffling in its myriad conflicting elements as it is retelling in its details, still as far from solution as it was when the beaten and bruised little body of Mary Phagan was found littered in a pile of trash and litter in a Porch Street basement? When the city detectives and Pinkertons picked up the twisted skein of evidence this morning they admitted that they were as badly tangled as when they laid them down after working incessantly upon them during the night.

MISS PEARL ROBINSON, sweetheart of Arthur Mullinax, the man questioned by the police in connection with the slaying of Mary Phagan. Her story cleared Mullinax of any suspicion of complicity in the crime which has shocked Atlanta.

When the city detectives and Pinkertons picked up the twisted skein of evidence this morning they admitted that they were as badly tangled as when they laid them down after working incessantly upon them during the night. They are positive, however, that the girl will be almost certainly dead before the case is solved. They follow each thread of evidence out to "What person will be the damning link in the chain?" It is holding the entire city in suspense. No other tragedy in years has so gripped the people as this one of the lightning, innocent girl lured to her death. What is the real truth is known with the accusing finger-point of guilt lay levelled at her. How Lee, the negro night watchman, against whom suspicion was strongly directed to day, although he did not at first, was held only as an important witness.

LOYALTY SENDS GIRL TO DEFEND MULLINAX

Her loyalty and devotion to Arthur Mullinax, one of the four men held in connection with the brutal strangling of Mary Phagan, form the only bright feature in a sordid and revolting crime.

She was arrested, and overcame, when she read that Mullinax had been held in connection with the gruesome killing. How could they associate him with such an act of a fiend and beast? When the first shock had passed she was all action. She would tell the officers their mistake. She had no sooner made up her mind than she proceeded to carry out her intention.

Police Expect Results

The police are confident that they will have in a few hours the identity of the slayer.

What difference did it make to her that her name instantly would be in the lips of everyone as the defender of a man pointed out by one witness as the mysterious person with little Mary Phagan the last time she was seen alive?

'Feel as Though I Could Die,' Sobs Mary Phagan's Sister

Among all the hearts that are bowed down in sorrow over the murder of Mary Phagan, the heart of the young girl's father, who died in the National Penitentiary factory child found dead in the basement of the factory Saturday.

For with her it is the suffering of youth, when the rose-tint of life has been lifted to show its track and terrible side in all its fallness for the first time. And it is all the more pitiful for her because it is the kind of suffering that brings to one the sense of despair and a later sadness that makes the whole world seem feverish with the same pain, no matter what happens.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLER MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Allison Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hangs over him, from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department stenographer last night for the use of the city detectives.

This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

He is contradicted.

St. F. Holliday, investigator for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had in fact seen Gantt with the Phagan girl.

He never even walked home with the girl, he insists.

One of the girls employed with Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girl at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 241 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, is said by the police to have told two girls, whom she said that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night, that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Reverse Statement.

Today Mrs Terrell reversed the statement that it said to have been made to the chief detective man and declared that Gantt not only was there, but slept with her son, Will.

Gantt's statement is full of contradictions.

"I do not deny going to the pencil factory Sunday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a pair of shoes. I had left there when I quit work about three o'clock in the evening met Arthur White, who works for the pencil company. With him and Mrs. J. M. Terrell, I went to the Broad Street, near Marietta.

"I didn't play, but sat down and watched them for several hours leaving there probably at 10:30 o'clock. I went to the home of my half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 241 East Linden Street, where I have been staying and she let me in the house. Mrs. Terrell's husband is superintendent of the Forsyth Building.

"I slept all night.

"I suppose she let me to about 11 o'clock and I went directly to bed. I slept all night until Sunday morning.

"I didn't hear of the murder until Sunday night when I went to call on a young woman with whom I have been seeing. She lives in the Chambers, of 18 Warren Place. I went there about 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

"Her brother Phil, who works at the National Pencil Company's plant, rushed into the room and said that a girl had been murdered in the basement of the factory. He did not know who it was. This was the very first I heard of the crime.

"I did not learn the horrible details of the murder until I read them in the papers this morning.

"I was not trying to escape when I went to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a crop near Marietta and was going up there to farm. I had made arrangements some time ago with my mother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply to fill that engagement.

"I would not harm any girl, least of all the daughter of Mrs. Coleman. Ten years ago I knew Mrs. Coleman when she was Mrs. Phagan and lived near Marietta in Cobb County. Mary was just a little girl then about four years old. From the time I knew her as little more than a toddling child until I went to work in the pencil factory last June I never saw her.

"I never went out with Mary after I started work in the factory. I never walked home with her. I never was any more to her than I was to the 178 other girls at the factory. I spoke to her as I might to any of the others, but that was all.

"The charge that I had any part in her destruction is the basest sort of a lie and an insult.

"Talk of Mabel's corpse.

"The determined fight instituted to gain the immediate freedom of Gantt was another of the features of the most sensational tragedy Atlanta has had in years. Backed by relatives of influence and a family of good people, Gantt was no more in his cell at police headquarters than an ordinary man.

"Either give him an immediate preliminary hearing or I will institute a habeas corpus proceeding," was the ultimatum delivered by Chief of Detectives Lanford by Judge George F. Goble, member of the law firm of Goble & Jackson, and relative of the accused man.

"It is an innocent man. He is as guileless as the babe in arms. He is entitled to an immediate hearing on this terrible accusation that has been made against him. Whether he must be granted or I will take a course to obtain his liberty."

"As Chief of Detectives Lanford refused the immediate hearing, the authorities awaited in expectancy to observe the success Judge Goble would

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

The men still in custody are:

- 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employe of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case believe they have a tangible clue. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unflinching catechism.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 144 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgian reporters whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of pretty Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When seen soon after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that she had not seen her son-in-law for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California, and she had not seen him since.

"Most certainly he was in his room here Saturday night," declared Mrs. Terrell to a Georgian reporter.

"He came in at 11 o'clock."

"I slept with me."

"I ate breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home.

"Yes," said Miss Willie Terrell. "Mr. Gantt slept with me Saturday night. And I had to wake up at 4 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

"No," had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared F. C. Terrell, brother-in-law of the accused. "A moment later, Mr. Terrell said that Gantt had been back in town for four or five days before he came to his house Saturday night."

"I heard my wife get up and let him in at 11 o'clock," declared Terrell.

A Georgian reporter called at the Terrell residence to find that Mrs. Terrell was in a state approaching a nervous collapse. Gantt was in bed at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

"I was in bed with my husband, who is engineer at the Forsyth Building, and he was in bed with me. My wife was interviewed by a reporter."

"Yes," said he, "Gantt had been gone three weeks and I hadn't seen anything of him. He was a quiet fellow in his habits, always came home early at night, and we were surprised to hear that he is suspected of this crime."

"The first I heard of it was Monday morning when my brother-in-law, J. M. Gantt at Marietta called and told me they had arrested Gantt."

"I did not see you just say that the detectives were here at your house Sunday afternoon and had searched your wife on Gantt's whereabouts," the reporter asked.

"Yes," was the reply, "but my wife

Atlanta and the "Mystic Shrine" Convention

Editorial in The New York American of Wednesday, April 23. The typical and now historic "Atlanta Spirit" is well illustrated in the way the Georgia capital has prepared to capture the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine for 1914.

The Imperial Council of the Shriners is one of the great convention prizes of the American years. Gathering from 8,000 to 10,000 Shriners—the very flower of Masonry—it is in numbers, in quality, in spectacular splendor and in social and fraternal importance scarcely inferior to the quadrennial convention of the two great political parties.

The greater cities of the country eagerly seek the honor of entertaining these princely Masons. Before the great Council, which meets in Dallas in May, Atlanta is going to press her cordial invitation to the Shriners to be her guests in May, 1914.

Atlanta discovered that it would require $60,000, raised in advance, to assure the Council of her preparedness to entertain. Atlanta prepared to do it. Her committees were appointed, the famous "Atlanta Spirit" was invoked to raise the required sum before sunset—in a single day.

By four o'clock on the day appointed Atlanta had raised, not $60,000, but $76,000, and was going on toward the $100,000 mark when sunset came.

The great social order of the Masons could not do better than accept the hospitality of the brilliant and historic capital of the New South. Atlanta is the Phoenix City of the Old South. It was leveled to ashes by General Sherman in 1864 and left with only 3,000 population. Thirty years later Atlanta banqueted General Sherman in splendid spirit upon the scene of his battle, in a city of 70,000, and now houses nearly 200,000 people in one of the most beautiful, brilliant and hospitable cities in all the country.

The destruction of Atlanta broke the backbone of the Confederacy and really had much to do with bringing a conclusion to the Civil War.

The "Atlanta Spirit" and the Atlanta men, from Henry Grady to John B. Gordon, have been great factors in the re-establishment of good feeling and the obliteration of sectional prejudice.

And Atlanta itself has more to offer in historic interests, in easy access, in splendid hotels, vivid entertainment, and in charming hospitality than any other city in the South.

A Lopsided Reciprocity

"The mystery of the oats schedule" has not yet been solved. It has not been explained—by Congressman Harrison or anybody else—why the new tariff bill should make a free gift to Canada of our oatmeal and rolled-oats business. That is what would happen without a doubt. For to lay a heavy tax on raw oats and let the milled oats come in free IS SIMPLY TO ARRANGE TO HAVE ALL THE MILLING DONE IN CANADA.

But the mystery of oats is only a detail of the wider mystery that shrouds the Underwood bill in all its bearings upon our trade relations with Canada.

For example, FLOUR is made free and WHEAT dutiable. This would destroy our four mills and drive them into Canada. Perhaps not QUITE all. For the case of flour is a little different from that of oatmeal—since only A FRACTION of the oat crop goes into oatmeal, while substantially ALL of the wheat crop is turned into flour.

The certain fate of the Underwood wheat and flour schedule would be to drive most of our flour-milling business into Canada and to compel our farmers to market much of their wheat there.

THE CANADIAN PRICE FOR THIS WHEAT WOULD FIX THE PRICE OF THE WHOLE AMERICAN CROP. This price would certainly be lower than any price our farmers have been accustomed to. They would lose money. And the wheat acreage of this country would shrink.

With American wheat prices finally adjusted to the lower Canadian level, some part of the flour-milling business of the United States might continue to be done in this country—though IT IS PERFECTLY POSSIBLE THAT OUR DOMESTIC PRODUCTION OF BOTH WHEAT AND FLOUR WOULD BE PRACTICALLY ANNIHILATED.

The Underwood bill puts a 10 per cent duty on SHEEP, but no duty at all on sheep PRODUCTS—wool, skins and nutmeg. This provision is perhaps intended to protect the American sheep-farmer. But the American sheep-farmer does not understand how it will prosper him—and this newspaper office does not.

Take all in all, THE NEW TARIFF BILL PROPOSES TO GIVE CANADIAN FARMING AND MANUFACTURING ENTERPRISES A TREMENDOUS BOOM—AT THE EXPENSE OF THE INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES. IT OFFERS CANADA ALL THAT WAS OFFERED BY THE TAFT RECIPROCITY BILL, WITHOUT EXHAUSTING ANY CANADIAN CONCESSIONS IN RETURN.

The arrangement is grotesquely lopsided. It is reciprocity running on one leg.

Under such an arrangement Canada could do what she pleased in OUR markets, while allowing us to do only what she pleased in her markets.

She could sell to us at the highest rate of profit and buy of us at the lowest rate of profit.

It would, for a time at least, maintain the highest scale of wages and the highest standard of living in the world, while driving us to a lower scale of wages and a lower standard of living than we have ever known.

In view of the complete one-sidedness of this tariff plan, and its immeasurable advantage to the Canadians over the plan for Canadian reciprocity that was wrecked two years ago, there is something satirical, if not sinister, in the news that Mr. Walter Scott, of Regina, Prime Minister of the Canadian province of Saskatchewan, is in Washington "urging a revival of the Taft reciprocity plan."

It is possible that this far-journeying statesman has not read the Underwood bill? Or may it be that, in a secret rapture of hope, he is seeking to accelerate the passage of the Underwood bill by an ostentatious effort not to notice it?

It is thus that our tariff horse-trader cheapens the real subject of his desire—to wit: by paying marked attention to the negligible merits of some other horse.

Avoid Debt as You Would a Harmful Drug

Endure Any Hardship Rather Than Buy Comfort at the Price of It

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

It is interesting to me to find how much more logical and discriminating men are than women, and it is always gratifying to me to be set right by a man when I make an error of judgment or of an untrue statement. The several occasions in this column I have expressed my inherent and cultivated horror of debt: I have said it was kin to disgrace, and urged mothers to impress their children with this idea.

When we come the good, clear-headed critic in the form of a business man, who writes me as follows: "Debt, for purposes of comfort, ease or pleasure, is to be condemned, not debt in a legitimate transaction, not for speculative purposes, but for real business, shows that a man has confidence in himself, respect for his own ability and determination to succeed."

Your article is helpful, commendable, wise, but you do not want it to limit any man's legitimate ambition or opportunity. I realize the truth of the words you say, but the distinction that should be drawn between different kinds of debt.

When we realize the value. Unless the moral nature is well developed and the ideal high, and self-respect and a fine sense of honor are the accompaniments of ambition, it is a dangerous thing for a young man to find himself able to start on the road to business or education on money he has borrowed.

When we realize the value. We are all more or less influenced by our personal experiences, and it has been my misfortune in past times to lend money to those who seemed deserving of such assistance, and to see with the exception of three people all become "leaguers" without any real sense of the responsibility they had incurred as obligees which would lead upon them to liquidate the debt.

I have seen men whom I had believed in the great straits, and who need it had seemed a privilege to supply, see the loan in extravagant ways, which would never have occurred to me—in carriage, where walking would have sufficed; in telegrams and long-distance telephone messages, where letters and postals would have answered, and in hotel bills, where daily restaurants would have sufficed.

How Can You Sing?

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

CAN the heart sing of joys it does not know? Your city's streets have never room for flowers; But budding crown with tall spiny-pointed towers.

And silent winds pass by—while softly slow, On gloomy ways your gray horizon lowers; Before the gusty your rain-walk city covers.

Wind, rain, or sun—each element's your foe; Yet, still of country joys you make your song: Our rippling brooks, our shady trellised bowers.

Our walls, our sentry, our gentle showers;—Bring budding blooms in rainbow-colored tints; You sing—and every country bird, long hours Put all those humming, droning, warbling notes

MARY PHAGAN AND HER AUNT IN VARIOUS POSES

WATCHMAN NEXT LEE IN STAND TEL'S HIS OWN STORY OF THE PHAGAN MYSTERY

Q. How long did it take Mr. Phagan to get into the house? A. About 2 o'clock. I waited because I wanted to go into the basement of my rounds, so I waited and went into the toilet in the basement.

Q. How did you get down into the basement? A. I went down the ladder and went back to the toilet. I set the ladder on the floor against the side of the toilet. I came out of the toilet and stepped up a few feet. I don't know just how far. I looked to see if the back door was all right, and to see if there was any fire in the basement. Then I left the ladder.

At this juncture Lee's testimony begins to differ materially with that of the officers, who said that the body was lying face downward.

Thought It Was Trick. A. Lee continues: "I thought it was something some devilish boy had put there to scare me. I went over and saw it was a body and I screamed. Then I called the police. I tried to get Mr. Frank."

Q. Whom did you call first? A. The police.

Q. What did you say? A. I was scared and I don't know what I said. I tried to tell them that I had found a dead body.

Q. How did you know the number of the police station? A. Mr. Frank gave it to me and told me to call it if anything ever happened around the plant.

Q. How was the air lying when you found her? A. On her back. Officers had testified that they found her on her face.

Q. How did you happen to see her? A. I saw her when I walked out to look for a fire.

Didn't See Whole Body. Q. Did you walk beyond that portion in the basement? A. Yes, sir. I just saw parts of her. I saw her legs.

Q. Did you put your hands on her? A. No, sir.

Q. What kind of an examination of the body did you make? A. None. I just looked and saw that it was a dead body.

Q. Was her head toward you? A. No, sir. I couldn't see her head until I had walked around.

Q. Did you see any bruises on her? A. No, sir. I just found and lots of scratches.

Q. What did you find her? A. On the flat of her back.

Waited for Police. Q. How was the house? A. On one side.

Q. You didn't touch her or make any marks? A. No, sir. I didn't touch her.

Q. After you called the police, did you go down into the basement here? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you come to turn her over? A. I didn't turn her over.

Q. How did you know she was dead? A. I knew she was dead because she was there. There isn't no white woman going to be there if she ain't dead. She was all stiff and bloody. I knew she was dead, how.

Q. Was Mr. Frank at the plant Sunday morning when the police took her away? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you come to see her? A. I was called when she came.

Q. How did you see her? A. I saw her when I went to the plant.

Q. How did you see her? A. I saw her when I went to the plant.

CONFIRMS LEE'S STORY OF SHIRT Negro Woman Says Man Accused of Phagan Crime Was Not Home Saturday Night.

Negro woman who had the courage to take a hand in the notice saved Arthur Wilson and Johnnie VonLobman, 18-year-old sawboys, from serious injury during their fight in Peachtree Street.

Young VonLobman attacked the Wilson lad with a heavy club, and the latter retaliated by banging a stone on VonLobman's head.

Both were injured enough to cause their removal to the Grady Hospital for patching before being turned out to the probation office.

GIRL ART MODEL DRUGGED, STOLEN Brother Says Rich Italian's Daughter Was Kidnaped by Their Father's Secretary.

Brother Says Rich Italian's Daughter Was Kidnaped by Their Father's Secretary.

PAIDELPHIA, April 29.—Lena Bursney, the 16-year-old daughter of Boston's wealthiest Italian importer, who has been famous in art circles as a model, and who disappeared from her home a week ago, has been traced to the city by her brother and detectives, who say she is held by black-headed kidnapers.

The girl's father, who is known as Mayor Boston's Italian mayor, reported many threatening letters which set forth that his daughter would be kidnapped.

Frank Borsney, who is directing the search for his sister, says the kidnaping was carefully planned under the leadership of his father's former private secretary, for whom his police are searching. The detective says that this man, Luigi Oliverio, disappeared at the same time the girl was last sight of.

It was also discovered that $25,000 personal funds which the girl carried with her were also gone from her desk at the Bursney place of work. It is said that two men compelling the girl to accompany them from the city by the use of force, which they forced her to take and which kept her in a most uncomfortable condition.

Peace envoys from various countries were also present at the ceremony.

Went Down Scuttle Hole On Ladder to Reach Body

Previous to Watchman Next Lee's testimony, three police officers, who were called to the pencil factory by Mary Phagan's body was found, testified. Their testimony, with the exception of such parts as were omitted to protect feelings, was as follows:

W. T. Anderson, police call officer on duty Sunday morning, was first witness.

"We went over in an automobile to the pencil factory and the negro body was found," he said.

Anderson told of the location of the scuttle hole, from which a ladder led to the basement, and of the location of the body.

"The body of the ladder I did not get anything," he went on. "On the left of the basement is a partition part of the way, forming a room. The body was at the lower end of the partition, a few inches from the partition and about six feet from the outside wall of the building. Her head was toward the front of the building. She was lying on her back. The clothing was very dark."

"I did not see the body until I reached it. There is a table on the opposite side of the basement, on the right side next to the ladder. There are tables, chairs and a stove. I did not see any of these things."

MOTHER PRAYS THAT SON MAY BE RELEASED

Gant's Mother, for Whom Mary Phagan Was Named, Weeps for Son.

In an easy chair in front of an open fire in a comfortable cottage in the city, Mrs. Mary Lou Gant, the mother of little Mary Phagan, weeps for her son.

For two days she sat in the same position, staring constantly with dry eyes into the embers of the dying fire, seeing in the clouds of smoke as they swirl upward into the chimney, visions of her son, caged in a felon's cell—her mind filled with the pictures of her boy struggling with the horrors of the "third degree."

The mother is Mrs. Mary Lou Gant. Her son is James Milton Gant, the young bookkeeper who is held by the police as a suspect in the terrible murder of little Mary Phagan. Mrs. Gant was prostrated when the news of her son's arrest was brought to her Monday morning.

Late Saturday evening she received a letter from her son saying that he was coming home Monday. The letter was filled with messages of love and only a mother can appreciate, and the heart of Mrs. Gant was filled with an unutterable joy.

Among the employees at the pencil factory Mr. Frank was unusually popular and yesterday when he was taken to headquarters for further questioning by the detective, several of the girls and women wept bitterly and protested loudly their belief in his absolute innocence of any complicity in the matter whatsoever.

ordinary lantern, the table of which some of the head men of the iron company.

Officer Anderson identified the chair with the lantern, and found her in the basement. He was very displeased.

Officer Anderson was called in again and asked to identify the dead girl's clothing. In answer to a question he said the girl's clothing appears were unfastened.

Q—Did the negro say it was a white woman or a negro when he recognized the body? A—No, he said she had been killed by a white woman. Q—Did he tell you how she was killed? A—No, he said she was on her back.

Negro Was Excited.

Q—Was he excited, A—Yes. Q—How long did you think the girl had been dead? A—I don't know much about that, but she was not much dead.

Q—Were there any signs of a struggle? A—No, behind where she was lying there were evidences of a struggle. We found a bloody handkerchief under the girl's feet.

Q—Did you see a handkerch? A—I did not. I did not see any evidences of the handkerch.

Q—What kind of investigation did you make? A—The first thing we did was to get the members of the family talked to me. Sergeant Brown instructed us to call some one to go with us.

Q—What Negro "Thought at First"? A—The negro was plain when he saw the body at first. He thought some one had laid something there to warn him. He said he did not go down there very much, some down that time to the toilet.

Sergeant Brown Tells His Story of Finding of Body

Sergeant L. B. Brown, the second witness in the inquest, corroborated Anderson's story of the finding of the body. Brown, who was in charge of the morning watch, was one of the four men who answered the call of the night watchman, News Lee. Brown was interested in the case.

Q—How did you get to the factory? A—All Officer Anderson and myself, myself and a man named Rogers—we call him "Blond"—went in Mr. Rogers' car to the factory.

Q—Did you see any indications of the body having been dragged? A—There was an impression on the surface over which we had come down something had been dragged along there, but the light was very dim and I was not sure.

Q—Did you find any papers? A—A couple of notes were picked up. One was found by Sergeant Brown and one was found by me.

"Was covered with dirt." A—Yes, the body was covered with dirt.

Q—Did you see any indications of the body having been dragged? A—There was an impression on the surface over which we had come down something had been dragged along there, but the light was very dim and I was not sure.

Q—Did you find any papers? A—A couple of notes were picked up. One was found by Sergeant Brown and one was found by me.

COUNCIL MADE TO GRAFT INQUIRY NEARLY ENDED

Aldermen Accused by McClelland Tell Own Stories—None Act as Prosecutor.

Contra's probe of the McClelland charges probably will be concluded this afternoon, Alderman John E. McClelland has completed his case, but declines to act as prosecutor. Assistant City Attorney W. D. Ellis, Jr., the city's legal representative in the matter has made it clear that he does not intend to appear in such a role, and the investigating committee has been content to let the witnesses tell their own stories. The defendants, however, are represented by able lawyers. Alderman McClelland is being defended by Attorney E. N. Roscoe & Foster for Aldermen E. N. Roscoe and F. J. Spradling. When Attorney Roscoe demanded more definite proof from Alderman McClelland, Attorney Charles T. Holden representing Alderman McClelland, made it clear that the committee had the power to obtain all the facts necessary to bearing on the alleged transactions. Alderman McClelland gave a new twist to his sensational account. He was telling the committee that Alderman E. J. Spradling himself had confessed to borrowing money from near-by dealers.

Alderman Spradling told you that as a friend and in confidence" asked Attorney Roscoe. "Yes," answered Alderman McClelland, "but his conduct since abounded me from any obligation." "Did you tell him," Alderman Spradling always vote the same on these near-by matters?" "Yes," answered Alderman McClelland. "My information is that Alderman Spradling is attorney for the elementary company." Attorney Roscoe demanded specific details. Alderman McClelland finally decided to give them. Later Alderman McClelland said this written statement: "Alderman McClelland is both mentally and physically so diseased and deranged as to be totally irresponsible. He is an ordinary man who made such a statement 'I will call him back if I see so quick it will make his head swim'."

Win Tale of Discoveries. Former Mayor Winn took the stand and told how he had found Alderman Maddox at work on a city square disposal plant. He said he dismissed Maddox from the plant. Mayor James L. Mayson ruled that the Alderman was within his legal rights. "Did you know he had discovered that Alderman Spradling had borrowed money from near-by dealers. He said that Alderman Spradling had asked to be appointed chairman of the police committee, and that he had decided to appoint him, although he was never told of Alderman Spradling's name. When I discovered these debts I called Alderman Spradling to my office and told him I could not appoint him." "Charles A. Dadd, city sewer contractor, said that he had a written contract with Alderman J. W. Maddox to produce his water. He promised to produce it. The City of Atlanta J. E. Page, date, charged with buying horses and mules for the city, will be taken up this afternoon.

New Jersey Bishop Selects Own Grave

Than, Although in the Best of Health, He Places Order for His Tombstone.

BRENTON, N. J., April 28.—Although the Rt. Rev. James A. McGoldrick, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Diocese of Trenton, is enjoying good health, he has selected his grave and given the architect an order for a tombstone. The bishop went to Lawrenceville, Ga., and called Stone for Agent Stone. He suddenly stopped in front of the grave and said, "I am here, I want to be buried." Several minutes later he was laughing. The bishop said he was not joking, that the record for the name was that he wanted to be buried in front of it.

M. RICH & BROS. CO. Annual May Silk Clearance

Wherein We Distribute New and Fashionable Silks at Saving of an Average Half

Rich's Annual May Silk Clearance starts to-morrow at 8:30 sharp. This is not a sale of shelf-worn tag ends, "buyer's mistakes," tender silks nor off shades. It is just the reverse—a sale of all the year-round staple grades and silks highest in Fashion's favor. Planned originally to profit by trade conditions—to help manufacturers and jobbers dispose of their surplus stocks, this May Sale has grown to be the largest trade movement of its kind in the South.

Manufacturers and jobbers recognize it—they know that no lot of silks is too large for us to handle if style, quality and prices are right. So we get first choice of their surplus stocks—it saves them time and "peddling around." Fully three-fourths of the silks in this sale are such surplus stocks—secured by our buyer on his special New York trip—and offered to-morrow for the very first time. The other silks come from our own select stock—silks which have been selling freely at their full price of a third to a half more than to-morrow's figure.

ANTI-JAP BILL TO PASS IN SPITE OF WILSON'S 'DON'T'

California's Governor, in Statement, Says Bryan's Protest Will Go Unheeded.

SACRAMENTO, April 28.—So far as the results of last night's conference between William J. Bryan and the California legislators are concerned, they have not advanced the cause of the President and his Secretary of State in the least.

When the conference was over there was a general knowledge that the anti-Jap bill prepared by Attorney General Webb, under the eye of the Governor, and with the advice of that Governor's confidential friends, will be passed by the Legislature and promptly signed by Governor Johnson.

The Governor today dictated a statement to the effect that conference with Secretary Bryan are over and that the time for passing the law has come. He said:

"The conference between the Secretary of State and Legislature were concluded last night. We all departed with Mr. Bryan and we did not discuss the bill. The anti-Jap bill is a measure of respect for the national honor and in no way endangers it. The anti-Jap bill is a measure of respect for the national honor and in no way endangers it. The anti-Jap bill is a measure of respect for the national honor and in no way endangers it."

"I think the majority of the legislators felt, and I certainly do myself, that no sufficient reason has thus far been presented to cause California to halt in any contemplated legislation. If any law is enacted it may be enforced, treaty obligations will be unconditionally observed."

Japanese Not Singled Out. The Japanese will not be singled out by any act. The classification made by the naturalization laws of the nation, established by the Constitution of California, and sanctioned by the laws of other States, will probably be followed.

Significance was given to the action of the State Senate in adopting as a substitute for the pending bill the one prepared by Attorney General Webb. The bill was adopted by the Senate last night and before the Legislature that the bill was not satisfactory to President Wilson.

'WE INTEND TO WIN,' SAY PONY CONTESTANTS

Contenders in Georgian-Sunday American Race for Twelve Shetlands Determined.

"We intend to win!" Every contestant who has entered The Georgian and Sunday American race for the twelve beautiful Shetland ponies announces his determination to win.

Participants of The Georgian and American's pony contest are announced again today.

And you see the picture of one of the jockeys yesterday? Did you ever see a sturdier, more intelligent, more reliable little animal anywhere? Well, the other eleven are just as attractive, and the odds are just the sort such fine animals are bound to pull. Naturally the children of Atlanta are all eager. Children Win Parent Vote. "My children have been teasing me for a long time since they've been old enough to think of such things," said a prominent business man yesterday. "The Georgian and Sunday American have been announcing free ponies and cars the youngsters won't let me rest. I don't think I have to let them try."

There will be keen contestants—children who have wanted a pony ever since they were old enough to think of such things. There are hundreds of children in Atlanta who have their eyes on the prize. Success of them will end the contest.

We have no thought that the contest will be a great success and will result in getting for The Georgian and American hundreds of subscribers, the friends of the children.

The great work in emphasizing it is that the time is entering in our minds that most of the prize-winners will be the children who start at once.

So soon in the nomination blank, which is good for 1908 votes at the start, being the vote campaign from Tuesday on, and start at once getting your friends to subscribe for The Georgian and Sunday American.

Write, while you wait, what you think of the contest and send it to the contest.

'LOOKS LIKE FRANK IS TRYING TO PUT CRIME ON ME,' SAYS LEE

A formal statement from New Lee Lee, the negro night watchman arrested after he had telephoned the police of the killing of Mary Phagan's mutilated body, was given to the public for the first time today. In it he made a sweeping denial of complicity in or knowledge of the crime and said: "It looks like Mr. Frank was trying to put the crime on me."

Reward $2,700. The Georgian's Offer of $500 Reward for EXCLUSIVE Information Leading to the Arrest and Conviction of the Slayer of Mary Phagan Has Caused the State, the City and Others to Offer Additional Sums. The Amount Now Stands $2,700.

NEW ARRESTS LIKELY; LEO FRANK STILL HELD; CASE AGAINST NEGRO

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl Begins, and Flood of New Light Is Expected To Be Thrown on the Tragedy—Lee Maintains His Story.

The Phagan inquest began today at police headquarters. It seemed likely when this edition of The Georgian went to press that a flood of light would be thrown on the murder mystery before the day was over.

Notwithstanding what the police said yesterday—that the mystery had been solved—it does not appear at this time as though it had been solved at all. Various statements have been made by the police officials, that so far have not been borne out by actual facts.

Chief of Detectives Lanford seems to think that there is more evidence against the night watchman, Lee, than any other person, although new mystery is added to this phase of the case with the announcement that other arrests would be made today.

Frank is still held by the police. Every effort to break Lee down and make him confess has failed so far.

Handwriting experts declare that Lee is the author of the mysterious letters that were found. The bloody stained shirt that belonged to Lee is one of the most important pieces of evidence yet discovered. There has been some doubt expressed as to whether this garment really belonged to Lee.

The inquest at 9 o'clock at the police station. The witnesses and jurors was summoned to meet there instead of at Bloomfield's undertaking establishment at the request of Chief of Detectives Lanford.

Many persons, thinking that the original plan would be carried out, congregated in excited and curious groups outside the Bloomfield building. When the news was spread that a change had been made there was a rush for the police station.

Coroner Dunsen had or had not professedly every witness who is known to have any knowledge of Mary Phagan, of the persons on whom suspicion has been cast, or of the circumstances which might have been connected with her presence in the National Pencil Factory and her foul murder.

L. J. Dewberry, of 302 Cooper Street, came to the inquest with the marks of an exciting experience in a fire early this morning upon him.

Dewberry was at the home of his brother-in-law, F. J. Goll, last night. Early this morning the building took fire and Dewberry escaped by the narrowest of margins. He was able to save his clothes and watch, but left his wallet in the flames. The remainder of the occupants did not save their clothes.

Excitement was high when the taking of testimony, but there were no signs of disorder nor of a demonstration against any of the prisoners.

Light will be thrown on the reason for the detention of Leo Frank in the police station all of yesterday afternoon and last night with the detectives insisting that he was not under actual arrest.

The detectives have been reluctant to say anything of the results of the severe interrogations they have given Leo and Frank. They will tell of these today when the Coroner's jury sits and decides who shall be held for an investigation by the Grand Jury.

The detectives are not satisfied with the centering of the damaging evidence on Lee. They are working up this morning on new clues which may connect others with the crime.

It is almost as certain that two of the prisoners who have been held in custody since the round-up of suspects began will be released today as it is that the negro lot will be held.

MARY PHAGAN AND HER MOTHER IN VARIOUS POSES

INQUEST ON TO SOLVE PHAGAN SLAYING CASE

light on Atlanta's gripping crime mystery has been summoned to appear before the jury today. A few will be only briefly questioned, but others whose knowledge of some of the phases of the mystery is believed to be important will be subjected to a more searching examination.

Net Closing About Lee, Says Lanford

Chief of Detectives Lanford was confident this morning that he and his department had completed a strong case to present to the Grand Jury for indictment. He said that the evidence against the negro night watchman at the National Pencil Factory had grown stronger since yesterday.

He declared, however, that there still appeared the strongest indications that another person, in all probability a white man, was involved in some manner in the crime.

Many puzzling questions have arisen since the closing of the net around Lee began.

The detectives have been utterly unable to trace the girl from the factory after she arrived there Saturday noon to obtain her pay from Leo Frank, the superintendent. They have interviewed every friend and every acquaintance of the girl. None of them saw her at any time Saturday afternoon.

If she was kept in the factory from Saturday noon, it was not Lee who kept her in the building or induced her to stay, for he was not in the building at noon.

Superintendent Frank used this statement to the police himself. He said that the negro came to the factory Saturday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. Frank said that he told the watchman that he should stay about the building during the afternoon, but that he should return about 6 o'clock.

Lee went and returned at the time set by his employer. This appears to be undisputed.

With this much ground of fact, these questions are being asked: "Who was the person, if any, who kept Mary Phagan in the factory, if she was kept there, from the time that she arrived to get her money at noon until the negro watchman arrived at 6 o'clock in the evening?"

Startling and Vital Questions
"If Mary was not kept in the building by some one during these hours, by whom was she induced to enter the building later in the day or at night—surely not, by any stretch of the imagination, by the negro?"

"Is it reasonable to believe that the negro could have lured her into the building after darkness had fallen, or, in fact, that she would have been about the building alone at this time? What could have brought her here?"

"If the negro is guilty of the crime, is it not almost certain that some other person, probably a white man, was responsible for her presence in the building—either a man who kept her there when she came for her pay or one who lured her there after Frank had gone to his home?"

"Where was Mary Phagan between 12 o'clock and 6 o'clock if the crime was committed after all the white men had left the building?"

It also is regarded by many as strange that the negro, as intelligent as he may be, did not burn or otherwise destroy the blood-stained shirt which he is said to have worn the night of the crime. Instead, the detectives say that he threw it in a barrel where it was found as soon as they made a trip out there. In spite of the declaration that there is evidence enough on hand to convict and hang the negro, the feeling persists that there are many things to clear up, if they have not already been cleared, by the detectives.

If the crime was committed between noon and shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the only persons in the building were Arthur White, Harry Deaham and Leo Frank, according to the evidence.

Hours Still Unaccounted For
If the crime was committed between shortly after 3 o'clock and 6 o'clock at night, Frank was the only man in the building, known to the public, since the evidence so far produced. Is there another man to be found?

If the crime was committed at some time after 6 o'clock, where was Mary Phagan all this time between noon and 6 o'clock in the evening? That question must be answered if the mystery is to be cleared up.

The public says the case is not concluded. They have not been given enough evidence of such a convincing nature as to bring them to the belief that the negro is solely responsible for the brutal strangling of the Phagan girl.

It is admitted that some of the circumstances are damning. The old shirt found in a barrel in the negro's home makes the case look very black for him. The notes seem to absolutely prove that he had a part in the tragedy—but convicting Leo Lee is far from clearing up the mystery, as the evidence stands to-day.

SPECTACULAR RAID ON SUFFRAGETTES
"Bobbies" Ransack London Headquarters Before Crowds—Arrest Five Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.
LONDON, April 29.—(Special Cable.)—A spectacular raid was being made today by the police in their campaign against militant suffragettes. For the second time the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union at Kings Way were raided. The raid was in a very noisy and somewhat unbecoming manner. The police entered the premises and allowed none to enter, while detectives searched the organization's letter file and a desk.

The leading members of the union, Misses Gair, Larkin, Barrett and Lister, were taken to the police station in a charge of malicious destruction of property and taken to the police station.

The police captured evidence said to be of the highest importance of the militant Miss Gair, Kathleen Banks, Janet and Ethel May.

CLOCK 'MISSES' ADD MYS TERRY TO PHAGAN CASE

Records Purport to Show Watchman Failed to Register Three Times Saturday Night.

Was Does the National Pencil Factory clock show? It was the clock of New Lee, the negro night watchman, to whom it was believed, records brought to the police station purport to show that Lee three times failed to punch the clock.

But Leo J. Frank, superintendent of the factory, told a deposing reporter Sunday afternoon that Lee had punched the clock regularly and that the clock records were all right.

Accepting the evidence of the records at the police station, the case was included by its introduction to the jury before. Although they appear to show that Lee failed three times to punch the clock, these misses were not consecutive and the intervals between punches were more than one hour.

The records show that the first alleged "miss" was not until well after midnight.

Where, then, was Mary Phagan from the time she drew her pay to the time she was found in the factory—about 5:30 Saturday night?

Makes Mysterious Still Deeper.
And if Frank's first statement was not a mistake and Lee did not miss three times, perhaps, how would Lee have so cleverly mystery and so add to the unimpeachable conflicting pieces of evidence.

MOTHER PRAYS THAT SON MAY BE RELEASED

Gantt's Mother, for Whom Mary Phagan Was Named, Weeps for Son.

In an empty chair in front of an open fireplace in a little child's room...

For two days she sat in the same chair, waiting constantly with her eyes fixed on the ceiling of the room...

The mother is Mrs. Mary Lou Gantt. Her son is James Milton Gantt, the young bookkeeper who is held by the police as a suspect in the terrible murder of little Mary Phagan.

Late Saturday evening she received a letter from her son, saying that he was coming home Monday. The letter was filled with promises...

At the sound of every footstep, and every time the wheels of a wagon crunched across the hard country road...

Mrs. Gantt is a mother who has been named for her son, James Milton Gantt, the young bookkeeper who is held by the police as a suspect in the terrible murder of little Mary Phagan.

NEW LEE ON STAND

AT PHAGAN SLEAYING CASE

Describes Finding of Body of Slain Girl and Events at Penick Factory Before and at Time of Discovery of Crime.

New Lee, watchman at the National Penick Company's factory, who notified the police of the discovery of Mary Phagan's body, told his complete story on the stand at the coroner's inquest today.

Lee was on the stand for more than an hour and was piled with questions intended to throw light on the tragedy. He replied to questions in a straightforward way, and in detail his story is substantially the same as he has made to the reporters ever since his arrest.

His most significant answers concerned his employer, Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory. Lee said that when he reported at 4 o'clock for work, Frank told him to go home until 6. He declared that Frank seemed excited, but added that he attributed that excitement to the fact that Frank had just discharged John Garritt, and might have feared trouble. He said he reported back for work at 6 o'clock and that a few hours later Frank called him up by phone from his home to ask him if things were all right.

The witness testified that his employer had never done this before. One of the important pieces of testimony given in the afternoon was by P. M. Berry, assistant cashier of the Fourth National Bank, who expressed the opinion that the set note written by Lee, which directed the detectives, was written by the author of the two notes found by the body of Mary Phagan. Berry wished this understood clearly as an opinion.

P. M. Berry, assistant cashier at the Fourth National Bank, identified one of the notes found by the girl's body as written by the same hand as a note written by Lee for the detectives. G. W. Epps, Jr., Mary Phagan's boy sweetheart, testified the girl had asked him recently to come to the factory to accompany her home, that Superintendent Frank had told him that the girl was going down to the front door and waiting until she came out, and that Frank had winked at her.

The Chief said he could not force him to testify as he was in the nature of a defendant, but Attorney Bessner said there would be no objection. L. E. Sorrell, on the stand this forenoon, reiterated that he had seen Mary Phagan with Arthur Mullinax at midnight Saturday night. His testimony and that of other witnesses is reported on page 4.

Went Down Scuttle Hole On Ladder to Reach Body

Previous to Watchman New Lee's testimony, three police officers, who were called to the pencil factory when Mary Phagan's body was found, testified.

W. T. Anderson, police call officer on duty Sunday morning, was on duty at the factory and the negro took it into the water where the body of the victim was.

Anderson told of the location of the scuttle hole, from which a ladder led to the basement, and the ladder was on the side of the building.

The body of the victim was found in the scuttle hole, and the police officers testified to the details of the discovery.

Q. How did you get into the basement? A. I went down the ladder and went back to the table.

CHARGE'S BASEST OF EYES, DECARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hanging over him from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department stenographer last night for the use of the city detectives.

This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a wide trail of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

He Is Contradicted.

R. P. Holloway, investigator for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gantt's own lips that he had been with the Phagan girl.

He never even recalled him being at the girl, he insists.

Mary Phagan, one of the girls employed with Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girl at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 284 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going east directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, is said by the police to have had two plain clothes men that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night; that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Reverses Statements.

Today Mrs. Terrell reversed the statement that she said to have been made in the first plain clothes men and declared that Gantt was not there, but slept with her son, Will.

Gantt's statement in full follows: "I do not deny going to the pool room Saturday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a game of check. I had left there when I had worked there about three weeks ago.

"After getting my check from the factory, I walked around town for a time and was about 7:30 in the evening when I went to the pool room in East Linden Street, where I have been playing for some time. With him I went to the Globe Pool Room in the rear of the house.

"I didn't play, but sat down and watched them for several hours, leaving there probably at 10:30 o'clock. I went to the home of my half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 284 East Linden Street, where I have been staying and she set me up in the house. Mrs. Terrell's husband is superintendent of the South Building.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

The men still in custody are:

- 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

V. C. Terrell, 217 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter today that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth on the detective and Georgian reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of little Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When seen soon after the discovery of the dead girl, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California.

When Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California.

"Most certainly he was in his room here Saturday night," declared Mrs. Terrell to a Georgian reporter today. "He came at 11 o'clock."

"I ate breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning and a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home."

"Yes," said little Willie Terrell, "Mr. Gantt slept with the Saturday night, and I had to wake up at 6 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my paper and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

"No," he had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared V. C. Terrell, brother-in-law of the accused. A month later, Mrs. Terrell said that Gantt had been back in town for four or five days and that he was extremely ill at the time of his being accused of the murder. He is just as combed of being cleared as if it was already done.

"Yes, I am sure my wife got up and let him in. I was awake at the time. And I saw him Sunday morning."

Mrs. Terrell declared that he had just left the police station where he had been held and talked with Gantt.

"How just as usual as a circus boy," said Mr. Terrell, "and he lay in the bed of his being accused of the murder. He is just as combed of being cleared as if it was already done."

"Yes, I am sure my wife got up and let him in. I was awake at the time. And I saw him Sunday morning."

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of a distinct finger print stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case have their last tangible clue. The Herkimer system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unflinching criticism.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta are relying more frankly than ever that they will be successful in the trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

Bartender Confirms Gantt's Statement

Charles W. McKee, of Columbia Hill, a bartender in the saloon of J. P. Hunter at 33 South Forsyth Street, whose identity comes from the National Pencil Company plant, corroborated to-day the story told by J. M. Gantt about leaving a pair of shoes in the saloon from Saturday night until Monday morning.

"The man I judge to be Gantt from the description came late in the saloon, but stayed only a short time," said McKee, "it noticed nothing suspicious about Gantt or the man who was with him."

Keoper of Rooming House Enters Case

J. W. Phillips, Think Couple Who Aired for Room May Have Been Gantt and Girl.

Was the young woman who, in company with a young man, applied to John W. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night, for a room, Mary Phagan, the girl who had just murdered her half-sister?

Phillips was very doubtful to-day.

He said the young woman was indecisive, and it is understood he positively identified her to city detectives and the County Solicitor.

Q. Did you see it anyone in after 6 o'clock? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see the door at 6 o'clock? A. No, sir.

Q. Who says in the photo from half past 5 to 6 o'clock when you're not there? A. Mr. Frank and the bookkeeper, and sometimes the lady who stays in the office.

Q. Who says in the photo from half past 5 to 6 o'clock when you're not there? A. Mr. Frank and the bookkeeper, and sometimes the lady who stays in the office.

Q. Was anyone working there after 6 o'clock Saturday night? A. Not that I know of. There were no lights and all the windows were like I left them.

Q. Did you see blood in the machinery room on Monday night? A. No, sir. I had to go through the room where they say the lady was killed, but I never saw blood.

Q. Would anyone have used the elevator and not look like it? A. No, sir.

Q. How was the body like when you went back with the officers? A. Like I found it.

Q. On its face or on its back? A. The same way, head.

Q. When did you turn out the escalator? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of lantern did you have? A. Just an ordinary lantern, head.

Q. How long did it take Mr. Grant to find the shoes? A. Very little time. He found his shoes and went out to the building after he had talked over the telephone.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Frank left the building during that time? A. He went outside. I don't know whether he came back in or not.

Q. Did you see Mr. Frank walk away? A. Yes.

Q. How did you get down into the basement? A. I went down the ladder and went back to the toilet, but the ladder on the floor against the side of the toilet. I came out of the toilet and stepped up a few feet, don't know just how far. I looked to see if the back door was all right.

Q. How long have you known him? A. Since I left the factory.

Q. Have you told everything that was said by you and Mr. Frank before he left the factory? A. Yes, sir, only only I offered him some bananae and he wouldn't take them.

Q. What was the dressing room like? A. It was a small room, just a few lockers, and a bench.

Q. Where were the drawers opened? A. In the dressing room.

Q. How did you find the body? A. I went to the factory on Monday night, and found the body in the machinery room.

CONFIRMS LEE'S STORY OF SHIRT

Negro Woman Says Man Accused of Phagan Crime Was Not Home Saturday Night.

If NewL Lee, the watchman, who on Saturday night was discharged from a bloody, stained shirt, when the negro woman with whom he worked, says she has seen him at home Saturday night, Lee's story that after committing the crime the man went home, changed the shirt, returned to the factory and then returned to the police, supporting his belief are the alleged omission in Lee's time clock checks during the night.

CLOCK 'MISSES' ADD MYSTERY TO PHAGAN CASE

Records Purport to Show Watchman Failed to Register Three Times Saturday Night.

LEO M. FRANK, Superintendent of the National Pen and Pencil Company's factory, still held by the police. Frank Taylor says he has given to the police every detail of his whereabouts to account for his time on Saturday and Sunday.

LEO FRANK'S FRIENDS DENOUNCE DETENTION

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pen and Pencil Company and one of the central figures in the sensational murder mystery surrounding the death of little Mary Phagan, is well regarded by a host of friends in Atlanta, who scoff at the idea that he is in any way implicated in the terrible tragedy.

His friends are all and in their denunciation of the efforts that have recently been made to drag his name into the affair as a principal.

Mr. Frank, 28 years of age, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., came to Atlanta about five years ago to take charge of the plant of the National Pen and Pencil Company. Three years later he married Miss Lucile Selig, daughter of Mr. E. Selig, of East Street, Atlanta Avenue, and has two children with Mrs. Selig.

Mr. Frank is a mechanical engineer and a graduate of Cornell University, and prior to his coming to Atlanta held a responsible position with the B. F. Stonebrink Co., of Boston, Mass.

Shortly after he came to Atlanta Mr. Frank was sent to Europe to study the art of pencil manufacture and is considered an expert in his line.

Mr. Frank is popular in Jewish social circles and an interested worker in several Jewish charitable organizations being organized locally.

Several of his most intimate friends, Arthur Haas of the firm of Haas & McNairy, Isaac Haas, president of the Southern Spring Bed Co., and Arthur Hayman, of the firm of Dreyfus, Brewster, Maxwell & Hayman, were highly incensed at the publication of the efforts that have recently been made to drag his name into the affair as a principal.

ARMED PRAYS THAT SON MAY BE RELEASED

Ganti's Mother, for Whom Mary Phagan Was Named, Weeps for Son.

In an easy chair in front of an open fireplace in a little hotel country farm house, sat an aged mother, with lines of suffering marking her face and her white hair, bending forward in prayer, that her son may be found innocent of the terrible crime for which he is held by the Atlanta police.

For two days she sat in the same chair, staying constantly with eyes fixed on the clock, waiting for the word that he would be released and she would again be free.

The mother is Mrs. Mary Lou Ganti. Her son is James Milton Ganti, the young bookkeeper who was held by the police as a suspect in the terrible murder of little Mary Phagan. Mrs. Ganti was notified of the death of her son at 2 o'clock Saturday morning. Her son had been away from home for three long weeks, and during that time had been working in an office in Atlanta, where he had been working.

Late Saturday evening she received a letter from her son, saying that he was coming home Monday. The letter was filled with messages of love that only a mother can appreciate, and the heart of Mrs. Ganti was filled with a unutterable joy. Eagerly she awaited the coming of her son, and when he came, she was glad to see him.

She had been expecting to see him at 10 o'clock Saturday night, but he did not come. She was expecting to see him at 11 o'clock, but he did not come. She was expecting to see him at 12 o'clock, but he did not come.

THE SUPREMACY OF THE LAW!

It should not be necessary to say that THE LAW of the sovereign State of Georgia IS SUPREME, that all branches of the judiciary have their proper functions, and that those presiding over various branches of our courts are honest and capable and will cheerfully safeguard all public interests, and at the same time perform their duties in a legal, time-honored way.

These trite remarks are published that the public may understand that trials by newspapers, by experts, so-called, and by other persons who have no judicial functions are valueless and no cognizance should be taken of them by anybody anywhere.

No Trials by Newspapers--The Courts Will Attend to All Judicial Matters in an Orderly and Legal Way, as Usual.

In its slow way, perhaps, the law may seem tedious to those who are unduly hurried by what may or may not be regarded as of importance, but in the end we all have FAITH IN OUR COURTS, IN OUR JUDGES, IN THE LAW AND THE SANITY OF OUR PEOPLE.

Therefore, let everybody, rich and poor, high and low, of whatever race or creed, look to THE LAW for judgment in a dignified way, and not to newspapers or sensation mongers for legal advice that has no basis whatever in any law book. It is time to recall Browning's beautiful words: "God's in His heaven, all's well with the world."

WHITENING WAS INEVITABLE, MAYOR CHARGES

Committee is Forced to Clear Men Accused of Grant 'Project Council'

GANDLER IS NOT SATISFIED

Chairman of Probers Says He Intends to Reconsider Thoroughly All Evidence.

Commenting on the announced intention of the Councilmatico staff probe committee to vindicate the three accused Aldermen Mayor Woodworth today declared that the Council's committee could be expected when members of Council knew of these conditions for months and never took any official notice of them. The committee is forced to clear the accused to protect Council.

Chairman John B. Gandler, alone of the members of the probe committee, was undecided as to whether the charge of corruption of Aldermen John B. McClelland at the conclusion of the investigation last night. He said he intended to consider thoroughly all the evidence again. The committee will meet Saturday to frame its formal report to Council.

What Accused Claimed. Gandler's defense of the three Aldermen was:

Alderman J. W. Maddox admitted having sub-contracted with the city but declared a letter from City Attorney James L. Maynard stating that his actions were not illegal. Alderman F. J. Spraying admitted borrowing money from beer dealers, but stated it was before he had been elected and that the loans were secured on the basis of friendship and not on account of any official position. Alderman L. N. Bagdikian's defense was that while he was a member of the firm of J. R. Lawton & Co., the selling of stock to the city by this company was contrary to his instructions. In other cases it was presented that he had sold worn-out stock for the city, at the request of Council and the departments, without receiving any pay for his services.

Both Aldermen McClelland and Mayor Woodworth said today that the committee could get further incriminating evidence if it so desired. How, however, was not stated.

Alderman Spraying told the committee how some of his friends in the business community had been told he was being prosecuted for funds just before his election to Council. He said: "While I have paid up one-third of it during the last two years, I have not yet been enabled to reclaim the whole held by the beer men."

"All of my actions have been honest and aboveboard," he said.

Man of Mystery Now Made Clear; Big Story Coming

This picture is odd. Running for three days in The Georgian without any comment, it has caused undue discussion as to who it is and what it is. The Georgian has been besieged with telephone calls and letters from its readers asking for an explanation. We do not wonder that you had some doubt as to why it is here. This is the answer:

The Georgian has purchased a serial story, more interesting than any other published here, which has been written by the author of the story. This picture typifies the story.

The answers will be judged upon their literary value and upon their analytical details. Address all answers to The Georgian, Editor, The Georgian, Atlanta.

ATLANTA LEADS IN DECREASE OF INFANT DEATHS

Mortality Rate Here Reduced 55 Per Cent, According to U. S. Census Bureau Report.

INDIANAPOLIS STANDS NEXT

City Health Officer Says Educational Work Has Brought About Ideal Conditions.

Leading an American view in the decrease of infant mortality for the past ten years, Atlanta claims to be one of the healthiest places in the country were represented by statistics of the United States Census Bureau, announced today.

Atlanta made the greatest showing, with a decreased percentage of 54.7 per cent. This was 16 points better than the next nearest city, Indianapolis, which had a percentage of 38.1.

Dr. Claude Smith, city bacteriologist, attributes the decrease to the over-riding campaign of various medical and educational agencies of the city, in which the care of infants has been the most important feature.

"Every effort has been put forth in Atlanta to decrease mortality, especially among infants, and the fact that Atlanta has shown the greatest decrease is gratifying," said Dr. Smith. "Great attention has been paid to the milk supply of Atlanta, which is such a vital factor in the infant's life. I feel that we have conditions under an perfect system. It is not better, than any other city in the country, but it is certainly not bad."

NEAREST THE NEIGHBOURHOOD; GIVES NEW ORNS

Watchman and Frank Go on Witness Stand This Afternoon--Dorsey, Dissatisfied, May Call Special Session of Grand Jury To-morrow.

A new arrest was made in the Phagan case this afternoon. Detectives arrested James Connolly, a negro employed at the National Penell company factory.

Connolly is a sweeper in the factory. The arrest was made on private information given over the telephone to the police. Connolly had been seen washing some clothing in the factory. He is about 30 years old.

Connolly, at the police station, told the detectives that he was washing his shirt because he had been summoned to the inquest this afternoon. The police were inclined to attach little importance to his arrest.

New Lee, the night watchman at the National Penell Company's factory, will again go on the witness stand this afternoon at the Coroner's inquest, to supplement his testimony of yesterday regarding the strangling of Mary Frank. Lee is said to have given important information to the detectives, after a two-hour cross-examination this morning.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, also will be a witness this afternoon.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey, it is reported, will call a special session of the Grand Jury to-morrow morning if the mystery is not cleared before night. Mr. Dorsey asserted today that he expected to hold a conference with Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford this afternoon and if necessary take the case into his own hands.

Called Inquiry Meeting. The investigation has been continuing, but the police have not been followed closely and there is much more to this than what has been brought out. FRANK TO TEST MARY PHAGAN

Features of Testimony. The principal features of the testimony that have been brought out so far are as follows: J. O. SPURR, of Carterville, Ga., testified that he saw a girl and a man standing in front of the pencil factory at 110 Saturday afternoon.

That Frank appeared nervous and apprehensive when he saw him that the factory at about 4 o'clock. SPURR left the night watchman, in the morning.

That Frank had NOT seen her since she was seen at 1 o'clock, that Frank did not see her again until 12:30 Saturday afternoon.

That he had inspected the basement and had found plain stains of a body being dragged from the elevator to the place where the body of Mary was found.

That he would have been almost impossible to see the body from the point the horse had hit him.

Miss Frances Hightower The announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Hightower and Mr. Gustave Beauregard Bissou, to take place Saturday afternoon May 3, at 3 o'clock, at the Druid Hills home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bedeay Hightower, is of great interest to Atlanta society.

"Judge's jury renders his verdict. After this the case will be turned over to the Solicitor General as the chief prosecuting officer of the Fulton County."

It is reported that a large number of witnesses are to be subpoenaed by the Solicitor General and that both Lee and Frank will testify.

The functions of a Governor's jury consist of hearing preliminary testimony, and holding persons under suspicion for a grand jury, which is the grand jury that finds indictments against those accused of criminal offenses before the Grand Jury is in evidence and is much more complete than before the Chamberlain trial.

The Georgia has purchased a serial story, more interesting than any Atlanta has had in years. This picture typifies the story.

Based on the picture, what in your judgment to the title ought to be of the story? Five dollars in gold will be paid in each of the five best literary judgments received.

Transparent, Tight
And Short Skirts
Criticized by Blease

South Carolina Governor, Being Evil Influence in the Fashions, Urges Reform.
COLUMBIA, S. C., May 2.—The transparent, tight or abbreviated skirt of present-day fashions affected by women that tends to strongly toward the style of the wearer is criticized as "indiscreet, imprudent, and unbecomingly revealing" by Governor Blease in a letter to the editor of the South Carolina News.

He says that the modern fashions will have a deteriorating effect on the young men of the South by "teaching the high regard for the virtue and purity and morality of our women, which has been characteristic especially of the ten men of the South."

The young women of the South, says Governor Blease, should stand before a light and have their bodies or some near womanly relative inspect their clothing before going on the streets. If the clothes seen this morning, he says, they are fit to wear, but if not, the girl should put on more clothes before appearing in public.

The governor advises women's clubs and similar organizations to at once take up the matter of dress reform before it is too late.

When the banks of Atlanta began paying 2 per cent interest on government bonds, the State treasury will be $10,000,000 a year. It is estimated that government deposits in Atlanta are about $100,000,000 a year. When the deposit is any one bank, not an actual deposit, go over a similar figure, a real situation must be made immediately to the treasury. In the case of Atlanta, the State treasury is a real situation.

Atlanta bankers think the move in the part of the Government. They say they think it should have been done before. Nearly all large banks in Atlanta have been closed and best demand interest on daily basis.

30,000 WOMEN MARCHED THROUGH HEART OF GOTHAM

Mrs. Richard Burleson Heads Great "Votes for Women" Army Up Fifth Avenue--While Zouaves Dance--Police Keep Perfect Order.

NEW YORK, May 3.—With the precision of soldiers 30,000 women suffragists and men sympathizers marched through the heart of New York city this afternoon in the most wonderful and brilliant "votes for women" demonstration ever held in North America.

Between 75,000 and 100,000 persons were massed along Fifth Avenue and a thunder of cheers greeted the marchers all along the line. There was no disorder. Twelve hundred foot and mounted police lined the route, and those who attempted to interfere with the procession met instant forcible resistance.

The new suffrage bill, costing 12 cents more than last year, trimmed only with ribbon, and the marchers were dressed in white, with purple, green and white regalia, led by sixteen burlesques, including Miss Lucy Allen.

Headed the parade were delegates from each of the nine states which woman suffrage is in effect. Each woman carried an advance guard carrying an American flag.

Each member of the union carried a little green box to be used as a votum from which to deliver convincing arguments in favor of suffrage.

Zouaves Dance on Belmont. The police barred the "White" marchers from the Belmont race track, and the women danced on the race track.

Last night, as a part of preparation for today's parade, the suffragists were given in the Metropolitan opera house. Three hundred of the most famous women who live in Spain were to come to France.

Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, in New Pulpit, Charged With Romanical Loanings.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, long known as a prolific writer of tales of adventure and romance, has been elected of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Mount Vernon, for six weeks to be face-to-face.

The Rev. Edwin H. Rice, pastor of Trinity Church, in this place, sought Bishop Doane to have before him a complaint that Mr. Brady indulged in "unauthorized practices," the specification being that he burned incense at religious services.

He declared Dr. Brady should join the Roman Catholic Church.

ANALYSIS OF BLOOD STAINS IN THE PHAGAN MYSTERY

Three Former Employees at Pencil Factory Are Summoned to Testify, Expected That Frank and Watchman Will Be Questioned Further.

It is reported that three young women, former employees of the National Pencil Factory, will be important witnesses for the Coroner's jury in the Phagan case on Monday.

Dr. Claude Smith, city bacteriologist, was asked by the police today to make a chemical analysis of the bloodstains on the shirt found in the back yard of the home of Lee.

The extract was given to Dr. Smith by Detective Hooper. The detectives are hopeful that by scientific tests and comparisons it will be determined whether the garment was a young man's. Dr. Smith said that he does not make the examination until some time next week.

It is said that an offer would be made to have the shirt analyzed for a private investigation. The shirt will be returned at a cost of $200. Mr. Frank has not yet given any testimony before the Coroner's jury, but it is planned for him to be heard on Monday. It is also likely that Lee, the night watchman, will be examined still further.

When the Coroner's jury verdict is rendered the case automatically goes to the Grand Jury. Solicitors Dorsey and the Grand Jury will not take up the case officially until the Coroner's jury has concluded its investigation.

It is not likely that the body of the unfortunate girl will be submitted to any further examination, as it is believed that the body has been identified.

Without a jury being allowed to see either Frank or Lee, although counsel had been given the right to do so, the jury will see the body.

The release of Arthur Mulhax and J. St. Clair indicates that the detectives are confident of the identity of the girl left the pencil factory after receiving the pay on Saturday.

Without assuming a coroner's case the Coroner's jury will do it more than likely that both Frank and Lee will be held for the Coroner's jury, where the real test of evidence will be made.

It is the only statement that the lawyers for Frank made in that he will voluntarily be the defendant in the case.

It is reported that the body of the unfortunate girl will be submitted to any further examination, as it is believed that the body has been identified.

Without assuming a coroner's case the Coroner's jury will do it more than likely that both Frank and Lee will be held for the Coroner's jury, where the real test of evidence will be made.

Vote 35 to 2 on Birdall-Thompson Measure After Heated All-Night Debate. BRYAN PARTLY VICTORIOUS

Man of Mystery Now Made Clear; Big Story Coming

SACRAMENTO, May 3.—The California Assembly today voted unanimously to suspend the constitutional procedure and put the Senate antitrust bill for a final vote without the first and second readings. This action was taken when majority leaders in the lower House received word from Governor Johnson that he accepted this plan.

SACRAMENTO, May 3.—The California Senate, by a vote of 35 to 2, today passed the Birdall-Thompson bill prohibiting the ownership of land for agricultural purposes in California by aliens not eligible for citizenship in the United States. The measure permits a three-year leasehold by aliens. It was adopted after an all-night session.

The Governor has purchased a serial story, now interesting to many Atlanta fans, from the author of "The People's Choice" in California. This plot, which is the story of a woman, is being published in the "Atlanta Georgian."

In the Wicked Marriage Market of Ancient Babylon

"The Marriage Market at Babylon," the Great Painting by Edwin Long, R. A., Which Shows the Babylonian Fathers Selling Their Daughters.

The Cut, Forty Feet Deep and Several Hundred Feet Long, Which Begins the Excavation of the Palace of King Nabonidus. When An Excavation Was Made There Were Found the Ruins of the Old Marriage Market.
Copyright by Underwood & Underwood, New York, 1912.

Kerubs Before the Tree of Life, a Bas Relief Found on the Site of the Marriage Market.

THE VERY SPOT WHERE THE BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTERS OF BABYLON WERE PUT UP ON THE AUCTION BLOCK UNCOVERED BY THE GERMAN EXPEDITION WHICH IS DIGGING UP THE GREATEST CITY OF THE PAST

THE site of ancient Babylon's marriage market, the peculiar auction at which the old Assyrians put up their daughters for the highest bidder has just been uncovered by the German Oriental Society, which is digging the ruins of the city out of its overshadowing sands. The marriage market is one of the traditions of the splendid and central metropolis which has stuck in the memory of mankind for ages. Herodotus, that interesting and padding old Greek who has been called the "Father of History," speaks of it, and the phrase is hard worked in the newspapers and fictionists' vocabularies of the present day.

The Oriental Society, cutting down forty feet to the pavement of ancient Babylon, ran a shaft along the Royal Quarters, where the palaces of Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar stood. In doing so they stumbled across the ruins of the marriage market. They found still intact the carved room in which the auctioneer stood and knocked down the beauties of Babylon. The market itself occupied a rectangle of 150 by 150 feet. It was open to the air on all four sides, but most probably shielded from the sun by rich silken awnings devised to shelter the women and to bring out their charms. The block upon which the daughters of Babylon stood while being bid for was in the center of the spectators, and is richly carved with Kerubs, who worship and protect the Babylonian Tree of Life. Inscriptions discovered leave no doubt that this was the actual marriage market of Babylon.

While the marriage market has been called a wicked custom, and has served for countless sermons as a warning, it had some very excellent points. The daughters were not sold into slavery, but into honorable wifehood. Of course, they had no choice, and the element of bidding is probably repugnant to many women of to-day, but the customs of the time were different, and it is extremely likely that the Babylonian girls looked forward with much delight to the day when they would be auctioned off to some one who cared enough for them to pay large sums for them.

Besides that the sale of the beautiful daughters enabled the ugly ones to get married, and this in a very odd way. The money that was paid for the beauties was given as dowries for the ugly ones.

Herodotus says once a year the maidens of age to marry in Babylon were collected at the marriage market "while the men stood around them in a circle." Then a herald called up the damsel one by one and offered them for sale.

"The best," continues Herodotus, "with the most beautiful, whom she was sold for so small sum of money, he offered to sell the one who came next to her in beauty. All of them were to be sold as wives. The richest of the Babylonians who wished to wed bid against each other for the loveliest maidens, while the humbler wife seekers, who were indifferent about beauty, took the more homely damsels with marriage portions.

"For the custom was that when the bid had gone through the whole number of the beautiful damsels he should then call up the ugliest—a cripple if there chanced to be one—and offer her to the man, asking who would agree to take her with the smallest marriage portion. And the man who offered to take the smallest sum had her assigned to him. The marriage portions were furnished by the money paid for the beautiful damsels, and thus the fairer maidens portended out the uglier. No one was allowed to give his daughter to the man of his choice; nor might any one carry away the damsel he had purchased without finding half ready and truly to make her his wife. If, however, it was found that they did not agree the money might be paid back. All who blood might come even from distant villages and bid for the women."

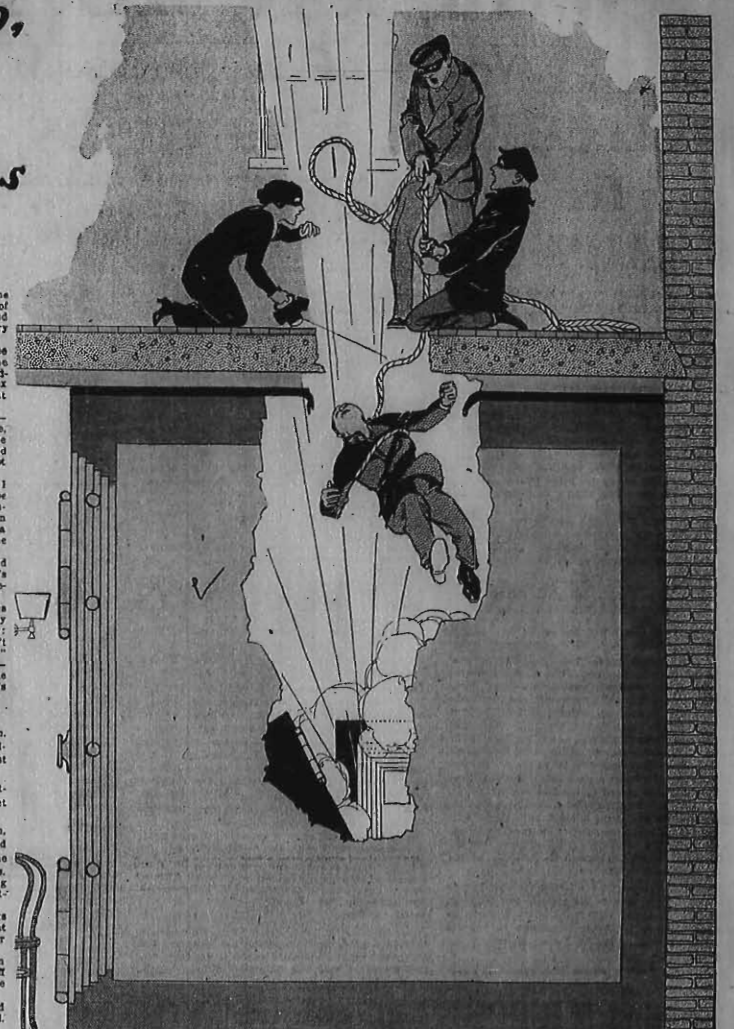

Herodotus also says that this was a general custom throughout ancient Babylonia. "The Babylonians had another unique philanthropic habit.

"If a man were taken ill in the street every passerby had to stop and ask him what was the matter with him. Being told, it was incumbent upon the passerby, if he had over him some ailment, or if he had known any one who had the ailment, to tell the sufferer what had cured him or what had cured another.

"The tradition does not tell us what was the result of this wholesome prescription, but if a sufferer could prove that a man or woman had passed him without giving him the benefit of their knowledge, he could collect heavy damages.

DES PERATEE REKS CRIMINALS TAKE;

How Ned Lyons, My Husband, Was Shot and Many Narrow Escapes of My Companions.

What Happened When We Robbed a Bank "By Request."

There was too much danger of the gaining hole we had dug under the wardrobe being discovered to admit of any further delay. We quickly completed our arrangements to rob the bank that very night.

Shortly after midnight we put out all the lamps and lit our dark lanterns. I crept out of the window and the streets were deserted.

George Mason took a small sledge hammer, and with one or two well directed blows opened up the hole in the floor wide enough to admit his body. Then he tied one of a long rope under his arms and we lowered him down into the vault.

For several minutes we waited breathlessly, listening to George as he fumbled around the vault by the light of his dark lantern. Then we heard him call in a hoarse whisper:

"I'm in. It was a close call. I was afraid it would be. Every cent of the money is locked up in the small steel safe. I'll have to come up and get my tools."

While the men were waiting for the safe to be opened and separate steel to get the actual cash into. Leases, documents, account books and sometimes bonds and stock certificates were all left in the big vault, but money and things of special value are usually locked up in the inside steel compartments.

With some difficulty we hauled him back up. From his bag he selected the drills he thought he would need and from a bottle poured out what seemed to me an extra generous quantity of powder.

"Be careful and not use too much of that stuff," I called as he disappeared again through the hole. "Ned always said that was your worst failing."

"Don't you worry," Sophie, he replied, "it will take a good big dose to open this safe."

For several minutes we sat there listening to the rasping of his drills against the door of the safe. Just as we felt the quick tap on the rope, which was the signal to haul him up, we saw the flare of his lighted match and heard the sputter of the fuse.

We pulled on the rope for all we were worth, but before George's body was within two feet of the hole there came a blinding flash, followed by an explosion that shook the building.

Although dazed by the shock and half blinded by the cloud of dust and poisonous fumes which poured up through the hole, we managed to keep our hold on the rope and haul our helpless comrade out of the death trap in which the premature explosion had caught him.

"George!" I called as we lifted the rope from under him. "He never answered and I thought it was only a corpse that we laid gently on the floor. His hair and eyebrows were completely burned off, his face and hands were as black as coal and he was bleeding from an ugly wound in the head."

We forgot the money we were after—the danger of being caught in our anxiety for our wounded friend. One of the men brought water and I tried to force a drink of brandy down his throat. It seemed an age before he came to his senses, his eyes being one eyebow and roughly pushed me aside.

"At first I got too quick for me," he said; "but don't be foolish—I'll be all right in a minute. Look and see if the noise has roused the town."

I looked out—there was not a soul in sight. The bank's thick walls are so thick that it stood at some distance from any other building had evidently prevented the explosion being heard outside.

We got the Bank's Money

Although suffering intense pain, George insisted on going back to get the money. It was no easy task for the vault was full of suffocating smoke. There was no time to lose, as the watchman might return at any minute.

After a few minutes we hauled him up for the third time.

"That charge will blow the safe door to splinters, but there's every dollar it contains," he said, handing me several packages of bills.

I counted the money and had hard work to conceal my surprise when I found there was only $30,000. But, as Mason thought himself lucky to escape with his life and as the other two men seemed well satisfied with the amount, I said nothing.

We started at once for Chicago, where a few days later we divided the spoils. As I had expected, the bank's loss was placed by the newspapers at $200,000. A large reward was offered for the capture of the robbers. I was pleased to note that the president's story of the amount taken and of the complete mystery in which the affair was shrouded seemed to be generally accepted.

After the excitement had died down the to the rasping of his drills against the door of the safe. Just as we felt the top of the rope which was the signal to haul him up, we saw the flare of his lighted match and heard the sputter of the fuse.

We pulled on the rope for all we were worth but before George's body was within two feet of the hole in the floor there came a blinding flash, followed by an explosion that shook the building.

Although dazed by the shock and half blinded by the cloud of dust and poisonous fumes which poured up through the hole, we managed to keep our hold on the rope and haul our helpless comrade out of the death trap in which the premature explosion had caught him.

I looked out—there was not a soul in sight. The bank's thick walls are so thick that it stood at some distance from any other building had evidently prevented the explosion being heard outside.

bank president came to Detroit to see me. Worry over the possibility of his crime being discovered had wrecked his nerves and he was such a poor broken specimen of an old man that I did not have the heart to demand the additional $50,000 which he had promised me. As I tore up our agreement and handed him the pieces, he said:

Facing a Lynching Mob

"My criminal folly has ruined my peace of mind. Thanks to your help, I have saved my family from disgrace, but the worried and nervous strain of my delinquency and the bank robbery have killed me. My doctors say I have heart disease, and have but a few months to live. I wish I had known two years ago what I have since learned—that crime does not pay."

The desperate risks every criminal has to run often come through no crime of his own but through his association with other criminals. Two of the most exciting events in my varied career happened to me through my loyal effort to save the life of my friend, Tom Bigelow, a well-known bank clerk and burglar.

It was in Mount Sterling, Kentucky, that all this happened. I was there on a perfectly legitimate errand and did not idea that any of my criminal friends were in the vicinity.

There was a circus in town that day, and the long main street was crowded with sightseers. I had been watching the parade with the rest and was on my way back to the hotel for dinner when I heard some one call my name.

Looking around I saw a young man, Johnny Meaney, a young bank clerk, whom I knew well, pressing his way through the crowd toward me. He was full of breath and in the greatest agitation.

"Sophie," he whispered in my ear, "they've just caught Tom Bigelow with the bank's money on him and they're going to lynch him."

There was no time to ask him more—before the last word was fairly out of his mouth he had disappeared in the crowd.

I followed him and found the cashier had taken advantage of the excitement created by the circus parade to rob the Mount Sterling Bank. While the cashier was standing upon the counter to see the passing parade, Johnny had crawled in under his legs and taken a bundle of money out of the vault.

He got safely out with his plunder and was waiting in a buggy outside when the cashier discovered his loss and had been a great outcry. Before Tom had time to slip out of his tracks a hundred wild hands in the crowd had made him a prisoner—then some one started the cry "lynch the Yankee robber!" and some one else brought a rope.

In the excitement nimble Johnny had dashed down the street but had chanced to catch sight of me and had passed me the word of our friend's peril.

and from a bottle poured out what seemed to me an extra generous quantity of powder. "Be careful and not use too much of that stuff," I called as he disappeared again through the hole. "Ned always said that was your worst failing."

We pulled on the rope for all we were worth, but before George's body was within two feet of the hole there came a blinding flash, followed by an explosion that shook the building.

Although dazed by the shock and half blinded by the cloud of dust and poisonous fumes which poured up through the hole, we managed to keep our hold on the rope and haul our helpless comrade out of the death trap in which the premature explosion had caught him.

"George!" I called as we lifted the rope from under him. "He never answered and I thought it was only a corpse that we laid gently on the floor. His hair and eyebrows were completely burned off, his face and hands were as black as coal and he was bleeding from an ugly wound in the head."

We forgot the money we were after—the danger of being caught in our anxiety for our wounded friend. One of the men brought water and I tried to force a drink of brandy down his throat. It seemed an age before he came to his senses, his eyes being one eyebow and roughly pushed me aside.

"At first I got too quick for me," he said; "but don't be foolish—I'll be all right in a minute. Look and see if the noise has roused the town."

I looked out—there was not a soul in sight. The bank's thick walls are so thick that it stood at some distance from any other building had evidently prevented the explosion being heard outside.

and from a bottle poured out what seemed to me an extra generous quantity of powder. "Be careful and not use too much of that stuff," I called as he disappeared again through the hole. "Ned always said that was your worst failing."

"Don't you worry," Sophie, he replied, "it will take a good big dose to open this safe."

For several minutes we sat there listening to the rasping of his drills against the door of the safe. Just as we felt the quick tap on the rope, which was the signal to haul him up, we saw the flare of his lighted match and heard the sputter of the fuse.

WILSON ASKS U.S. SUPREME COURT RULING ON LAND BILL

President, Bryan, Moore, McReynolds, Sen. Bacon and Rep. Flood Will Hold Conferences as to Government's Next Step.

Japanese Will Either Send Ultimatum to Washington or Else They Will 'Save Face' Behind Ineligible Clause in the Law.

Empty War Chest Precludes Any Danger of Hostilities Being Declared by Yellow Nation at Present—Agreement Probable.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., May 3.—The House, after a two hours' recess, reconvened at 8 o'clock (10 o'clock Atlanta time) tonight and resumed debate on the anti-land bill.

The measure was finally passed by an overwhelming majority. The Senate early to-day passed the bill by a vote of 36 to 2.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVER, (Editorial Correspondence of The Sunday American).

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Now that Secretary Bryan's mission to California has failed, and the California Legislature has passed the plan, and the President is inclined to test in the Supreme Court by some action instituted or backed by the Government, the chairman of the Senate committee to pass anti-Jap legislation held to be in violation of existing treaties.

The conference was called to map out the future course of this international controversy. The conference was attended by President Wilson, Secretary Bryan (he returns in time), Assistant Secretary John Bassett Moore, Attorney General McKim, and the chairman of the Senate committee on Foreign Relations and Representative Flood, chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. Perhaps other senators and representatives and dignitaries may be invited.

The Japanese Consul at San Francisco was instructed to cable the verbatim report of the conference to Tokyo as soon as it passed, and the administration of both nations are anticipated considering the essential point, whether or not the law violates the American-Japanese treaty now in force.

A high official in our Government declares that should the Japanese Cabinet and the House decide that the California law violates the treaty there will be only two conditions and one condition.

Two Conditions.
First, Japan in order to be consistent with the latest demands made by her Ambassador at Washington must send her final word of ultimatum to our Government.

Second, that Japan will show she uses the slight change in eligibility which permits the "ineligibility to citizenship" to save her face and will step down from the hostile position she has assumed—as she did once before when President Roosevelt sent her battleship fleet to Japan on an friendly visit.

In case Japan made an ultimatum, two remedies are discussed at the State Department.

First, that the United States, through the State Department, should offer to intervene in the event Japan makes the demand for the alien law tested before our Supreme Court.

Second, that Secretary Bryan, presiding the policy prescribed by President Wilson, should invite conference with the Japanese Ambassador with a view to bringing about a modus vivendi.

Cheeks and Loud Stripes President in Costume of Court Bernstorff at Horse Show.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—There was one costume no one at the horse show failed to see to-day. And it was not worn by a woman, either. It belonged to the form of Count Von Bernstorff, the ambassador who represents Kaiser Bill. Here are the plans and specifications.
Suit of black and white checks; each check about a half-inch square; shirt of white silk with bands at cuffs and around up and down the front; Socks of silk, in match in shade and the hand embroidery, voluminous silk tie to match both socks and socks; and big Panama hat, gilded by a mesh to match the embroidery, socks and tie; white buckskin shoes.

10,000 MARCH FOR SUFFRAGE

Nearly Every State in Union Represented in Huge Parade on Fifth Avenue.

EVERYTHING IS 'ORDERLY'

Policewoman Heads One Delegation Jauntily Swinging a Nightstick.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Ten thousand persons—mostly women, of course—marched up Fifth Avenue to-day to make the most effective and orderly demonstration of America has ever seen. Nearly every State in the Union was represented in the parade. Displaying the swaying head of 15 degrees and the added lead from the pavement, not one marcher faltered. The thousand women appear to be a fair estimate. The anti-suffrage 'industrial' at Fifth Avenue and Third Avenue Street numbered 1,012. This included 57 bandmen and 17 policemen. A private count showed 2,912 in all. At 10 o'clock, the thousands who thronged Fifth Avenue from Union Square to Fifty-ninth Street saw a sturdy group of women that marched with the precision of Uncle Sam's regulars.

Men of Note In Line

Senators and Assemblymen, members of the bar and the ministry, and with the exception of the mayor, most of his office staff, and members of the public library, where 1,000 poor husbands, including some of the foremost political, professional, business and social leaders of the city, reviewed their marching ways. No one was seen in the reviewing stand. The special order of the day, issued by Miss Linn Mithell, grand marshal, was: Friends, march, cut their dead.

The Jap and the Negro: Why the South Should Understand the Racial Problem of the West

By JAMES B. NEVIN

If California has the right to look for respectful sympathy and tolerant patience in any direction nowadays, since the question of native difficulty of status of a foreign and obnoxious race upon her soil so actively has presented itself, surely it is in the direction of the South.

The South, of all the sections, should understand and gravely appreciate the problem that California has to solve, and the tremendous necessity of solving it in the light of reason and common sense, and while yet it is relatively young.

In many ways the Japanese are an objectionable to the people of the Pacific Coast, it seems, as were the negroes in the Gulf Coast. California is the white population of California so much will tolerate a Japanese on terms of racial, political or business equality than a Georgian will tolerate a negro.

The customs and manners of the Orientals are very distasteful to the white population of California. The way they live, the things they do, the habits they have, and themselves in the peculiar and unaccountable of their ways and habits—these things may be all right, but they are not the things that neighboring folk are of a kind. In fact, they are not the things that place and character in the extreme.

Whatever Dr. Dilemma's understanding about the actions may be, however, and despite the mistakes that may have been made, the disposition of the nation to turn the negro problem over to Dr. Dilemma, who has proved himself to be something of a specialist in the most trying of cases, is a color brother, and who knows his own mind and does not understand the matter.

Grover Cleveland once remarked, "I wish the burden of the world's best fitted to lift it." And that is true, whether the burden be located in Georgia or California.

Purchase California did not appreciate the fact that all day degrees of friendly feeling she will not fall back on her own reconstruction days down South. It was because California did not know and did not understand, and it was not until she had been California to-day for the South that she began to understand the matter.

California knows more about the Japanese race in that all day degrees of friendly feeling she will not fall back on her own reconstruction days down South. It was because California did not know and did not understand, and it was not until she had been California to-day for the South that she began to understand the matter.

Deadly Spotted Fever And How to Fight It

Cerebro-spinal meningitis, one of the most deadly diseases known to science, is the subject of an article published this week by the Georgia State Board of Health. In this article, the health authorities analyze the disease, its course, its effect, its treatment and prevention.

The article follows:

Cerebro-spinal meningitis, spotted fever, or as it is more commonly called, spinal meningitis, is one of the most terrible and fatal of all diseases, the mortality running up as high as 100 per cent in some local epidemics.

Although the cause of the disease has been known for a number of years, the exact method by which the disease is produced is yet a mystery. It is thought to be spread from man to man, but it is also known to be spread by insects, and it is also known to be spread by animals.

The disease is characterized by a sudden onset of fever, headache, vomiting, and stiff neck. The patient usually becomes delirious and may die within a few days. In some cases, the patient may survive, but the disease often leaves permanent damage to the brain and spinal cord.

Prevention is the key to fighting this disease. It is important to keep the patient in a cool, well-ventilated room. The patient should be kept lying down and should not be moved. The patient should be given plenty of fluids and should be kept comfortable.

The Georgia State Board of Health has issued the following instructions for the treatment of cerebro-spinal meningitis:

1. The patient should be kept in a cool, well-ventilated room.

2. The patient should be kept lying down and should not be moved.

3. The patient should be given plenty of fluids and should be kept comfortable.

4. The patient should be kept in a dark room.

5. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no noise.

6. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no light.

7. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no sound.

8. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no smell.

9. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no taste.

10. The patient should be kept in a room where there is no touch.

Character of the Disease.
Cerebro-spinal meningitis is a disease which is produced by a minute microorganism, the meningococcus. It develops only at about blood-heat, and it is most common in the summer months. The disease is characterized by a sudden onset of fever, headache, vomiting, and stiff neck. The patient usually becomes delirious and may die within a few days. In some cases, the patient may survive, but the disease often leaves permanent damage to the brain and spinal cord.

Course of the Disease.

SAW LEAD MAN'S SOUL FLY AWAY

Mrs. D. H. Baldwin Describes 'Remarkable Scene at Beside of Father-in-Law.

NO HALLUCINATION, SHE SAYS. Shadowy Form About One Foot High Arises From Lips as He Breathed His Last.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Mrs. David H. Baldwin declares reverently that she saw the soul of her father-in-law, Nathaniel H. Baldwin, take its flight from its tenement of flesh.

Mrs. Baldwin was 38 years old when he died on April 18 last in his son's home, 17 Christopher street, Manhattan, N. Y. Long a building contractor, he had retired from business because of ill health.

'I read it as a sarcasm,' she said, with feeling. 'I have spoken of it only to those near and dear to me. It was supposed to be a joke, but an authentic account of what had occurred would prevent the circulation of such a story.'

'I had no hallucination. It has been suggested to me that I saw my own father's breath, but I saw his lips as a distinct form. Like a butterfly's wings, but much larger—a foot long, a foot wide, perhaps, but fringed in shape. As it arose I knew he was dying, and I was certain I saw his soul leaving him.'

'My first thought was to slap the form, because I could not understand how anything like it could be in the room. But I turned toward Mr. Baldwin, who almost immediately I turned away. The form had disappeared.'

About 12:10 the little girl who was killed came in.

Q. Was any one with her when she came in?

Q. Did you hear her talk to any one as she came in?

Q. How did she come in?

A. I think she asked for her pay.

Q. How did you get her pay envelope?

A. I asked her what her number was.

Q. What do you remember her number?

A. No.

Q. Have you looked up her number since her death?

A. Yes, but I never do not remember what it was.

Q. Did she say anything when she came in?

A. Yes, she said she had been out turned and asked if she could have her pay.

Q. Did you check the pay roll after paying her?

A. No, we were not supposed to.

Q. Where was she when she asked about the metal?

A. She was in the outer office next to the door.

Q. Did she call back as an afterthought?

A. It seemed like an afterthought.

Q. What was the amount of her envelope?

A. One dollar, twenty, I think.

Q. How was it made up?

A. She had worked part of the Friday part of the Saturday and part of the Sunday.

Q. Do you remember how the pay was given her?

A. She was given it in the outer office.

REFERENDUM ON JAPANESE LAW IS LIKELY

Move Is Begun to Put Japanese Question to a Vote in State of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—The anti-alien bill, as soon as it becomes a law, will be attacked by referendum. Word came from New York that California at present is in a state of confusion, consulting their business representatives, had joined in an urgent appeal which will be telegraphed to C. C. Moore, chairman of the Panama-Pacific Exposition board, asking that immediate steps be taken to petition for a referendum on the issue, so that it may be put squarely up to the people of the State.

The signer of this message, it is reported, assert to Mr. Moore their belief that the movement running through the State Legislature will eventually injure the prospects of California's great world's fair.

At the same time Assemblyman Shover, of San Diego, in Sacramento, said that the referendum movement now is on. He asserted yesterday that the Senate bill, as affirmed in the Assembly, did not fit the requirements of the State as regards aliens, and consequently the Senate, and that a recall would be made necessary.

NEWSPAPERS

PHAGAN CASE
Body of Slain Girl Examined and Bloodstains on Factory Floor Analyzed

NEW THEORY ANNOUNCED
Solicitor Believes Victim May Have Been Thrown, Still Alive, Down Elevator Shaft.

The force of detectives working under the supervision of Solicitor Dorsey Tuesday night will make another searching investigation of the factory basement of the National Vanishing Company.

The search for clues will be continued under the glare of a string of electric lights that have been installed in the last twenty-four hours for the express purpose of revealing the obscure corners and dark places that hitherto have been illumined only by the unsatisfactory light of ordinary lanterns and the few flickering gas lights that are in the basement.

All of the new evidence obtained on Tuesday already is new and startling evidence seems to indicate just what it indicates the officials refuse to say, and the reporters, therefore, are merely guessing at what may be or may not be the actual facts.

Solicitor Dorsey was reluctant to admit the nature of the most recent discovery. Mr. Dorsey issued the statement that he considered the disclosures which have been made by the forensic physicians and chemists working under his direction as having a most important bearing on the solution of the crime.

The statement so far as I can ascertain is that the body of the girl was found in the elevator shaft. It was found in the shaft of the elevator which was found in the shaft of the elevator which was found in the shaft of the elevator.

BOBOWE STILL HELD

BY HOUSTON POLICE
IN THE PHAGAN CASE

Atlanta Police Do Not Believe He is Implicated in Tragedy--Letters From Women and 50 Photographs of Girls Found in Prisoners Trunk.

The Atlanta police and State officials say they place little importance in the arrest of Paul F. Bowen, the former Atlanta youth who is being held by the Houston authorities.

Bowen's trunk was found a mass of clippings telling of the Phagan killing, and at least 60 photographs of girls and young women. Several times while he was being questioned, Bowen is said to have contradicted himself.

Atlanta detectives have investigated thoroughly Bowen's history in Atlanta and declared Tuesday afternoon that they have virtually established an alibi for him. Having satisfied themselves of the probability of Bowen's innocence, they are continuing to their original line of investigation and have abandoned the theory that Bowen could have been involved.

The local authorities have asked, however, that Bowen be held until a more complete investigation can be made. They think he will be able to prove his innocence and say that they have letters in their possession which practically establish that Bowen could not have been in Atlanta on the date of the crime.

One letter, addressed to Charles Timmer's office in the Southern Railway office, was postmarked April 23 at Lufkin, Texas, and did not reach Atlanta until April 27, the day after the killing in the National Patent Factory basement.

Another letter, which is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, was written by Bowen to an Atlanta friend and was mailed at Tyler, Texas, April 20 as Bowen was on his way to Texarkana, Ark. These letters lead the local authorities to believe that Bowen can not reasonably be supposed to have come the hundreds of miles just in time to commit the crime and then immediately jump a train to return to Houston.

EXTRA POLICE HAVE BEEN AND STARTING EVIDENCE NOT YET MADE PUBLIC

Body of Mary Phagan Exhumed, Bloodstains on Clothing Analyzed and Every Effort Made to Uncover Additional Clues in the Mystery.

Solicitor General Dorsey, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Chief of Police Heavers, and all men working under them in the Phagan case seem thoroughly satisfied with the progress they are making in the great mystery. They are actively engaged in many unknown directions—as they say, “piling up evidence to strengthen the case.”

What evidence the officials have other than that which has already been made public they refuse to divulge. Solicitor Dorsey declines to make public his case in the newspapers. He is investigating every phase of the matter through trusted men working under his own direction.

It is perfectly proper for the chief prosecuting officer to withhold any and all evidence until such time as he may present his case to the Grand Jury.

That there is new and startling evidence seems true, but just what it indicates the officials refuse to say, and the newspaper reporters, therefore, are merely guessing at what they hear, or may not hear, the actual facts.

Solicitor Dorsey was recent about the nature of the most recent discovery, but his guarded statements indicated that he considered the discovery which have been made by the chief of detectives, physicians and chemists working under his direction as having a very important bearing on the solution of the crime.

Mr. Dorsey issued this statement in an interview attributed to him that I asked him if he was not paid by counsel for Frank to protect him.

This statement, so far as it concerned Mr. Dorsey's salary, did not mention the name of counsel and did I believe that counsel had been guilty of any such violation.

It is known that a more thorough and exhaustive examination of every article and every article having any connection with the Phagan case was made in the first few days of the investigation. I believe the direction of Solicitor Dorsey, who has made a more complete study of the case than any other official in the city.

Mr. Dorsey, however, who was the first to examine the body of the Phagan girl, is making a more complete examination of the body of the Phagan girl, which was found in the cemetery at Marietta.

It is known that a more thorough and exhaustive examination of every article and every article having any connection with the Phagan case was made in the first few days of the investigation. MAN TAKEN BY THE POLICE OF HOUSTON STILL IS BEING HELD

Youth Arrested in Connection With Phagan Mystery Protests Innocence, Woman Says He Moaned, "Why Did I Do It?"—Local Men Skeptical.

Chief of Detectives George Peyton, of Houston, Texas, sent the following telegram to Chief of Police Heavers of Atlanta, Tuesday:

"An ill holding Bowen as per your wire this morning. He did stop at 185 Ivy Street. He denies everything. The evidence here is very strong against him. Mr. A. Blanchard, formerly of Atlanta, first to suspect, gave first information about him. Answer soon."

HOUSTON, TEXAS, May 5.—Paul P. Bowen, arrested because of the suspicion of the local authorities that he was connected with the murder of Mary Phagan at Atlanta, denies Tuesday all knowledge of the girl and the crime except as he read of it in the newspapers.

A score of allegations telling the story of the little girl's death were found in the young man's room. His only explanation was that Atlanta was his home town, and he was particularly interested in the crime because of that.

The police here regard as more significant than the findings the stories of Bowen's actions in his room at the St. Jean Hotel, and later at a rooming house. Roomers in adjoining rooms are said to have been disturbed by his moans and wailing and by his constant pacing of the floor.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" he declared to have been the words he moaned in his room. Complaint was first made to the local authorities and later the police were notified.

Bowen was arrested last night by Chief of Police Peyton, Chief of Detectives Peyton and Detective Hunter at 1220 Texas Avenue.

Stuffy Denis Criss, Houston, talks to him for more than an hour at the police station, but Bowen still denies any knowledge of the killing of the young girl. "I don't know anything about the affair and you had to show me around," Bowen said.

Bowen was taken from the rooming house to the police station and was placed in a cell across the hall from the chief of detectives' office. He does not talk and did not undress to go to bed.

Bowen complained of being hungry. He declared that he was tired and nervous, then sat down on the side of his cell. Next he stepped to the window and inspected it. He was going to be allowed to starve to death or to be given some breakfast.

The Whirlpool of Life--It Carries Us All to the Same Spot

Slowly at First, Then More Rapidly, Then Like Lightning the Years Go.

Have you read Edgar Allan Poe's wonderful description of the whirlpool? If you have not read it, get it at the public library and read it.

Then ask yourself what you would do, if you were in that whirlpool, not to stay a few seconds and then disappear, but to stay thirty, or fifty, or eighty years, and then disappear.

If you were in a whirlpool of water, of sound and of terror, such as Poe described; if you knew that in the end you must go down into that central hole, your only thought would be to be as well as you could as you went round and round, and to prove your sympathy for the others going round with you.

Well, YOU ARE IN A WHIRLPOOL, and you are going eventually--you and all other human beings--down into that central hole that we call the grave.

Life is a whirlpool. It moves very slowly on the outside edge in babyhood.

Then it moves more rapidly, and presently, as old age comes on, the years fly by, so that we can hardly tell one from another--and at last, down we go, head first and feet up, where thousands of millions have gone before, and where thousands and thousands of millions will come after us.

As we go round and round, the circle getting narrower each time, let us do in this real whirlpool of life what we would do or think we would do if we were in the whirlpool of the ocean--play our part well, and show kindness if possible to those near us.

A picture such as that on this page appears especially to the mind of a poet. And so we have persuaded Mr. Montague to write some verses to express the thought that fits the picture.

Chinese Republic Is 'Recognized' at Last

After eighteen months of dragging, promises, postponements and heart-breaking delays the Republican Government of China has been actually sighted from Washington and its existence 'recognized'.

It is to be feared that the acknowledgment has come too late to yield any commercial advantage to the United States.

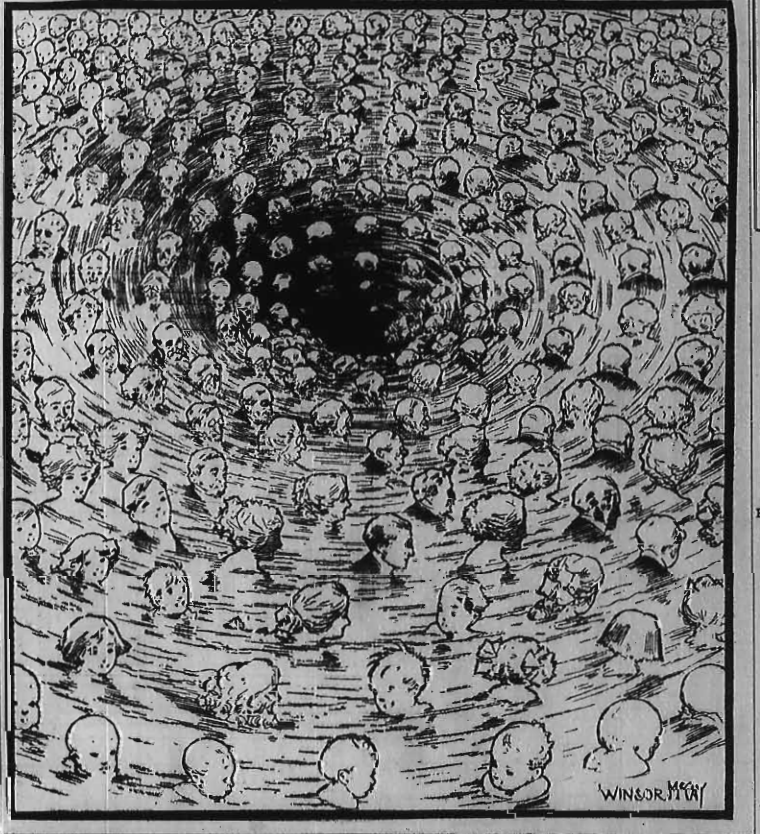

China is ready to establish free and representative institutions in a nation that has lived for ages under an arbitrary rule.

It is hard to establish free and representative institutions in a nation that has lived for ages under an arbitrary rule.

The deferred promise and the two months' delay of the present Administration at Washington have served as an index of the delay of the former Administration.

FOR THE LAST YEAR AND A HALF THE BRAIN PATTERS HAVE HARDLY SUFFERED A MOMENT TO GO BY WITHOUT A FRESH EFFORT TO SEND THE GOVERNMENT AT WASHINGTON TO DO JUSTICE TO CHINA--AND TO REAP THE REWARD OF THOSE WHO, IN THE GREAT AFFAIRS OF WORLD POLITICS, ARE BRAVE ENOUGH TO CAST THEIR BREAD UPON THE WATERS.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on 'The Stage'

It Is a Painfully Hard and Monotonous Life--Actresses Meet Many Adventures, but Few Real Temptations--A Girl Might Be Tempted More in a Ball Room.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX. Copyright, 1911, by the W. Publishing Co. HEREIN was a young woman who longed to go on the stage.

No one would object seriously: she felt the life was full of temptation, and her daughter would not be strong enough to resist them.

Finally, however, the young woman secured an opening and became a member of a road company.

Without doubt the young unprotected actress is subject to many temptations, experiences and annoyances by those in private life. Yet, from such a life as hers she cannot escape.

The question of deciding whether to become an actress or not does not seem to me to be one of morals so much as one of real satisfaction.

The Price of Babies

An Eight-pound Baby, He Says, Is Worth Three Hundred and Sixty-two Dollars a Pound, and the Greatest Economic Leakage Is at the Cradle.

WRITTEN FOR THE GEORGIAN By REV. DR. JOHN E. WHITE Pastor Second Baptist Church

A WELL-KNOWN social worker, Mrs. Catherine Smith, appeared before the Massachusetts legislature recently and admitted not long ago and testified that a traffic in babies, as prices ranging from $1 up to $700 were being carried on in Boston.

The fact of the Black Bay home, she said, "is a poodle dog. They run from $100 to $1,000, while babies are being sold from $1 to $10, depending on whether they are blonde or brunette."

Now, what do you think of that? Babies by the Pound. Another report from the baby exchange, however, will set our alarms at rest. The harshed depression in babies in the Black Bay district of Boston has the effect of determining the baby market.

The greatest politician in the country is Professor F. W. Fisher, the author of a remarkable book, which now goes into circulation. The college and university students will be pleased to know that the author and scientific fiction.

The point toward which attention is directed is the problem of economic loss at the cradle. A nation is financially bankrupt when it ceases to produce babies.

According to Professor Fisher's figures, each human being in the country who lives after the normal terms of years, after deducting his time it has cost to maintain him for that period.

POICE HAVE BEEN AND STARTING TO MAKE PUBLIC

Body of Mary Phagan Exhumed, Bloodstains on Clothing Analyzed and Every Effort Made to Uncover Additional Clues in the Mystery.

Solicitor General Darsey, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Chief of Police Beavers, and all men working under them in the Phagan case seem thoroughly satisfied with the progress they are making in the great mystery. They are actively engaged in many unknown directions--as they say, "piling up evidence to strengthen the case."

What evidence the officials have other than that which has already been made public they refuse to divulge. Solicitor Darsey declines to make public his case in the newspapers. He is investigating every phase of the matter through trusted men working under his own direction.

It is perfectly proper for the chief prosecuting officer to withhold any and all evidence until such time as he may present his case to the Grand Jury.

That there is new and startling evidence seems true, but just what it indicates the officials refuse to say, and the newspaper reporters, therefore, are merely guessing at what may be, or may not be, the actual facts.

Solicitor Darsey was reticent about the nature of the most recent discoveries, but his guard statements indicated that he considered the disclosures which have been made by the force of detectives, physicians and chemists working under his direction as having a most important bearing in the solution of the crime.

Mr. Darsey issued this statement in an interview attributed to Quinn that I asked him if he was not told by counsel for Frank to protect Frank.

This statement, so far as I am concerned, is absolutely false. Throughout my talk with him I did not mention the name of counsel, nor did I intimate that counsel would be guilty of any such conduct.

It is known that a more thorough and minute examination of every locality and every article having any connection or possible connection with the slaying of Mary Phagan is being made now than was undertaken in the first few days of the mystery. Under the direction of Solicitor Darsey, chemists have made a new analysis of the blood found on the factory floor, where the Phagan girl mysteriously struggled with her assailant.

Dr. H. P. Harris, director of the State Board of Health, is making a second examination of the body of the slain girl, which was buried in the grave in the cemetery at Macon.

Whether it was from any of the sources that Solicitor Darsey obtained his new lead in tracking down the slayer, he would not say, but would only report that every clue that offered the slightest ray of hope would be followed to the end.

YOUTH TAKEN IN BOILER BOILER OF HOUSTON STILL IS BEING HELD

Youth Arrested in Connection With Phagan Mystery Protests Innocence. Woman Says He Moaned, "Why Did I Do It?"--Local Men Skeptical.

Chief of Detectives George Payton, of Houston, Texas, sent the following telegram to Chief of Police Beavers, of Atlanta, Tuesday:

"Am still holding Bowen as per your wire this morning. He did stop at 185 Ivy Street. He denies everything. The evidence here is very strong against him. Mrs. A. Blanchard, formerly of Atlanta, first to suspect, gave first information about him. Answer soon."

HOUSTON, TEXAS, May 6--Paul P. Bowen, arrested because of the suspicion of the local authorities that he was connected with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta, denied Tuesday all knowledge of the girl and the crime except as he read of it in the newspapers.

A score of clippings telling the story of the little girl's death were found in the young man's room. His only explanation was that Atlanta was his home town, and he was particularly interested in the crime because of that.

The police here regard as more significant than the clippings, the stories of Bowen's actions in his room at the St. Jean Hotel, and later at a rooming house. Roomers in adjoining rooms are said to have been disturbed by his moans and mutterings and by his constant pacing of the floor.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" he is declared to have repeated to himself incessantly. Complaint was first made to the hotel authorities and later the police were notified.

Bowen was arrested last night by Chief of Police Davison, Chief of Detectives Payton and Detective Hilton at 1325 Texas Avenue.

FRANK LEE HELD AGAIN QUZZED BY CORONER

Coroner in Small, Smoke-Filled Room Breathlessly Follows the Phagan Slaying Inquiry.

In a small, crowded and smoke-filled room at police headquarters, available to the public, a hearing began today to determine whether Lee was the slayer of Mary Phagan.

The situation was tense and pregnant with possibilities. The fact that the investigation of the case is rapidly drawing to a close, coupled with the admissions of officials that it was an important episode, would develop from the examination of the witnesses.

Prominent among the spectators were the attorneys for Frank Phelan, Lee and the witnesses, and the friends of the witnesses. Long before the inquest was called, a large number of spectators had gathered around the witness stand.

At 10:30 a. m. the inquest opened with the testimony of the witness, Harry T. Baker, who testified that he saw Lee at the scene of the crime.

At 11:30 a. m. the inquest continued with the testimony of the witness, Harry T. Baker, who testified that he saw Lee at the scene of the crime.

New Lee Galled to Stand for Further Examination—Coroner Will Put Case in Hands of Jury by 7 o'Clock, It is Predicted.

The Coroner's Jury found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered Lee and Frank held for the grand jury.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, and New Lee, night watchman, both of whom are being held in connection with inquiry into the death of Mary Phagan, were recalled to the witness stand late Thursday afternoon at the inquest.

Frank was given a more searching examination as to movements on the day of the tragedy than he underwent his first day on the stand, and an apparent endeavor was made to show that he was not at home at the time he had stated in his previous testimony.

Frank, however, answered the questions readily, and Coroner Donohue was not able to trip him.

In Frank's previous testimony he failed to mention several persons who were at his home when he said he was there Saturday night, but when he was questioned in regard to this point Thursday afternoon he gave their names at once.

After Frank's testimony, witnesses were introduced who testified that Frank had at times indulged in familiarities with the girl in his factory.

Following this testimony, the coroner excluded all persons in the room, including the newspaper men and the attorneys for Frank, while Dr. Hurl, county physician, made his statement.

New Lee preceded Frank on the stand.

Lee's testimony was in regard to the private conversation he had with Frank when Lee was first arrested. He declared that Frank had told him that they would "both go to jail" if they were not careful, but the effect of this testimony was largely nullified by Frank's earlier statement that the remark or a remark to the same effect was suggested by one of the detectives in the hope of getting some information on the night watchman.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT THE EVIDENCE IN THE PHAGAN CASE WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS

LATE this afternoon the police and detectives engaged on the Phagan case said they were satisfied with the progress being made before the Coroner's Jury. Apparently all other clews have been abandoned, and the present line of police activity would seem to center around Lee and Frank. Whatever evidence the police have they refuse to disclose. The entire mystery will be taken up by the Grand Jury within the next few days.

Frank of Nervous Nature; Says Superintendent Aide

The Grand Jury was resumed at 2:15. Only a small crowd was present. Miss Hattie Hill, stenographer for the Pencil Company, was called. She said she had been contacted with the company since December 4. From a pile of papers taken from the room, she identified several letters and envelopes. She said she had written to Frank and also a number of other persons. She said she had selected eight letters that she had written. She said she did not know how long it had taken her to write the letters. Miss Hill looked at the cash book and the book containing the minutes of the meeting. She said she had seen it in the store she had done on April 24. Couldn't identify Writing. Coroner Donohoe did not explain the interrogations of the witness about the cash book. He asked very excitedly to know just what work she had done on the day of the murder, and he asked her to identify her own writing. Several questions were asked her regarding the cash book. She said she could not identify it. She said she had written to Frank and also a number of other persons. She said she had selected eight letters that she had written. She said she did not know how long it had taken her to write the letters.

THE DAY OF SPECIALISTS
This recently appeared in an Atlanta paper a sensational editorial on the "Towers of Concentration." It told of the wonderful things that can be accomplished by sticking to one thing—in a business and you know it to be true—that if you start out to do a thing, backed by courage and determination, you will not let it alone until you have made it a specialty at its best.

A NEAT, CONSERVATIVE SUIT STYLE
It's the "KNICKERBOCKER" a Recent Model by Alfred Benjamin & Co.
American Foremost Tailors.
This is a model that is certain to win favor with men of dignified taste and with those who can have but few suits and, therefore, must confine their selections to the more conservative cut and patterns. The coat is of the three-button style and is made without a vent. The vest is medium high cut, and the trousers, which are straight enough to be stylish, may be had with or without cuffs. You couldn't select a more serviceable suit for Twenty-Seven Fifty Carleton Shoe & Clothing Company Thirty-Six Whitehall'
