STORY OF PHAGAN CASE BY CHAPTERS

Slaying of Factory Girl, South's Most Baffling Crime Mystery, Reviewed in Detail.

CHAPTER I.

Will the veil of mystery be lifted when the curtain rises next Monday on another scene in Atlanta's darkest tragedy?

A vast audience, shocked by the horror of Mary Phagan's fate on a Saturday of last April, and held thrills by the succeeding weeks in the throes of the baffling crime drama, in lieu suspense awaits this question.

Will Fulton County's Solicitor General be able to point his finger at Leo Frank and exclaim, "This is the man who strangled Mary Phagan?" backing his damning accusation with such an abundance of evidence that there can remain no shadow of doubt?

Or will Luther Rosser, certain to be a loving and masterful figure in the intricate struggle that is to be staged, amass his strength, bring to bear the secret evidence that has been in his possession for weeks, beat down every whisper of suspicion that the State has created about the prisoner, and, as a dramatic finale, assail the Georgia State Bar, the State Bar, the witness stand, with a raving volubility of question that will terrify a confessor of the crime upon his lips?

What a crime—most of the State—has handed down the most intense interest on the outcome.

No other crime ever stirred Georgia to its depths as has the slaying of the little factory girl.

No murder ever has gripped the hearts and souls of the people throughout the State.

LITTLE MARY PHAGAN AND HER CHUM

Frank was a Cornell graduate. He had a high technical education. He had been sent abroad to select the machinery for the Atlanta plant. His business sagacity showed every confidence in him. His friends knew him for an upright and moral young man, with a most promising career ahead of him.

That he would descend to the level of a criminal of the worst type was inconceivable to them. The possibility of such a thing was a subject for others to speculate on.

Mary Phagan's life began 14 years ago in Marietta. She was the petted "baby" of the family. She had three older brothers and a sister, now 18. Even in the early years of childhood she is remembered as having the precocious habit of being the first to make her great-grandfather's name to work in Atlanta.

For a playmate in the days at Marietta she had one who was to play a brief but sensational part in April's tragedy. It was J. M. Gant, 17 years old, a few hours after her cold body was found in the gloomy basement of the National Pencil Factory her child, the playmate was arrested as he left his car in Marietta, to which place there seems to have been no connection that he was fleeing.

From the moment that he had changed to the happy conversation of young girls, Gant's friendship followed sorrow and it became necessary for little Mary to follow the example of her brothers and sisters and assist in providing a livelihood for the family. She could not do much but she did her mite willingly and cheerfully.

A year ago Mrs. Phagan married W. C. O'Connell, a well-to-do man, No. 146 Lindsay street, Atlanta. She obtained work at the National Pencil Factory and soon made friends with all the children about her and with the girls she met at the factory.

Little Mary, when they were many of the luxuries of life. Mary was a very good mother and enjoyed the wise counsel and sometimes denied the children of her mother in more protesting circumstances.

All Loved Little Mary.

To the loving and painstaking home training, the attractive young girl brought a natural, sweet disposition in the few hours she had she often played with the children of the neighbors. The little people all grew to love the sweet-tempered, kind-hearted girl. Her mother had said and what Mary had done.

The father and mother began to take notice of her as she laughed and chattered among the other children. One morning when she boarded a street car, she was seen to be carrying a package. They took a sort of parental interest in the child who had a hearted little girl.

started toward the factory. Some time between 12:10 and 12:15 Mary Phagan entered the door of the National Pencil Factory and went to the office of Leo Frank, where she had her work.

Frank never saw her after that moment except by the brute that attacked her, but she, too, completed his demonic crime by dropping a cord about the tender neck of her neck and strangling her to death.

No One Saw Her Alive Again.

From the moment that the abductor of the girl entered the office of Leo Frank, she was seen to be carrying a package. They took a sort of parental interest in the child who had a hearted little girl.

and everything was all right at the factory. Leo recalled that Gant had left as soon as he had noticed the shoes and called up a girl friend from the office.

After a few minutes, regular rounds for several hours that night, shutting down all the windows and making his trip over the different floors, he was sitting on the way.

That night was no different than any other night up until shortly before 8 o'clock in the morning, if the girl had made another trip into the basement.

THOMPSON LOSES HIS FIRST GAME 11-2

THREE SHOT RESISTING ARREST

Three of the robbers surprised as they are looting stores caught in long chase.

The presence of mind of half a dozen girls employed at the Atlanta Telephone Exchange, on Fry and Edwards streets, in notifying the police when they saw burglars breaking into the candy store of Michael Koff, across the street, resulted in the capture of two negro burglars early Wednesday morning.

In the chase and battle which followed the arrival of the police one of the negroes, Will Walker, was shot in the right leg by Call Officer Watson, but was not wounded seriously.

The other negro, Dave Smith, was found hiding in a cellar on Houston street half an hour later by Police Officer Greenham and Captain Mayo.

The police declare that the burglars would have escaped with their booty had it not been for the telephone girls, and Chief of Police Beavers has extended his personal thanks and congratulations to the girls for their presence of mind.

Heard Officer Greenham, who was working at 2:10 o'clock Wednesday morning, heard the sound of breaking glass as the burglars smashed the window of the candy store.

Looking out of the exchange window the girls saw the two men enter a store. A third posted himself on the corner as lookout.

While several of the young women watched the burglars, another of the girls telephoned police headquarters and notified the police.

Assistant Chief Jett, Captain Mayo and Officers Watson and Anderson and Policemen McWilliams went to the store in an automobile. As the car drove at top speed, dashed up to the front of the candy store, the negroes coming and ran. The police, thinking he was the only man in the store, started in pursuit, but were called back by the telephone girls who were gathered at the window of the plant.

Call Policeman Back.

"Come back," they cried, "there are two others in the store!"

As the car turned and started hurriedly back to the store two negroes dashed out of the front door and ran up Fry street, with the police in pursuit. The negroes turned down Auburn street and ran to the plant of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, where they separated.

One of them disappeared in the darkness, but the other was seen to run around to the back of the plant. The police surrounded the place, and Captain Mayo went into the darkness after him.

He flushed the negro in a few minutes, and the burglar ran into the open on the rear side of the plant, directly toward Officer Watson.

Leaps at Policeman.

The policeman leapt three times at the negro to halt. The burglar, however, continued to advance, and as he strook at the officer, Watson leaped aside and fired, the bullet penetrating the negro's leg.

The wounded negro was sent to the Ochs Hospital in the automobile, and the police continued their search for the other burglar. Half an hour later "Captain Mayo and Officer Greenham found him crouched in the darkness of a cellar on Houston street. One of the girls telephoned the police and the police came up and captured the burglar. He was found hiding in a cellar on Houston street half an hour later by Police Officer Greenham and Captain Mayo.

The police declare that the burglars would have escaped with their booty had it not been for the telephone girls, and Chief of Police Beavers has extended his personal thanks and congratulations to the girls for their presence of mind.

Representative Connor, of Spalding County, introduced a resolution in the House to-day calling for a legislative investigation of the State Agricultural College at Athens, particularly with respect to Dr. Andrew B. Soule's connection therewith.

Mr. Connor's resolution specifies the fact that Dr. Soule has been publicly accused in the Southern Farmer-Farmers, a poultry and agricultural magazine, with having obtained a special raise in salary upon false representations, and calls upon the Legislature to investigate the charge and summon Dr. Soule before the Committee on Appropriations to answer the charges.

had a ring in his store which was to have been called for by a negro of the same name, but which unaccountably had been left there without a claimant. He registered this as peculiar and notified persons interested in the defense.

A negro calling himself J. Will Green visited the store May 14 and displayed a rather ornate gold ring worth probably $15 or $18. He desired to have a Radius diamond set in it and said that he would be around within a day or two after it was returned. It was about this time that the Pinkerton spread around the city that the Phelan murder had a witness in the person of a negro who was shooting craps with Conley.

A sister of the Will Green who left the ring at the jewelry store was seen Wednesday. She said that her brother had left town about two months ago and that none of the family had heard from him since or had any idea where he was. She said he was working from some small circus or theatrical troupe when he left.

The Green that the detective has been pursuing is known to be connected with a circus or show, additional strength thus being given to the theory that their identity is the same.

mistaken in believing that her brother knew anything about the crime. She simply practically all the day that Mary Phelan was murdered, she declared, and did not even go downstairs to see the Memorial Day parade, although he was urged by one of his friends. He was working nights for the Southern Railway at that time, according to the sister, joining the show people a few days later.

She failed to explain why he suddenly left town without stopping to recover the gold ring of considerable value which he had left at the "five twenty store."

Gant's Solicitor.

J. M. Gant, a discharged employee of the National Pencil Factory, who Wednesday conferred with Solicitor General Bowers and Attorney Frank A. Honner, denied that he had seen a photograph of the man that he saw at 1 o'clock on the day that Mary Phelan was murdered. Mr. Conley and Leo Frank conversing together in Frank's office.

It is stated that Gant contemplated making such a statement to the prosecution is said to have come to the attention of an anonymous letter box on the 20th. The writer said in effect: "I was standing on the street the other day and heard Gant talking to some other fellow. He told the fellow that he had stood across the street Saturday, April 10, and had looked through the window of the factory and saw Jim Conley talking to Frank in Frank's office."

Leo said that he did not see Conley there that night and did not even know Conley by sight. It was planned to take Conley from the police station to the jail to confront Leo and question the two together.

Lanford Scouts Bludgeon Evidence.

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Wednesday morning indicated the story that the defense of Leo M. Frank has in its possession a bloody club, alleged to have been found by two Pinkerton detectives on May 10 at the National Pencil Factory, and with which, it is reported, the defense will contend Mary Phelan was slain by James Conley, the negro assassin.

Assuming that he knows nothing whatever of the alleged bloody club, Chief Lanford declared that if Pinkerton detectives found such a weapon on May 10, or any other date, he had failed to report the fact to him. Follow to official report such a find would be regarded as a breach of the pact between the city critics and the Pinkertons, in the latter officers, while employed by the pencil factory, have been working hand in hand with city detectives, with the understanding that any evidence they unearthed would be communicated to detectives headquarters.

Has Received No Report. Chief of Detectives Lanford said a bloody club in the pencil factory they certainly should have reported to him.

Judge Ellis Joins Beavers in Vice War

Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Superior Court, joined Chief Beavers in his vice crusade Wednesday when the injunction proceedings of Mrs. Lulu Bell, keeper of a house at Peter and Fair street, which was raided last week, came up for disposal.

Mrs. Bell withdrew her petition for a permanent injunction and agreed to move from the neighborhood. Judge Ellis then announced he would grant no more "temporary" injunctions against the police on petition of women of Mrs. Bell's character until he had investigated the charges himself.

Exhibit May Be in Commerce Chamber

The location of the proposed prohibition Atlanta manufacturers' exhibit, probably will be definitely known within a week. The committee arrangements have several propositions under consideration, and it is understood that the majority of the committee favors locating the exhibit in the Commerce Chamber of Commerce at Pryor street and Auburn street, the old city hall building.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce has made a fair price to the manufacturers. The "club" bore no blood stains, however, and no evidence of having ever been used as a weapon in any way, and it is not known how any damage had a blow been struck by it.

SENATE ACTS TO ENFORCE WEBB LIQUOR LAW

Passes Hixon-Searcy Bill—Fights Rages Over 3-Gallon Burden of Proof Clause.

By a vote of 36 to 3 the Senate Wednesday afternoon passed the Hixon-Searcy prohibition bill providing for the enforcement of the Webb Bill in Georgia.

The bill makes it unlawful for any firm or corporation to transport liquor into the State for illegal purposes and places the burden of proof of such legality upon the shipper when quantities in excess of three gallons are shipped.

Three-Gallon Clause Attacked. The bill attacked the three-gallon provision as recommended in the "Prohibition Committee" bulletins that Senator Hixon, chairman of the committee and author of the original bill, and Senator Searcy, vice chairman of the committee, opposed the provision on the ground that the whole burden of proof should be placed on the carrier.

WOMEN SOUGHT FOR THEFT OF HEIRLOOMS

Georgian Want Ad. Reveals Disappearance of Silver in Bank Rest Room.

Loss of a package of old and extremely valuable silverware has resulted in a search for two young women who are believed to have picked up the valuables.

The package disappeared several days ago while the owner was in the rest room of the Third National Bank Building and it is believed that two young women who were in the room at the time and who are employed in the building, walked away with it.

The loss has been attracting attention by the appearance of an unexplained silverware in the rest room of the Third National Bank Building.

The silverware bears the monogram of "C" engraved on it a century ago. The package contained a number of spoons, sugar tongs and other pieces. They were heirlooms and highly prized.

It is probable that arrests will follow unless the silverware is returned to the owner.

CHAPTER II.
His heart pounding in unexpectant fright, Neel Lee, the night watchman, forced himself to approach the strange object on the side of the dark alley. He stepped forward. A step nearer and he could make out what appeared to be a human form. He recoiled and was on the point of precipitate flight.

But he must look closer, he thought. Perhaps, after all, it was only the shadowy form of some of the factory employees who had infiltrated a party and placed it there to scare him.

Determinedly he walked closer and thrust his lantern out over the mysterious object. He started back with a gasp. He had seen the body of a little girl.

Grinned and mutilated the body lay on the flat of the back, as the terrified negro remembered a few minutes later, found the body on the floor of the factory.

Up under the body and the other stretched full length at the side of the alley.

Disparaging Not Explained.
The strange discovery never has been explained to the public except by the possibility of Lee, in his terror, was mistaken in the position of the body.

Mr. Frank had told him that when anything happened at the factory to call the police. The telephone at headquarters rang at 11:30 p.m.

Lee was so appalled by his discovery that he made a close investigation. He only saw that it was a little white girl and that she had been murdered.

He scuttled up the ladder and groped the trap door over the alley. A light fell away from the darkness of the trap door.

The almost illegible words was deciphered.
"He said he would love me and down like the night witch did it, but that long tall black negro did it by himself."

Next day the only person in the time known to have been in the factory who had seen the girl was there, was placed under immediate arrest.

Soon after 5 o'clock the news of the murder was spread. It was a terrible tragedy that a 14-year-old girl had been murdered in the factory.

Lee was so appalled by his discovery that he made a close investigation. He only saw that it was a little white girl and that she had been murdered.

He scuttled up the ladder and groped the trap door over the alley. A light fell away from the darkness of the trap door.

theory that she never had left the building after she entered it Saturday noon to obtain her pay envelope.

Another story that had to be investigated was that a girl of Mary Phagan's age had been seen talking to a man on the sidewalk near the street factory at a late hour Saturday night.

The police at this time were ready to credit the story that the girl had been lured to the factory by a man.

It is probable that arrests will follow unless the silverware is returned to the owner.

LANFORD SCOUTS BLUDGEON TALE OF DEFENSE

Chief Declares Pinkertons Made No Report of Alleged Find to Him.

had a ring in his store which was to have been called for by a negro of the same name, but which unaccountably had been left there without claimant. He reported this as peculiar, and notified persons interested in the defense.

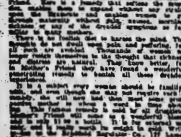

A negro calling himself J. Will Green visited the store May 18 and displayed a rather ornate gold ring worth probably $15 or $16. He desired to have a Radin diamond set in it, and said that he would be around within a day or two after it. He never returned. It was about this time that the Phagan murder had had an eyewitness in the person of Phagan who was shooting Phagan with a pistol.

A sister of the Will Green who left the ring at the jewelry store was seen Wednesday. She said that her brother had left town about two months ago and that none of the family had heard from him since or had any idea where he was. She said she was working with some small circus or theatrical troupe when he left.

The Green that the detectives have been pursuing is known to be connected with a circus or show, adding strength thus being given to the theory that their identity is the same. She thought the detectives were

Coming of The Sunbeam

How to Avoid These Pains and Discomforts as Many Mothers Have Suffered.

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Wednesday morning, indicated the story that the defense of Leo M. Frank has in its possession a bloody club, alleged to have been found by two Pinkerton detectives on May 10 in the National Penitentiary, and will contend Mary Phagan was slain by some 'Conley' he knows nothing about. He said that he knows nothing about the alleged bloody club, that Lanford declared that if Pinkerton detectives found such a weapon on May 10, or any other date, they had failed to report the fact to him. Failure to officially report such a find would be regarded as a breach of the pact between the city detectives and the Pinkertons as the latter officers, while employed by the penitentiary, have been working hand in hand with city detectives, with the understanding that any evidence they unearthed would be communicated to detective headquarters.

Judge Ellis Joins Beavers in Vice War

Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Superior Court, joined Chief Beavers in his vice crusade Wednesday when the injunction proceedings of Mrs. Luis Bell, keeper of a house at Peter and Fair street, which was raided last week, came up for disposal.

Mrs. Bell withdrew her petition for a permanent injunction and agreed to move from the neighborhood. Judge Ellis then announced he would grant no more temporary injunctions against the police on petition of women of area. Bell's character and he had investigated the charges himself.

Exhibit May Be in Commerce Chamber

The location of the proposed permanent Atlanta manufacturers' exhibit probably will be definitely known within a week. The committee regarding the exhibit has several propositions under consideration, and a report is expected soon. It is understood the majority of the committee favors locating the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce at Pryor street and Auburn street, the committee and the original board of directors of the Chamber, it is unofficially stated, made a fair price to the manufacturers.

fact to me at once—I have received no such report," said Chief Lanford. The police regard as absurd the attitude of Harry Scott, who is managing the Pinkerton investigation, and who, subsequent to May 10, has continued to assert his belief in the guilt of Frank.

Chief Lanford characterized the alleged finding of the club as an "unofficial" and accused the idea of having any bearing on the case. He is satisfied, he said, that it will never figure as evidence.

The chief said the only club found in the penitentiary of which he had any knowledge, was a small section of wood, about 2 feet in length, which hung by a cord beside the door of Leo Frank, the latter's private office.

"This club bore no blood stains, he said, and showed no evidence of having ever been used as a weapon in any way. It was too light to have done any damage had a blow been struck with it by the defendant.

Chief Lanford tested the bloody club story in the reported find by the Pinkertons.

"Do you see a club there?" he asked, pointing to the reported find, which was placed on a table in the penitentiary.

"No, that's the answer," he continued. "There is just as much of a bloody club lying there on that floor as there was on the floor of the penitentiary, where it is said the Pinkerton detectives found the bloody club. The whole thing is absurd and will have no bearing whatever on the case of Frank. I'm satisfied the mysterious club will never be introduced in evidence."

No Weapon Was Found. "When it is recalled that the very spot that yielded up this bloody club was searched thoroughly more than a dozen times by numerous officers prior to May 10 and no club nor other weapon was found, the ridiculousness of this story is apparent. We searched that factory from top to bottom and bottom to top, closely investigating every conceivable place for weapons or any other bit of evidence that might throw light on the mystery, and yet no club was found."

There's absolutely nothing to it. "In Frank's private office we found a small piece of bromus-like, hanging by a cord beside his door. There were no blood stains on it, and it showed no evidence of having been used as a weapon. In the first place, he was too light to serve as a weapon. This was the only club found in the penitentiary, and no other weapons should have been found and would have been reported."

Data Bill in Doubt. "Rebuck's bill on Wednesday that the defense would ask for no exhibit of the Frank case, except for such impulsive reasons, and the bill of course, if passed, would be of no use to the defense. It is understood that no move will be made to introduce an exhibit in the trial unless an emergency arises."

SENATE ACTS TO ENFORCE WEBB LIQUOR LAW

Passes Hixon-Searcy Bill—Fights Rages Over 3-Gallon Burden of Proof Clause.

By a vote of 28 to 3 the Senate Wednesday afternoon passed the Hixon-Searcy bill providing for the enforcement of the Webb bill in Georgia.

The bill makes it unlawful for any firm or corporation to transport liquor into the State for illegal purposes and places the burden of proof or responsibility upon the shipper when such liquor is in excess of three gallons.

Three-Gallon Clause Attacked. "It was around the three-gallon provision as recommended by the Temperance Committee, substitute the bill, that the fiercest fight was waged. Senator Hixon, chairman of the committee and author of the original bill, and Senator Searcy, vice chairman of the committee, opposed the provision on the ground that the whole burden of proof should be placed on the carrier."

This was vigorously opposed, however, by Senator Neff, who is twenty-second, a member of the committee, who declared that such a provision was an unjust burden upon the carrier.

Senator Harrell, of the Twelfth, also opposed the Hixon-Searcy measure, declaring that the measure was an effort to quash the innocent carrier rather than the illegal "blind tiger" within the State.

Increase in Crime Charged. "As the bill attacks the burden of proof of illegal sale is placed on the State, which is the only party who can be held liable for such violations, it is declared that under the present prohibition law with its 'defective' results, the crime in the State had increased 56 per cent."

APPEAL IN W. & A. CASE ORDERED BY SLATON

Governor Upsets Predecessor's Precedent by Carrying Suit to U. S. Supreme Court.

Governor Slaton Wednesday morning instructed Attorney General Thomas S. Fisher and James R. Hines, special attorney for the Railroad Commission, to appeal to the United States Supreme Court in the Slaton suit against the Western and Atlantic Railroad Company, seeking to restrain the company from charging higher rates than those fixed by the Georgia standard tariff and classification.

The appeal for injunction by the State was turned down by the Superior and Supreme Courts. Governor Slaton's act is directly contrary to that of Governor Brown, who, when the State Supreme Court ruled against the State, instructed the Attorney General not to appeal, holding it would be of no avail.

The Governor acted upon the advice of the Attorney General and Mr. Hines, who, immediately after his inauguration, urged him to appeal.

TELEPHONE GIRLS HELP POLICE TRAP BURGLARS

FLASHLIGHT OF SOCIETY FOLK AT WATER FROLIC AT FORREST ADAIR'S POOL TUESDAY EVENING

THIEF SHOT RESISTING ARREST

Trio of Robbers Surprised They Are Looting Store Caught in Long Chase.

The presence of mind of half a dozen girls employed at the Atlanta Telephone Exchange, at 17 and Edge-wood streets, in notifying the police when they saw burglars breaking into the candy store of Michael Koff, across the street, resulted in the capture of two negro burglars early Wednesday morning.

In the chase and battle which followed the arrival of the police one of the negroes, Will Walker, was shot in the right leg by Call Officer Watson, but was not wounded seriously.

The other negro, Dave Smith, was found hiding in a cellar on Houston street half an hour later by Plain Clothes Officer Graham and Captain Mayo.

The police declare that the burglars would have escaped with their booty had it not been for the telephone girls, and Chief of Police Brewer has extended his personal thanks and congratulations to the girls for their presence of mind.

Heard Glass Crash.

The young women, while working at 1:10 o'clock Wednesday morning, heard the sound of breaking glass as the burglars smashed the window of the candy store.

Looking out of the exchange window the girls saw the two men enter a store. A third posted himself on the corner as lookout.

While several of the young women watched the burglars, another of the girls telephoned the police headquarters and notified the police.

The letter was read in the House and Senate Wednesday morning, and resolutions of regret at Senator Bacon's forced departure were adopted.

LEGISLATOR ACCUSES 'SOULE

Assembly Likely to Probe Report False Representation Was Made to Boost Salary.

Representative Connor, of Spalding county, introduced a resolution in the House to-day calling for a legislative investigation of the State Agricultural College at Athens, particularly with respect to Dr. Andrew M. Soule's connection therewith.

Mr. Connor's resolution recites the fact that Dr. Soule has been publicly accused in The Southern Farmer-Farmer, a poultry and agricultural magazine, of having obtained a recent raise in salary upon false representations, and calls upon the legislature to investigate the charges and summon Dr. Soule before the Committee on Appropriations to answer the same.

It also provides for the summoning of H. M. Blackburn, the editor of the magazine, who is held responsible for the charges, to come before the committee and substantiate them, if he can.

The magazine charges that Dr. Soule recently asked the board to raise his salary from $5,000 to $8,000 and based his appeal upon the ground that he had been offered a salary of $8,000 per annum to serve in a similar capacity in the Minnesota College of Agriculture.

The magazine says Dr. Soule never was offered any such post to serve in the Minnesota college, nor any sum whatever, and that his correspondence with the Minnesota college was very brief, and resulted speedily in the choice of another man for the place.

The "Farmer-Farmer" prints that which purports to be documentary evidence to sustain this charge.

Includes the direct allegation of obtaining a raise in salary on false representation to the Georgia College management, the magazine attacks Dr. Soule vigorously for incompetency and general unfitness for the office he holds.

FRIEDMANN 'CURE' FAILS THORNTON

Young Atlanta Banker Sinks Rapidly and Dies at Asheville Following New Treatment.

His bitter arraignment of Dr. Franz Friedmann, the German scientist and discoverer of a serum hailed as a curative of tuberculosis, followed the death of Austin Thornton, one of the best-known young bankers in Atlanta, near Asheville, N. C., early Wednesday morning.

Thornton's death was the result of tuberculosis, which set in following an attack of pneumonia eighteen months ago. When Dr. Friedmann came to this country last winter with his serum, he arrived at New York and underwent the treatment.

While Dr. Friedmann used the Bellevue Hospital there in demonstrating his cure, he also did a great deal of work in hotels among patients who flocked to Manhattan from all over the United States.

Treated by Friedmann, Thornton received his injections at the hotel "Wagon" he was stopping, and it is said that Dr. Friedmann himself administered them. It is also declared that the German physician charged young Thornton a fabulous price for the treatment, one person Wednesday morning placing the sum at $2,500.

Thornton ended his treatment and left New York three months ago in the belief that the serum would prove curative, as it had been claimed.

"I am firmly convinced," said Dr. Friedmann, "that the only improvement at all noticeable was a lessening of the fever."

Breakfasters Eat On Calmly as Fire Is Fought in Cafe

Fire which broke out in the ceiling of Durand's Restaurant shortly before 11:00 o'clock Wednesday morning failed to take the appetite from a dozen men who calmly continued eating their breakfast while firemen swarmed the room. Even when the firemen mounted ladders and began knocking at the ceiling the diners were not dismayed.

The fire was of little consequence, the ceiling catching probably from a defective wire near the flue of the swarming restaurant. The call brought out every central company, though, while a great crowd of early morning workers gathered.

Shoots Stepmother To Reunite Parents

BASS LAKE, IND., July 22.—Martin Strassburger tried to kill his stepmother and then ended his own life; that was the way he cleared for a reconciliation between his father and divorced mother.

This is the theory held by many here as the solution of the double shooting at Frank Strassburger's country home, in which the second Mrs. Strassburger was wounded and Strassburger's son Martin killed himself.

Zion City Banishes Pool and 'Movies'

ZION CITY, ILL., July 22.—The young sports and old ones of Zion City hereafter will go to bed without rolling their accustomed series of games of Kelly pool. The other residents of the city will retire without having made their nightly excursion to the moving picture theater.

The City Council, controlled by the forces of Overseer Vetter, ordered the theater and the poolroom closed.

TRACE FOUND HERE OF NEGRO SAID TO HAVE SEEN PHAGAN SLAYING

Here are Wednesday's important developments in the Phagan murder mystery:

Bloodstained glove of Mary Phagan said to have been found on the first floor near the place of discovery of her pay envelope was made.

New evidence is found to-day to establish the identity of the negro, Will Green, said to have seen the attack upon Mary Phagan.

Nowt Lee, negro night watchman at the pencil factory, undergoes a grilling examination at the hands of Solicitor General Dorsey and his associate counsel, Frank A. Hooper.

J. M. Gant, expected to give sensational evidence for the prosecution at the trial, is in conference with the solicitor and present at the grilling of Lee.

Leo M. Frank tells Sheriff Mangum that he is eager for the trial to begin, and will be ready when it is called Monday morning.

Solicitor Dorsey announces that he will insist that there be no further delay.

It became known Wednesday that the defense in the Frank case had been informed that the negro, Will Green, who is said to have been shooting craps with Jim Conley the day that Mary Phagan was murdered, said to have seen her attacked, and the Will Green living at 105 Thurmond street, Atlanta, are the same person.

Private detectives in the employ of the defense have trailed the negro across a half-dozen States and have missed him by as small a margin as 20 minutes in some of the towns they have visited in the chase.

Charles Fine, proprietor of the Reddick Jewelry Company, No. 107 Peachtree street, when he read in The Georgian that the defense was searching for a Will Green, recalled that he had a ring in his store which was to have been called for by a negro of the same name, but which subsequently had been left there without a claimant. He regarded this as peculiar, and notified persons interested in the defense.

A negro calling himself J. Will Green visited the store May 16 and displayed a rather ornate gold ring, probably $12 or $14. He desired to have a stadium diamond set in it, and said that he would be around within a day or two after it is never returned. It was about this time that the report spread around the city that the Phagan murder had had an eyewitness in the person of a negro who was shooting craps with Conley.

NEWLY GRILLED GANTT IN PRESENCE OF GAULT

Phagan was murdered. Jim Conley and Leo Frank were convicted in Frank's office.

Information that Gantt contemplated making such a statement to the prosecution is said to have come to the defense in an anonymous letter some time ago. The letter said in effect: "I was standing on the street the other day and heard Gantt talking to the Solicitor general, as he is now called, that he had stood across the street Saturday, April 26, and had looked through the window of the factory and seen Jim Conley talking to Leo Frank in the office."

"I don't think Gantt had told this to the Solicitor general, as he is now called, in very good financial condition. I think that he might be persuaded to keep it quiet if he was sent a little money."

Attention was paid to the letter. Leo Grittled Agala.

Gantt and Solicitor general attorneys were in the jail together. They remained two and a quarter hours visiting Leo Grittled Agala. They went over practically the same ground that was covered in the hearing, giving him about his actions the day after the murder and his whereabouts every minute during the time before the murder and his whereabouts about Frank's manner when he met him at the factory.

Leo stuck to his previous story, and declared that he knew nothing about the crime until he came upon the body that night. They asked him how he happened to go into the basement at that time and he made the same explanation that he gave before the coroner's jury.

Leo said that he did not see Conley there that night and did not even know Conley by sight. In the afternoon it was planned to take Conley from the police station to the jail to confront Leo and question the two together.

Lanford Scouts Bludgeoned Evidence.

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Wednesday morning ridiculed the story that the defense of Leo M. Frank has in its possession a bloody club alleged to have been found by two Pinkerton detectives on May 10 in the National Pencil factory, and with which it is reported the defense will contend Mary Phagan was slain by James Conley, the negro servant.

Asserting that he knows nothing whatever of the alleged bloody club, Chief Lanford declared that if Pinkerton detectives found such a weapon on May 10, or any other date, they had failed to report the fact to him. Failure to report such a fact would be regarded as a breach of the pact between the chief detectives and the Pinkertons, as the latter officers, while employed by the pencil factory, have been working with the understanding that any evidence in hand would be turned over to the chief of police.

Chief Lanford asserted the alleged discovery of the club was "a matter of internal security" and that he had no authority to discuss the case. He is satisfied, he said, that it will never be an evidence.

The chief said the only club found

In the pencil factory, of which he had no knowledge, was a small section of broom handle, about a foot in length, which hung by a cord beside the desk of Leo M. Frank in the teacher's private office.

When Handle Was Found. This club bore no blood stains, he said, and showed no evidence of having ever been used as a weapon in any way. It was too light to have done any damage had a blow been struck with it.

Chief Lanford treated the bloody club story in the manner of a joke. "Do you see a club there?" remarked the chief, pointing to a perfectly good spot on his office floor, when asked as to the reported find by the officers.

"Well, that's the answer," he continued. "There is just a number of a bloody club lying there on that floor, where it was found. The pencil factory found their bloody club. The whole thing about it will have no bearing whatever on the case of Frank. I'm satisfied that mysterious club will never be introduced in evidence."

No Weapon Was Found. "When it is recalled that the very same club used in the bloody case was searched thoroughly more than a dozen times by numerous officers, from May 10 to May 13 and no club nor other weapon was found, it is inadvisable of this story is apparent. We search that factory from top to bottom and bottom to top, closely investigating every conceivable place for weapons and any other bit of evidence that might throw light on the mystery, and yet no club was found."

"There's absolutely nothing to it," he said. "The only club found was a small piece of broomstick, hanging by a cord beside his desk. There were no blood stains on it, and it showed no evidence of having been used as a weapon. In the first place, it was too light to serve as a weapon. This was the only club found in the factory at the time any possible weapons should have been found and would have been found."

Club Still in Doubt. Reuben Arnold said Wednesday that the defense would ask for no continuance of the Frank case for such imperative reasons as the absence of material evidence, the illness of counsel, Luther Rosser, and the absence of counsel, Leo M. Frank, that no move will be made by the defense until an emergency arises of the kind which would justify an informal conference between the counsel in the Crawford hall, and those in the Frank case, in both of which Rosser and Arnold appear as attorneys.

SENATE ACTS TO ENFORCE WEBB LIQUOR LAW

Passes Hixon-Searcy Bill—Fights Rages Over 3-Gallon Burden of Proof Clause.

By a vote of 36 to 12 the Senate Wednesday afternoon passed the Hixon-Searcy prohibition bill providing for the enforcement of the Webb bill in Georgia.

The bill makes it unlawful for any firm or corporation to transport liquor into the State for illegal purposes and places the burden of proof of such illegality upon the shipper when quantities in excess of three gallons are shipped.

Three-Gallon Clause Attacked. It was around the three-gallon provision as recommended in the Temperance Committee substitute that the fight centered Wednesday morning.

Senator Hixon, chairman of the committee and author of the original bill, and Senator Searcy, vice chairman of the committee, opposed this provision on the ground that the whole burden of proof should be placed on the carrier.

Senator McCall, of the Twenty-second, a member of the committee, was an ardent supporter of the provision which was an unjust burden upon the carrier.

Increase in Crime Charged. At the bill stands the burden of proof of illegal sale is placed on the State when quantities less than three gallons are shipped into the State.

Senator Hixon, striking out the three-gallon clause, urged that before the final passage of the bill, the course of the debate sensational statements were made by Senator McCall, who declared that under the present prohibition law "in its 'inferior results,' folios in the State had increased 56 per cent.

LANFORD RIDICULES BLIND THEORY

Scouts New 'Proof' of Defense

Detective Chief Scoffs at Claim of Evidence That Club Used by Negro Was Found

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, Wednesday morning, ridiculed the story that the defense of Leo Frank has in its possession a bloody club, alleged to have been found by two Pinkerton detectives on May 10 in the National Pencil factory, and with which, it is reported, the defense will contend Mary Phagan was slain by James Conley, the negro sweeper. Adverting that he knows nothing whatever of the alleged bloody club, Chief Lanford declared that, if Pinkerton detectives had discovered the club on May 10, or any other date, they had failed to report the fact to him. He said he officially reports such a find would be regarded as a breach of the pact between the city detectives and the Pinkertons, as the latter officers, while employed by the pencil factory, have been working hand in hand with city detectives, with the understanding that any evidence they unearthed would be communicated to detective headquarters.

SAYS BRIDE PUT GLASS IN CUP OF COFFEE

placed his bride of six months placed pulverized glass in his coffee with the evident purpose of killing him is one of the sensational charges made in a suit for divorce filed Wednesday by E. R. Sweet, of No. 33 Graham street, through his attorney, S. A. Borstein.

Sweet claims that persecutions at the hands of his wife, of which the alleged attempt to administer the ground glass was the climax, have left him a nervous wreck and unfit for work.

They were wed February 2, after a romantic courtship. He soon pulled on the wife, according to Sweet. Her ill treatment of him began about a month ago, he says. She reproved him one day, he recalls, by sleeping in the face in the presence of strangers. Then she drew more persistent.

Sweet avers that he would sleep the whole day for the sole purpose of keeping him awake and tormenting him when he returned home tired from work at night.

He declares that he charged her with an attempt to kill him and that as he replied by hurling a soap bowl out of the window and smothering the coffee cup from his grasp and destroying it. She left the saucer on the table and in this, Sweet claims, she intended to poison him with the glass which he had removed from the cup.
