PROSECUTION ATTACKS MINCEY'S AFFIDAVIT

S. CRAWFORD BEGINS FIGHT FOR HER FREEDOM.

STATE WILL CONFIDENT OF CASE

Story of Negro Who Says He Was Eyewitness of Slaying Disbelieved by Solicitor.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and Attorney Frank A. Hooper, engaged in the prosecution of Leo M. Frank, were induced Monday to break the silence they have maintained grilling the negro who says he was an eyewitness of the attack upon Mary Phagan, gave evidence sufficient to shake their conviction of Leo Frank's guilt.

Both declared emphatically that neither the affidavit of W. H. Mincey, insurance collector, nor the reported confession of the negro, were in any way reliable. Mincey, who is said to have been an eyewitness of the attack upon Mary Phagan, gave evidence sufficient to shake their conviction of Leo Frank's guilt.

Mincey Affidavit Disputed. "I sincerely doubt," said Mr. Hooper, "if that Mincey affidavit ever will be heard from again as a seriously considered piece of evidence in the Phagan case. To my mind it means absolutely nothing. The statement, undoubtedly, was made in a place where the prosecution places no dependence in it and will be able to prove it if his signer is called as a witness in the case."

Green Important Witness. "Much depends on the testimony of the negro, Will Green, who has been tracked through a half-dozen States and is now believed to be in the hands of detectives in Birmingham, Ala. The report that he had declared he was an eyewitness of the attack upon Mary Phagan and had asserted that it was a negro who was guilty of the crime gave weight for the first time to the possibility that direct evidence would be produced at the trial of Leo Frank."

RELEASE OF WIDOW ON BOND IS SUGHT

Accused Woman Declares She Welcomes an Investigation
by the Grand Jury.

The first step to secure the liberty of Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, held at the Tower on a charge of killing her husband by poison four years ago, was a conference between the prisoner and her attorneys early Monday morning.

The hearing probably will be before Judge W. D. Ellis, Burton Smith and Heaton Arnold, the attorneys who represented her in the civil hearing of the will case, will her attorneys in the pending criminal hearing and at the trial about the Grand Jury find a true bill when it investigates the case.

Justice of the Peace C. E. Girardeau was looking for Mrs. Crawford in Atlanta to serve the warrant charging murder, she was riding through the country to Atlanta in a buggy from Tucker, Ga., where she had gone to visit an old friend.

Before the attorneys left the jail it was understood that a hearing would be arranged before a Superior Court Judge Monday, in an effort to obtain her release on bond until an investigation could be made by the Grand Jury.

"I am not at all worried," she said. "I would welcome an investigation by the Grand Jury. I know they will find a 'no bill' if the case ever will put a stop to prosecution from this angle. In fact, I wish the case were so that I could be free. They know as well as I do that Mrs. Crawford is an innocent of any wrong and any fair-minded body of men will so decide."

Attorney Burton Smith stated Monday morning that he anticipated no trouble in arranging for the release of his client under bond, and that he felt confident a Grand Jury would return a "no bill" if the case ever got that far.

I AM SEEKING ONLY TO DO MY DUTY FOR TRUTH AND JUSTICE'

The Georgian Secures Remarkable Statement From Chief Witness for Defense in the Trial of Frank. Declares Belief in Conley's Guilt.

On Thursday, July 10, The Georgian published the exclusive story of an affidavit in the possession of the lawyers for Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, made by W. H. Mincey, an insurance agent, the substance of which was to the effect that Jim Conley, the negro sweeper at the pencil factory, had confessed that he killed the little girl.

In his affidavit, Mincey declared that he met the negro Conley at Electric avenue and Carter street on the afternoon of the murder; that Conley was intoxicated and when approached by Mincey for insurance became angry and exclaimed, threateningly: "I have killed a girl to-day; I don't want to kill nobody else."

The Georgian has now secured from Mincey a complete statement of his connection with the Phagan case. It is as follows:

By W. H. MINCEY

If Jim Conley told the truth at a time he was most likely to do so, that is, when he was drunk, then I know he killed Mary Phagan, and I have known this for weeks.

I am not an insurance agent, as some of the papers have me, but I am a teacher by profession. I am a graduate of a branch of the State University, A. B. degree, hold a Georgia State Teacher's license, and have been teaching in Georgia every year for the past twenty-five years. I am now teaching. But during my vacation I worked for an insurance company in Atlanta for ten weeks.

By this company I was assigned a territory west of the Terminal Station. Saturday, April 26, I worked in the office till noon. In the afternoon I went out on Peachtree street and saw the parade. After the parade I went over beyond Davis street on "back calls" and to make an effort to close some "prospects" I had.

I passed down Rhodes street, and when I turned back, I had calls to make back on Electric avenue and Mitchell street. From Rhodes street there is a trolleyway a bluff to the junction of Carter street and Electric avenue. I went up this.

Passing the house that sits just on the brow of this bluff I noticed a negro man sitting with his head leaning down on his chest as if asleep. I passed on some twenty feet when this negro raised his head and said: "Who is that?" The sharp, quick, excited manner in which he said this attracted my attention. A negro woman passing by Conley said, "It is a policy man," meaning an insurance man.

Said He Was Jim Conley
I stopped and got into a conversation with the negro about insurance. He told me his name was Jim Conley. He told me he lived at 172 Rhodes street. I saw at once there was something wrong with him. He was nervous and excited, and tried to put me off and get rid of me by telling me to come to 172 Rhodes street next week and he would take insurance. But as the negro had excited my curiosity by his incoherent, scattering way of talking and his nervous and excited manner, I remained standing there firing questions at him.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 14.—Dr. B. Baker, known as an "X-ray wizard" and head of an experimental station here, is dead after a long illness, induced from experimentation on his own body with X-rays.

But the defense is firm in the belief that the affidavit and Mincey's testimony will be important in their efforts to prove the innocence of Frank and the guilt of Conley. This part of the defense is strengthened by character testimony for Mincey and by statements from negro women who are said to have overheard the conversation between Conley and Mincey in which the negro is quoted as boasting:

killed some negro woman, and the only thing that seemed peculiar to me was that he said "girl" instead of "woman."

Negro Seemed Suspiciously Nervous

I did not attach much to what he was saying, thinking it was the babbling of a drunken negro; but his restless, quick glancing around and his keeping his eyes on me, and the wild, unnatural glare in his eyes caused me to want to press him further to find out really what he had been doing.

He said: "Let me write your insurance this afternoon," and started down to where he was.

No Other Girl Slain That Day

So far as is known, no other girl was murdered in Atlanta that day. Now, did Jim Conley tell me he killed Mary Phagan? If he did not, absolutely, I do not know when he had reasoned out a proposition in algebra, geometry or logic.

Mincey Tells How He Came to Make His Startling Affidavit

"I wrote Mr. Dorsey a letter, but did not sign my name to it. I asked to not have Jim Conley indicted for anything other than murder, as I had it from his lips that he had killed a girl the afternoon of the murder. I never told any detective or policeman anything.

Writes Anonymously to Dorsey

Later I wrote Mr. Dorsey a letter, but did not sign my name to it. I asked to not have Jim Conley indicted for anything other than murder, as I had it from his own lips that he had killed a girl the afternoon of the murder.

Knows No One in the Case

Now, I know none of the people concerned in this. I saw Jim Conley, I saw one man at the National Pencil Factory, who I learn is Holloway, I saw Mr. Rosser, but once.

Seeking Crawford With New Warrant

Coroner's Writ Held Illegal DELAY IN HEARING WILL MEAN WOMAN'S COMMITMENT TO JAIL, ATTORNEY SAYS. Following close upon a decision by Superior Court Justice Pendleton Saturday morning that a warrant signed by the Coroner of Carroll County was not enforceable in Fulton County, C. E. Crawford, a nephew and beneficiary under the $150,000 will of Joshua B. Crawford, went before Justice of the Peace C. H. Girardeau and swore out a second warrant charging the widow, Mary-Belle Crawford, with murder. Constables R. F. Mauldin and W. W. Rogers were immediately to the home of Mrs. Crawford at West Peachtree and Boulevard streets, to arrest her and take her before Justice Girardeau for commitment trial. The first warrant charging Mrs. Crawford with murder was signed by Coroner C. W. Mauldin, of Carroll County, who had disappeared the body of Joshua B. Crawford and found evidence of poison. Crawford died in Fulton county March 27, 1910. Hearing May Be Delayed. The warrant reached Atlanta Friday, and Sheriff Hargrett notified Mrs. Crawford to appear before Justice of the Peace D. K. Johnson Saturday morning, when a hearing would be held as to the authority of the Sheriff to serve the warrant in Fulton county. Colonel J. S. James, attorney for the heirs, said later that he did not know whether the warrant would be ready for the commitment trial as the prosecution has several material witnesses out of the State. In the event of delay in the commitment hearing, he said, Justice Girardeau would have no other alternative than to commit Mrs. Crawford to jail. Arnold Says Exonerated. Attorney Arnold said Mrs. Crawford would be completely exonerated at the prospective hearing before a justice of the peace. He said the action was nothing more than a mere "trick" civil procedure. "It is not really the Crawford heirs who are fighting me," said Mrs. Crawford, "but the rather distant relatives who were not mentioned in any will. I settled with the real heirs according to the will left by Mr. Crawford's first wife. Every one was satisfied. I gave Charles Crawford more than he was entitled to by the will that was made before I even knew the man I later married. He thanked me for the generosity by later letting the very distant relatives prevail upon him to fight me. He decided from an interest in his share of the property and filed suit. Since then he has fought me. The closer relatives have never been anything but my best friends."

Affidavits Support Money Story

Attorney Leavitt Declares That Negro Admitted Killing, Girl Will Stand Test. That several negro women overheard Jim Conley when he ran the insurance agent, Mincey, away with the alleged statement that he had just killed a girl and didn't want to kill any one else, and that the affidavit for the women are in the hands of the attorney for the defense, was stated Saturday by Attorney J. H. Leavitt, who aided in obtaining the consensual affidavit from Mincey. Attorney Leavitt attacked the character of the man who made the affidavit and denied emphatically that Mincey ever asked about the money he would receive as a witness, except whether his retained fees would be paid if he were out of the city. "Explosion Defied Quibbles. "I am attorney for the American Insurance Company and know its insurance. J. H. Dallas, very well," said Leavitt. "He brought to my attention that Mincey very likely because Mincey had no display to get a better position had had to do some of the police work. Mincey is a police graduate and is well known in Atlanta. It will be utterly impossible to shake his evidence. "I am not employed to represent Frank and asked in getting the affidavit purely because it happened to be in the information. Before I submitted it to Mr. Ross, Frank's attorney, I spent several days investigating the character of the man, questioning the woman in the neighborhood and generally verifying the facts. When I turned it over to him I was convinced of its absolute truth and that it would stand the test."
