POPULAR SOCIETY GIRL FIRST ENTRY IN SLOGAN BUTTON BEAUTY CONTEST

Miss Mert Hancock, who is named as candidate in booster button beauty contest.

WIFE IMPRISONS GIRL AND HUSBAND

Stenographer Arrested With Merchant Says She Will 'Show Him Up' in Court.

From an "ambush" at 11 o'clock a "woman of vengeance" at 1 was the emotional cry across which May Beatrice Hendon, stenographer, was arrested, together with A. M. Trippe of No. 14 Boone street, after the man's wife had complained of her husband's activities.

When they were arrested, Mrs. Hendon said she had been waiting for the man for some time. She had the decided that Trippe had done her work, and she had been waiting for him to be arrested.

When she saw Trippe up when she was tried in Police Court, Thursday, she said she would "show him up" in court.

She had a wife and three children, and she had been waiting for the man for some time. She had the decided that Trippe had done her work, and she had been waiting for him to be arrested.

Miss Mert Hancock, of Ponce de Leon Avenue, Nominated to Grace Booster Emblem.

Mrs. Mert Hancock, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hancock, of Ponce de Leon avenue, is the first to be nominated the best girl in Atlanta in the 1913-14 booster button contest.

Mrs. Hancock, one of the most popular members of the younger set in society, is noted for her beauty. She is tall, with wonderful, Auburn hair and finely fitted skin. Though she drives an automobile, she is much in the open air; in her leisure is preserved by more delicate points of the indoor girl.

Many nominations have come in since the publication of the "beauty contest" coupon blank. It is quite evident that the "best girl" idea is making a wide appeal. All of these nominations will be published. Also it is requested that nominations be accompanied with photographs of the candidates. Others than can be the face and name, whether it is their choice for the contest, girl in Atlanta.

Coupons for the nomination and election of the "best girl" appear on page 2 of The Georgian. The pictures of the girl having the most votes will be selected for the button and she will become the sponsor of the organization that is working to get the organization for Atlanta by 1920.

By order a candidate, she will be the first to be nominated in the contest. She will be the first to be nominated in the contest. She will be the first to be nominated in the contest.

EUGENICS? BAH! SAYS DR. JORDAN

Cupid Better Guide in Choosing Mate Than Science, Declares Leland Stanford Head.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian, LONDON, July 15.—Romantic love is defended and eugenics are attacked by Dr. David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, in a four-column article.

"I believe," said Dr. Jordan, "the free choice of the part of men and women in selecting mates is better than any system of official machinery by which selection and formal regulations are involved."

"According to certain rules and not according to the dictates of an impelling love would not bring into the human a lasting affection."

"A nation in which it is customary for the parents to select a mate by means of a system of official machinery is a nation which is destined to be a failure."

It was intimated that this is one of the reasons why the United States is not a nation of the future.

Dr. Jordan also said that the United States is not a nation of the future. It is a nation of the past. It is a nation of the past. It is a nation of the past.

DORSEY ARRESTED STARTLING EVIDENCE

Solicitor Declares Prosecution's Plans Are Unchanged—Doesn't Expect Conley Indictment.

That affidavit as sensational and direct against Leo M. Frank, accused of murdering Mary Phagan, as the Mincey statement was against the negro, Jim Conley, are in the hands of the State and will be substantiated by witnesses at the trial, July 23, was admitted by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey Wednesday morning.

The Solicitor and Frank A. Hooper, associated with him in the prosecution, made it plain that in their opinion the Mincey affidavit had in no way hurt the State's case against Frank, and that they could anticipate no development that would make Conley instead of Frank the principal in Atlanta's greatest murder mystery.

They say they do not expect the Grand Jury to indict the negro before the trial of Frank, and do not hesitate to say that any move in that direction will meet with opposition from the Solicitor, who would necessarily have to introduce witnesses to secure the indictment.

State's Case Complete.

"The State's case against Frank will not be changed," said Solicitor Dorsey. "We investigated the allegations in the Mincey affidavit before Conley made the confession that he helped Frank dispose of the body of Mary Phagan. The defense has not looked into Conley's past and the possibility of his being the guilty man any more thoroughly than has my office. We have even set up a theoretical case around the negro, but it would not hold water when we weighed the evidence."

"We have several anonymous communications similar to the Mincey statement, and we investigated each one thoroughly. Our search always led to the same point and the same conclusions. We will go into the trial with Frank and not the negro as the principal in the crime."

The Solicitor put a corps of stenographers at work on the statements and the order in which the witnesses and the order in which the next week will call them again to his office to go over the ground with them thoroughly. Many of the witnesses who were examined at great length at the coroner's investigation and one or two that went before the Grand Jury will not be used because their evidence, while of value, they will be of no importance at the trial.

While the Pinkerton detectives are not active at work on the case any longer, Solicitor Dorsey has kept two city detectives, Campbell and Starnes, constantly engaged.

Deputy Sheriff Dennis Mincey will have charge of the courtroom during the trial. Wednesday began making his preparations.

There would not be any additional seats in the courtroom for make any change, except to arrange for the newspaper.

With the lawyers directly interested in the case, will be the only ones allowed inside the inclosure of the judge's bench.

The benches outside the inclosure will not accommodate more than 300 spectators, and when that number is reached the court doors will be closed.

DRUGGING OF 5 LEAD TO BURGLAR

Footprints Found Under Window of Duncan Home, Where Family Was Attacked.

The theory that robbery was the motive for the chloroforming of five members of the family of Mrs. Archibald C. Duncan, No. 218 South Boulevard, one of them a 3-year-old child, and the clubbing of Miss Pearl Hildebrand, a daughter, was strengthened Wednesday morning after Mrs. Duncan had recovered sufficiently to make an investigation.

At noon, however, no clue had been found by the police by which to trace the intruder. Chief Beavers has taken charge of the investigation personally. Together with detectives, the Chief visited the Duncan house and went over the ground.

Though nothing was missing, there was evidence that portions of the house, especially the room where Miss Hildebrand slept, had been thoroughly searched by the burglar. The drawers of the dresser, where she kept her jewelry, were wide open this morning and the contents disappeared.

The fact that none of the jewelry of her daughter was taken, it is regarded as significant by the police and Mrs. Duncan, the latter firmly believing that the chloroforming was done by someone familiar with the house and who thought there was a large amount of money hidden in the house.

"We brought a large sum home with me Sunday and it was hidden under my pillow, but it was not taken. I am not understood why the burglar searched my daughter's room instead of my own."

Besides Mrs. Duncan and Miss Hildebrand, the others chloroformed were Mrs. Ruby Deal, a daughter; Earl O. Ernest, Hildebrand's son; and Ernest's son, and 3-year-old Margaret Deal, who slept in the same room with her mother and her aunt, Miss Hildebrand.

Mrs. Duncan occupied a room in the front of the house, and the two sons slept in a rear room, just beyond that of their father. All the family had recovered from the effects of the chloroform by 10 o'clock, though they still complained of a slight dizziness.

Physicians who dressed the wound on Miss Hildebrand's forehead, where she was struck by the burglar, say it was not serious, though it will likely leave a scar.

Miss Hildebrand declared that all the remembered was being hit by a man who was wearing a hat.

Rep. Lee Makes Plea For Fort Oglethorpe

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Representative Lee, of Georgia, and Moon, of Tennessee, called on Secretary of War Garrison yesterday and discussed the Secretary's trip of inspection of the forts of the country. Lee emphasized the importance of Fort Oglethorpe as a cavalry brigade post and urged the Secretary's favorable consideration of the enlargement of the post.

Congress has authorized the establishment of a cavalry brigade post at Fort Oglethorpe, but has not provided the money necessary.

Slouch Called Off Judge Speer's Trail

MACON, July 15.—R. Colton Lewis, special investigator for the Department of Justice, has been recalled to Washington by the Attorney General. He left this morning, taking with him a voluminous report on his probe into the judicial and personal record of Judge Emory Speer.

Mr. Lewis has been engaged in this investigation for seven weeks, and his report will be a valuable contribution to the Georgia District of Georgia taking scores of statements and affidavits.

DEMANDS END OF WAR IN MEXICO; ENVOY WILSON CALLED TO WASHINGTON

Kaiser's Note First of Series of Diplomatic Protests From Europe--Attention Called That Monroe Doctrine Forbids Protection of Subjects.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The summoning of Ambassador Wilson to Washington to discuss the Mexican situation, it was stated at the White House to-day, was the direct result of a formal demand by Germany that the United States take some immediate step to quiet the disturbance south of the Rio Grande.

Germany, it was learned to-day, has filed a note, drafted by Count Von Heimhausen, counselor of the German embassy, demanding that the United States do something to protect foreigners in Mexico.

The German foreign office does not care whether the administration recognizes the Huerta Government or whether the United States actively intervenes in Mexico.

Demands Subjects Be Protected.

It was stated merely, in the most emphatic of terms, that Germany demands protection for her subjects and their property and that it is the duty of the United States to provide protection inasmuch as the Monroe Doctrine prohibits European nations from landing troops on the soil of the Western hemisphere.

It is believed here that Germany's note is only the first of a series of other diplomatic utterances from Europe—notes which will either embroil the United States with Mexico or jeopardize the vitality of the Monroe Doctrine.

The administration is frankly alarmed at the latest developments in the Mexican question, and at the seriousness of this problem now presented.

Ambassador Wilson has been sent for, therefore, to discuss whether it would be better to renounce the administration's Mexican policy and recognize President Huerta, or to intervene south of the border.

The Ambassador is expected by Saturday and on his conference with the President and Secretary Bryan will depend whether the United States is plunged into war with Mexico or whether it will continue its policy of non-interference at the risk of offending the European nations.

Bacon Ignorant of Real Conditions.

"I do not know whether matters in Mexico are serious or not," said Senator Bacon, of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on his return to the Capitol from the White House. "I am not fully enough informed upon affairs in that country to give out a statement."

"If anything is to be said, it will probably come from the State Department or President Wilson. Ambassador Wilson was asked to return to Washington to talk matters over with the administration. Naturally this can be done better at first hand than by telegraph or letter."

The United States' only real ally has a strong force of troops on the Mexican border at the present time, but three battalions of the United States' most modern type, the Minnesota, South Carolina and New Hampshire, now are on the Atlantic coast of Mexico, dividing their time between Tampico and Vera Cruz, and three gunboats are off the Pacific coast at Guaymas—the Pittsburg, Glacier and Duverne.

There are now approximately 16,000 troops on the Mexican border, 12,000 more into the turbulent republic if necessary.

To undertake the subjugation of Mexico so that all its mountain and rural districts would be free of bandit and guerrilla groups would require an expeditionary force of at least 250,000 men, according to the estimate of military experts.

Galveston Would Be Naval Base.

That it would be the greatest military undertaking the United States has had to assume since the war between the States goes without saying. Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt announced recently that Galveston would hereafter be used as a naval base so that battalions could be rushed to Vera Cruz or Tampico on short notice. It is expected that a considerable force of the North Atlantic fleet would be ordered to Caribbean waters within the next week.

The present American force along the border is widely distributed. It ranges from a point opposite Nogales, in Sonora, near the Pacific coast, to Brownsville, Tex. Among the intermediate points at which troops are stationed are Fort Huachuca, Douglas, Ariz.; El Paso, Fort Clark, Fort McIntosh and Terlingua, Tex. This force, consisting almost entirely of cavalry, is so placed as to reduce to a minimum the violation of the neutrality law by the shipping of arms across the border, either to Federalists or Constitutionalists.

For more than a week the War Department has received and is showing the rapid spread of the revolutionary movement in Mexico and the probable prosecution of the rebel campaign southward after the murder of Francisco Madero three years ago.

Following an early conference today with the President, Secretary Bryan issued the following statement: "Ambassador Wilson has been asked to come to Washington to confer personally with the President regarding the situation in Mexico. During his absence the Embassy will be left in charge of the first Secretary, Mr. O'Shaughnessy."

Mr. Bryan occupied a room in the front of the house, and the two sons slept in the room. Mr. Bryan and his two sons were awakened by the sound of a rifle shot. Mr. Bryan was in bed at the time, and he had just fallen asleep. He was awakened by the sound of a rifle shot. He was awakened by the sound of a rifle shot.

Money Hidden Under Pillow.
"Mrs. Duncan is in business in Spartanburg, S. C.," Mrs. Duncan said. "I divide my time between here and South Carolina. I think the burglar knew that but probably came home from South Carolina, and that he thought I had a large amount of money hidden in the house. He had brought a fairly large sum home with me Sunday and it was hidden under my pillow, but it was not taken. I searched my daughter's room and found my own."

Mrs. Duncan declared that she, Miss Hildebrand, was being hit by something, and did not even see the person who fired the shot. "I woke up some time in the night," she said, "with a feeling that something was wrong. I felt very sick, and I saw a light in the room. I was struck by the burglar as he was doing. I laid myself on my side and reached over to raise the window. I heard a noise in the room, and I was struck by the burglar as he was doing. I laid myself on my side and reached over to raise the window. I heard a noise in the room, and I was struck by the burglar as he was doing."

"As I placed my hand on the window, I saw a shadow pass in front of my face, and the next moment I felt something heavy strike me on the forehead just above the left eye. I do not remember what happened next. I do not remember what happened next. I do not remember what happened next."
