Appropriation Made After Four-Hour Debate—One of Forty Amendments Passes.

After a four-hour debate the House Thursday morning, acting as a Committee of the Whole, acted favorably on a section of the general appropriations bill, covering appropriations to colleges and the public school fund.

The amendment adopted was one of 44 amendments to the bill, and one of 44 amendments were offered on it, but only one was passed.

Score of Speeches Made. The amendment adopted was offered by Representative Stovall, and was carried by a vote of 80 to 45. The entire section was productive of debate, half a hundred speeches being made. The Stovall amendment came in the way of a compromise, a strenuous effort being made to make the appropriation $2,750,000.

It is believed the House will complete its work on the appropriation bill this week. Two days have already been consumed in it and if the House passes it this week a large amount paid out during the past year.

CHAPTER IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Arrests of Suspects in the Factory Slaying. Sensation as Leo Frank, Manager, Was Taken Into Custody.

TWO EARLY FIGURES IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

CHAPTER III.

Everything that occurred, trivial or important, during those first few days after the body of little Mary Phagan was discovered in the peach factory basement took on a dramatic aspect. The people were keyed to so high a pitch by the revolting crime that nothing seemed to require only a spark to fire them to violent deeds.

Let a strange person so much as appear at the police station to confer with Chief of Detectives Lanford and wild rumors spread about the whole city like magic. Let one of the detectives drop a casual remark and in a flash everyone mysteriously understood that a complete overhaul had been made to the police by the murderer.

So it was a matter of reception that the first catch in the detective's dragnet occurred from the group of men when he was hurried to police headquarters Sunday night of the day after the factory girl had been slain.

All through the day crowds were hanging about the police station, some of them merely curious, others believing the mistaken impression that they were going to help the authorities in some manner. Since news of the morning had been so arrest, Leo knew with the end of the day came the intelligence that the murderer of Mary Phagan had been captured and was being brought to a cell at the police station.

Smiles Defiant at Crowd.

Eagerly the crowd awaited to learn the man's identity, who each side of the door tried to thrust themselves as he was walked, defiantly, toward them between two detectives. A smile curled his lips when he heard their sullen mutterings.

"Know that guy," he Art Mullinax, "come in a haphazard whizzer from a rough-dressed youth."

The group of men and boys crowded in behind the detectives and their captives, but others barred their entrance to the police station. To Chief Lanford, Mullinax repeated his denial of the crime which he had made previously to the detectives when they placed him under arrest.

"Get a horrible mistake," he cried, dropping the bravado he had displayed, "the only thing I know is that I know Mary Phagan, except by sight, and the only thing I know of her is that she was at a Christmas entertainment."

Despite his protestations of innocence, he was placed in solitary confinement and his story was given that no one be permitted to see him or communicate with him. A grocery clerk, insisted that Mullinax was the man he saw with Leo Frank Saturday night at midnight, and was so positive in his identification that there appeared to be little doubt of his guilt.

Smith Was Positive.

Some of the men had known Mullinax for some time by sight and had met him at the factory, where both of them had worked at one time. It was possible, they thought, that he was not mistaken. If it were possible, he was even more certain that he had spoken to her, calling her little Edith.

Mullinax's own down look and the presence of Leo Frank, who had been arrested with him, seemed to confirm their belief. They had Mullinax in custody, but they were confused by the fact that they never believed any of the stories that were being told of the slayer that Mary Phagan had been seen on the street Saturday night.

It was given out at first that Frank was not under arrest, but from that time on he has been known as the man of actual freedom. This move of the detective created a sensation. Public indignation, ready to vent itself on the accused, at hand, mounted to surprising heights even though nothing was known against Frank except that he freely admitted being in the factory at the time the Phagan girl came for her o'clock and desired to enter the factory.

Actions Were Unusual.

He called Leo Frank in the evening, something he never had done before during Leo's employment. There was no answer when Leo called his house early Sunday morning after finding the body and calling the police.

There was no answer when Call Officer Anderson attempted to get him on the telephone when the four policemen were in the factory early that morning.

He acted in a highly suspicious manner when the officers came to his house Sunday morning to take him to the police station for questioning.

All the time that the storm of accusation and bitterness was rising against the young factory superintendent, he kept silent, except to say that Frank in the end would be found entirely innocent. Convicted of his client's innocence, Rosser worked quietly and faithfully in his behalf. Only once in the early days of the tragedy was he provoked to a show of his bulldog fighting qualities. This was when he reached the police station after Frank's arrest and was refused the privilege of seeing Frank.

"Well see whether they can stop me from conferring with my own client," he shouted. A few minutes later he was in conversation with Frank.

From Frank's arrest until the next day, when the inquest was to begin, a dozen detectives were searching the factory ridges from top to bottom for evidence. Practically every employee of the plant was questioned and detectives were sent about the city running down leads that came in to the possession of the department. On the evening of the inquest came the tragic funeral services of the round the grave and saw the body disappear from sight the grief-stricken mother groaned.

The whole gruesome story of the finding of the body was repeated at the inquest, which began next day, but nothing was told which would throw any further light on the identity of the guilty person. Leo Frank, in his ignorant fashion of every move he had made during the fatal day and of his movements in the factory that night.

His story had every appearance of truthfulness. Coroner Donohoe was not able to trip him or catch him in any misstatements. He declared that he had no knowledge that the body was in the building until he went into the dark basement shortly before 2 o'clock that morning and saw the mutilated form in the dim light of his lantern.

The officers who visited the factory that morning told their story. Several of them were of the opinion that Leo knew much more than he had told and their testimony reflected this opinion, but the testimony of the negro failed to suggest any admissions.

Genley Enters the Case.

Interest was centered in the testimony of Frank which was thought to be given when the jury returned its verdict Thursday. Leo Frank, however, met and immediately adjourned until the following Monday.

Another great took place which was thought to be of little consequence the time, but which later assumed a vital bearing on the case. E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, walking through the building early Thursday afternoon, came upon the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who was washing the floor and appeared strangely embarrassed when caught in the act by Holloway.

The negro, upon whom it had been assumed, Holloway notified the detective of the suspicious circumstance and Conley was placed under charge was lodged against Frank and Leo. They were transferred from the police station to the Tower under conditions in which it was stated that they were suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan.

Apparent fear of the terrible charge that had been made against the murderer of the girl, Leo Frank, assumed a vital bearing on the case. The inquest the next Monday morning the most unexpected action in the whole assembly, only when he was forced to pass through visit to the factory. He recalled giving her the party envelope. He said that she left his office and that he heard her talking with another girl he thought, and then heard their footsteps dying away. He denied that he sent her to the rear of the factory to await an expected shipment of metal that come.

No Informing Admission.

Every person in the crowded and stuffy little room hung on to each word of his testimony as it came clearly from his lips, but if anyone was expecting an incriminating admission it was disappointed, for it did not come. Instead, the witness-defendant told a most remarkable and impressive story of his actions on the day of the crime, a story which since has been most strongly corroborated by the testimony of other persons.

Stunning incidents followed in close succession until the next inquest hearing on Thursday of the same week. Paul P. Bowen, a former Atlanta boy, was arrested in Houston, Tex., on the suspicion of having fled there after the crime, and a day later the Pinkertons were trailing a Greek from Atlanta to Ansonia, Ala., where he was supposed to have taken refuge after killing the girl.

Bowen was arrested on the strength of a story that a woman had heard him mutter wildly in his room in a Houston hotel.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" he declared she heard his cry, Crippled telling of the murder was found in his trunk, but it was found that he had not been in Atlanta for a year. The clew in Ansonia was discovered to be worthless and the Pinkertons abandoned their theory that a Greek had anything to do with the crime.

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

of the gallows, the most startling rumor of all was taking form. It was that a high official of the National Peaches Company was suspected of the brutal crime and that an arrest would take place within a short time, through mysterious means. It became known that the police did not place much dependence on the seemingly positive identifications that had been made of both Leo Frank and Mullinax.

It was learned at the same time that the theory that the little girl had been lured to the factory at night was being abandoned and that in the factory the detective was adopting the theory that she never left the factory after she entered it on night to get her pay. They did not believe any of the stories that Mary Phagan had been seen on the street Saturday night.

This theory the suspicion on some one inside the factory. Shortly before noon Tuesday an automobile containing Detective Harry Bowler, of the Pinkerton agency, which had been sent by the peach company, and Detective John Blisk, who away from the police station met up to the peach factory. Within ten minutes it had returned. With Bowler and Blisk was Leo M. Frank.

Arrest Creates Sensation.

It was given out at first that Frank was not under arrest, but from that time on he has been known as the man of actual freedom. This move of the detective created a sensation. Public indignation, ready to vent itself on the accused, at hand, mounted to surprising heights even though nothing was known against Frank except that he freely admitted being in the factory at the time the Phagan girl came for her money and that the detectives interpreted some of his actions after the crime as highly suspicious.

His many friends rushed immediately to his defense. They pronounced an arrest on a ridiculous murder on the part of the police. They pointed to his career and to his reputation as the most potent indication that he would not do down to the death that had ended the innocent life of Mary Phagan.

But the detective said:

the narrow lane out into the jam of humanity that filled the station house corridors did he display the slightest trace of nervousness. Looking straight ahead in an evident endeavor to avoid the glances of the crowd, he hurried into the Commissioner's room with Chief Lanford's hand on his arm.

Once inside the room, his face assumed an expression of relief. He walked to the stand with an air of confidence. He answered the questions put at him without hesitation. His voice was distinct and his voice unshaking. He appeared absolutely sure of himself and sure of his story.

of the gallows, the most startling rumor of all was taking form. It was that a high official of the National Peaches Company was suspected of the brutal crime and that an arrest would take place within a short time, through mysterious means. It became known that the police did not place much dependence on the seemingly positive identifications that had been made of both Leo Frank and Mullinax.

It was learned at the same time that the theory that the little girl had been lured to the factory at night was being abandoned and that in the factory the detective was adopting the theory that she never left the factory after she entered it on night to get her pay. They did not believe any of the stories that Mary Phagan had been seen on the street Saturday night.

THREE TO BE LOUSED POSTOFFICE SHAKEUP

WAKE, COLE AND HART LOSE OUT

Inefficiency Charged to Heads of Departments—Action Expected Next Week.

By HUGH MILLER.
WASHINGTON, July 25.—The ousting of Postmaster McKee, Assistant Postmaster Cole and Superintendent of Mails L. C. Hart, of the Atlanta office, will occur early next week, according to information obtained today from the Postoffice Department in such a way that there can be little doubt of its authority.

The principal charges against the three Atlanta officials, as contained in a report submitted to the Postmaster General by the chief inspector's office, is inefficiency, resulting in a chaotic condition of affairs in the office.

Postmaster Hugh McKee, when charges alleged inefficiency in the Atlanta postoffice were first brought to light and dispatches from Washington stated that an investigation would ensue, denied emphatically that there was any truth in the accusations.

"If there is any inefficiency in the Atlanta office, I do not know it," said Mr. McKee. "I am not competent to judge the office. At all times I have every detail under my control."

"My superintendent of mails, Mr. Hart, is one of the best in the country, and my assistant postmaster, Mr. Cole, is a thoroughly competent. My subordinates all report daily to me, and every complaint registered in this office is brought to my personal attention. I have instructed all clerks and officials to bring people to my office who have a grievance.

WITNESSES FOR PANKHURST CALLED

Despite Judge's Statement All in Readiness, Move for Postponement Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. B. Roun called everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevails Friday that the motion for postponement would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Dorsey and Nelson R. Arnold declined Friday to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned for to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

The accused man is in the best of health and spirits, according to a confidential source of the court, Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability to get the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Noon considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off by the court, and that if any continuance were granted it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

The slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night, he said, "I was all right Thursday morning and sufficient to get the case on to trial. He is in the best of health and spirits, according to a confidential source of the court, Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial.

Judge to Require Good Reason.
To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank begins next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench, I have postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any other reason.

The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on.

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Noon said that "laughably" remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got as hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 100,000 men whose names were drawn Tuesday afternoon by Judge John T. Pandorf. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Milton Miller, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpoena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

TENNESSEAN CAUGHT IN CRUSADE ON VICE

Declares That His Arrest Is the Result of a Political "Frame-Up."

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Ex-Governor M. H. Patterson was to-day arrested in a raid on a house in the restricted district.

The proprietress, eight girl inmates and two young men were also arrested. The charges filed against the ex-Governor was loitering about a house of ill fame.

Patterson's friends are incensed over the so-called "frame-up."

The raid was led by Sergeant Longhorne, brother of Sheriff Longhorne, whom Patterson opposed for election. Friends of Patterson declare that the real motive behind his arrest was that he was taking a hand in local politics and endeavoring to bring out a municipal ticket against the organization led by Mayor Hillary Howe, because of the fact that several months ago opposed Patterson's candidacy for United States Senator.

Patterson's home is at Memphis, but during his four years' residence here, while Governor, he took at least $50,000 interest in local politics, through his unsuccessful ancestor, who had the support of the vice faction in State contests. Since the break the feeling of antagonism between Patterson and Howe has been keen.

THE PASSE OVER LOBBY HINT IN BUDGET WAR

Appropriations Bill Passes House After Bitter Verbal Battle. Little Danger of Veto.

The bill was passed in the House Friday, Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, using the word in recent lobbying charges initiated by Representative Howard Ennis, of Baldwin. Ennis started toward Wright, but several of the other members of the House intervened and the matter was quickly straightened out.

Representative Wright moved for a reconsideration of sections 4 and 5 of the general appropriations bill, which the House was considering as a committee of the whole.

Ennis explained that he had no such evidence that he did not mean to intimate that the representative from Floyd had been so inspired, but that he simply wanted to find out if that was the case.

Carrying with it an appropriation of $5,786,667, which is $108,900 under last year's bill and carrying an additional appropriation of $2,675,000 to refund bonds in 1914-15, the general appropriations bill was passed by the House Friday.

The bill, as amended, showed a difference in but three of the appropriations recommended by the committee. This included $2,650,000 for the public school fund for each of the years 1914 and 1915, which was an increase of $50,000 over the committee recommendation.

Much debate was indulged in on several items. Representative Barry Wright objected to many on the grounds that it was following in the footsteps of the 1911 Legislature, which was the most extravagant in the history of Georgia.

The confederate pension section, which covered many items, totaling $1,974,800, was an object of special attack, but no change was made in it.

Must Raise Alimony Or Remain in Jail

MACON, July 25.—J. C. Brooks, a Central of Georgia Railroad conductor, has been sentenced by Judge Mathews to stay in jail until he can procure a bondman whose bail will insure the payment of monthly alimony to his wife.

Brooks has already spent ten days in jail, owing to his failure to obtain bond. He and his mother were in court when they could not get a bondman.

GAMBLERS INDICTED, FINED. CARTERSVILLE.—The July Grand Jury returned 84 true bills, including indictments against a number of prominent young men for gambling. Practically all pleaded guilty and were given light fines by Judge Pate.

Ennis interrupted Wright in a speech and inquired if he was not inspired by members of the "third house" to ask for a reconsideration.

Wright's Retort Sharp. The reply of Wright was that "another statement was a lie, an absolute falsehood." He demanded that if Ennis had such proof or evidence that he at once submit it to the House.

Ennis explained that he had no such evidence that he did not mean to intimate that the representative from Floyd had been so inspired, but that he simply wanted to find out if that was the case.

Carrying with it an appropriation of $5,786,667, which is $108,900 under last year's bill and carrying an additional appropriation of $2,675,000 to refund bonds in 1914-15, the general appropriations bill was passed by the House Friday.

Miss Beattie Lyon, who was fatally injured when her dress was ignited by the fire in an open grate.

Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements of the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places where he was on duty the forenoon and afternoon of April 25.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detective Conroy and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the tower the day before without the child's permission.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the child's automobile, and were right before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William R. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 24, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The tragedy of suicides which followed the elopement of Miss Schroeder with "Baron" Richard Arkory, a Hungarian adventurer, culminated today when Robert W. Schroeder, retired banker, ended his life by gas in the same room where his wife, heartbroken, ended their daughter's marriage last week.

In 1920 the "Baron" captivated Miss Schroeder, a 19-year-old girl. She had inherited $200,000 from her grandfather, Jacob Hoffman, a brewer. Despite her parents' opposition, she eloped with the "Baron" and through the girl's fortune in a few months she had lost it all.

Arkory continued in the limelight for three years after his wife had broken with him. He was heard of in Monte Carlo and other gambling resorts. Then came the news that April last he had killed himself with morphine in a London hotel.

The suicide of the father came as a climax to the disaster which followed on the heels of the elopement. CAMPER ACCIDENTALLY BLAIN. HUNTINGTON, Ala., July 25.—Bonnett C. Hot Air Marks Claim To Perpetual Motion TURIN, July 25.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanic named Florio, by which it is claimed perpetual motion is demonstrated. The machine collects the heat of the sun and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically, and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warm atmosphere to the colder water.

PICTURE 4 IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl and First Sensational 'Confession' of Negro Sweeper Jim Conley.

FACTORY SUPERINTENDENT WHO IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Leo M. Frank as he appeared at time of his arrest in Phagan case.

His testimony at the inquest was straightforward and convincing of his innocence.

Prisoner now says he is ready for his trial which is scheduled to start in Superior Court in Atlanta next Monday morning. Since his confinement Frank has been cheerful and confident of acquittal.

CHAPTER IV.
Through all the interrogation of witnesses by the coroner's jury and through the ordeal of a half day's inquisition of Leo M. Frank, no bit of direct and positive evidence was developed against either Leo M. Frank or Phagan. When, however, at the close of their session on Thursday, May 4, the six jurors found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered that Frank and Leo M. Frank be held in custody until they did the only thing left to them.

So far as they knew at that time Frank and Leo were the only persons who could have had the opportunity to commit the crime. They knew that they were unequal to the mystery, the baffling elements of which consisted in numbers and proportions as the coroner's jury passed it on to the Grand Jury.

Leo M. Frank, as the two persons who presumably would know the most about the crime, were probably the most important witnesses at the coroner's inquest. It was their testimony that had not already given the coroner's jury the answers it sought.

Frank recalled to stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 4, but nothing was developed. The spectators, however, were sure that disclosure which might fix the guilt for the crime had been made during the testimony of Leo M. Frank who had been present in the case for the Pinkerton. Scott, following Frank upon the stand, and his other National Council Company officials.

The little room was hushed, waiting the answer when Coroner Donohoe had at him just as his testimony was concluding.

Have you any definite clue as to who committed this awful crime? Scott's reply was a disappointment to those in the crowded inquest room. "I would not care to commit myself to that," he said.

"Have you any definite suspicion?" Coroner Donohoe asked.

Mary Phagan by choking her to death with a cord about her neck. The jurors had barely gathered when over at the police station Jim Conley, practically ignored by the detectives up to this time, made his first confession following an interview in the factory with E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, in which Holloway accused the negro of knowledge of the murder.

Conley, said for Detective John Black. "I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as Black appeared. Black was thunderstruck. The possibility that Conley wrote the notes had hardly entered the minds of the detectives. They had centered on the theory that Frank committed the crime and readily adopted the belief that he disguised his hand and covered the almost blank and unintelligible notes that were found by the body of the dead girl.

Black at once took Conley to the home of Chief Landford to obtain his full statement. An affidavit was prepared and the negro sworn to it. It was taken at the direction of Frank and in Frank's office. He said that he was working in the factory Friday, the day before the murder, and that Frank came to him and told him to come along with him to work for four minutes of 10 o'clock.

Says Frank Dictated Notes. Frank told him to write. "Dear Mother, a long tall black negro did this by himself according to Conley. The negro said that Frank had him write several accounts in which scratched pencil ruled and then on a piece of brown paper. Frank took the pencil and copied it, and then he wrote the notes. He said that he had a great deal in regard to the murder. It had, however, one striking feature that robbed it in the public mind of much of its credibility.

Conley asserted that the notes were written on Friday. This statement, on the face, was utterly ridiculous and improbable. No one believed that Frank was planning a day ahead of time.

Conley's handwriting expert to him. If he was guilty, did not know that any Phagan was coming in the factory at a certain time on the next day, and had no one to hold the conviction that he deliberately planned her slaying.

It takes a baby a year or more to get six teeth.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your money in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicate dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of tooth care, is money well spent for your entire future life.

CHAPTER 4 IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl and First Sensational 'Confession' of Negro Sweeper Jim Conley.

FACTORY SUPERINTENDENT WHO IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Leo M. Frank will be appeared at time of his arrest in Phagan case.

His testimony in the inquest was straightforward and convincing of his innocence.

Prisoner now says he is ready for his trial which is scheduled to start in Superior Court in Atlanta next Monday morning. Since his confinement Frank has been cheerful and confident of acquittal.

CHAPTER IV.
Through all the investigation of witnesses by the coroner's jury and through the ordeal of a half day's inquisition of Leo M. Frank, so far as direct and positive evidence was developed against either New Leo or Frank, who, however, at the close of their session on Thursday, May 8, the six jurors found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered that Frank and Leo be held to the Grand Jury, they did the only thing left to them.

So far as they knew at that time Frank and Leo were the only persons who could have had the opportunity to commit the crime. They knew that they were essential to the story, the baffling elements of which mounted in numbers and proportions as the case progressed. They passed on to the Grand Jury.

Leo and Frank, as the two persons who presumably know the most about the crime, were probably the most important witnesses, but the jury failed to bring out any important testimony that he had not already given the officers.

Frank recalled to stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 8, when the case was developed. The spectators, however, made during the testimony of Harry Scott, who had been working on the case near two weeks and a day, had no more idea of the identity of the murderer of Mary Phagan than they had at the end of the first three days after the body was discovered.

They had a "chain of evidence" which established that Frank was in the factory when Mary Phagan was killed and later was arrested by the police. Beyond this they had nothing direct of positive.

They had dropped all their suspicion of Gantt and Mullinax and the young men were released. After both had been identified with a degree of certainty that left little doubt they had been with Mary Phagan the night that she was slain, it was proved that neither had seen the little factory girl.

Mullinax Freed by Girl.
The loyal defense of Mullinax by the great Robinson, a 25-year-old sweetheart, was one of the brilliant spots in the Phagan mystery. When she heard of the things which the police were doing, causing her lover to wait with all the while in the station upon the indictment that anyone could make such a claim as to be a murderer, she told the detective what she thought of them. She declared that Mullinax was with her at the time the crime was committed and that she would not be separated from him.

Frank recalled to stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 8, when the case was developed. The spectators, however, made during the testimony of Harry Scott, who had been working on the case near two weeks and a day, had no more idea of the identity of the murderer of Mary Phagan than they had at the end of the first three days after the body was discovered.

They had a "chain of evidence" which established that Frank was in the factory when Mary Phagan was killed and later was arrested by the police. Beyond this they had nothing direct of positive.

They had dropped all their suspicion of Gantt and Mullinax and the young men were released. After both had been identified with a degree of certainty that left little doubt they had been with Mary Phagan the night that she was slain, it was proved that neither had seen the little factory girl.

Mullinax Freed by Girl.

Mary Phagan by looking her to death with a wire about her neck. The jury had barely gathered when over at the police station, Jim Conley, who had been arrested on the charge of being a witness following an interview in the Georgia with S. V. Holloway, day detective who accused the negro of knowing the man who had killed Mary Phagan than he had told.

Conley said for Detective John Black.
"Boss, I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as he appeared. "I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as he appeared. "I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as he appeared.

Conley's remarkable story created a stir in the courtroom and aroused the public to a pitch of excitement that had not been equalled since the first day following the slaying. It pointed to the certainty that Conley was a murderer and that he had killed Mary Phagan.

Conley asserted that the notes were written on Friday. This statement on its face, was utterly ridiculous and improbable. No one believed that the murder was planned a day ahead of time.

Conley's story carried the assumption that Frank on Friday afternoon was writing the notes. The first effect of the writing was to direct suspicion most strongly to the negro himself. He had had no knowledge of the crime.

day morning to begin serving the 144 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man called to serve, according to Deputy Sheriff Francis Blinn, who had charge of the list.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the veniremen were already under subpoena to the courthouse for Saturday morning was the strongest assurance Judge Roan had been given to put the trial on its feet.

Chief Haines assumed charge of the venire and was assisted by Detectives Weaver and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the County Jail day before without the chief's permission.

Just as the Mayor was about to leave the plant, located just back of the Terminal station, he was told that the fire had started. It was his first visit, and it was due only to the persuasive efforts of City Clerk Walter Taylor and Councilman Ashley that he went.

Young Woman's Skirt Fired by Blaze in Grate—Parent Unable to Save Her.

As a result of severe burns received when her skirts caught fire from a grate in which she was burning some trash at her home, No. 819 Capitol avenue, Miss Beale Lyon, 15 years old, died Thursday night at the Georgia Hospital. She was the daughter of R. L. Lyon, superintendent of the Astwell Building.

In the room next to the one in which the girl succumbed, her mother, Friday, lay, suffering from serious burns received while trying to extinguish the flames which enveloped the daughter.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon, Miss Lyon had swept some light trash into the grate in the front room on the second floor, and after applying a match to it, turned over the fire, and immediately the fire took hold.

When the girl discovered her plight, all presence of mind left her. Screaming, she bolted open the door and leaped down the stairway. Her body by this time was enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Lyon, emerging from a back room, saw her daughter as she bounded down the stairs. Grabbing a blanket, she ran after her, catching the terrified girl as she reached the first floor of the building, where Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Levin live.

A struggle between the two women ensued before the blanket was placed over the flames, but for a time it looked as though both women would be burned to death.

Neighbors from the street rushed in. Mrs. Lyon was picked up by a rug from the floor and was endeavoring to throw it over the mother and daughter.

Mrs. Lyon was separated from the burning girl and the flames in her dress were quickly extinguished.

So timely was the mother's aid that the daughter's dress, however, that it turned off of her before the fire was put out. The girl was unconscious and her body blackened.

An ambulance was called and the two women were taken to the Georgia Hospital. The daughter never regained consciousness.

The mother received burns about the face and arms, from which she will recover.

MAK KILLED GIRLS HURT IN CRASH

Miss Theo Prioleau Seriously Injured and Sister Bruised in Accident.

MONROE, La., July 25.—Victor C. Smith is dead, Miss Theo Prioleau, of Atlanta, and R. L. Prophet, Jr., are seriously injured, and Miss Ruth Williams bruised as the result of an automobile accident on the "Desire" road, two miles from Monroe, just before midnight.

Young Smith is the son of A. L. Smith, who, with his family, resides at Starvation, fifteen miles from Monroe. Miss Theo Prioleau and her sister, Miss Dottie, of Atlanta, were visitors at the Smith home. Miss Williams lives in Monroe. R. L. Prophet, Jr., of Newburg, N. G., and Miss Dottie Prioleau both escaped with a few slight bruises.

Bad To Be Racing.
The Smith car was being driven by the man who was killed, and with Morgan George and a party of friends, was returned from Morehouse Lake, a pleasure resort above Monroe. George says the two cars were racing and were going at least 45 miles an hour. He said he was about half mile ahead of the Smith car and striking a sharp curve in the road, turned a double somersault, going over a ditch.

Autlets Find Victim.
The car was undriven and was given to Monroe this morning by autoists who found the dead and injured on the side of the road and rendered all the aid possible.

The George party reached town and after waiting some time for the Smith party to go back, they found them on the roadside. The Prioleau girls were taken to the residence of W. L. Smith, at Monroe, and Miss Williams was taken to the home of her grandfather. Prophet was taken to a hospital.

The Misses Prioleau have been honored at many special functions.

STATE STILL PREPARES TO FIGHT DELAY

Despite Judge's Statement All in Readiness, Move for Postponement is Expedited.

STATE STILL PREPARES TO FIGHT DELAY

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roun stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Hooper and Resner B. Arnold declined fully to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the last ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the jurors to testify would be a sufficient reason.

Judge Roun considered it highly improbable that the case would be opened on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance was secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon and for Atlanta at 12:10 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.
"The idea of my refusing the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be if the case were not opened on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance was secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

Deferee's Attitude a Puzzle.
Despite the assurance of Judge Roun that the case would go on and the announcement of the State's attorney, Hugh M. Dorsey, that all his witnesses had been summoned and he would insist on going to trial, the refusal of the attorneys for Frank to make any statement whatever and the proposition to delay, but if it got so far as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were arrested Friday morning to begin service.

JUDGE KNOWS NO GROUSE TO HALT FRANK TRIAL

Roan Expects Case Will Be Called Monday—Deputies Serving on 144 Veniremen.

Veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be his duty to serve, according to Deputy Sheriff George Minor, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and served had been reported Friday morning and that the veniremen were already under the influence of the trial would hardly be surprising, but both sides go to trial today, not in recognition of the jury and veniremen, but to make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Judge Roan had been aware of putting the State to the expense of serving the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial today, not in recognition of the jury and veniremen, but to make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 28.

Chief Deavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Barnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Taken From Cell Barely. Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The Negro was taken to Central street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey was seen by Conley the afternoon of April 28, and heard him boast of a girl.

The detectives are bending every effort to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Devereaux, where he was questioned closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather before the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Deavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work, except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

POISE? SEE LIPSCOMB: HE NEVER IS RATTLED

FRANCIS ADGATE LIPSCOMB.

Doesn't Take Job Too Seriously, but His Tax Bill Has Everyone Thinking.

Representative Francis Adgate Lipscomb of Clarke, is polite, personable. He never gets excited about anything, and he always affects the quiet, cool-looking clothes he can find.

No matter how accommodating the weather man may be by way of supplying refreshing showers and making unobtrusive electric fans, Lipscomb comes forth from his hair daily arrayed in spotless white or cream of lilies.

Even when making a speech—which now and then the gentleman from Clarke does—he smiles continuously like the smiling sun, as if to say, "Don't be alarmed; I really have to do this thing myself, and wouldn't it be better not to do it at all?"

Lipscomb is in other ways a man of commanding and winning "virtue." He recognizes Lipscomb as a manly, earnest and purposeful enough, but willing to give, generally, as he looks upon sensible grounds, the right to his own thinking.

In Athens Mr. Lipscomb stands high in the business world. He has saved a number of times in the city and he has a fine account of the results of the afternoon's work, except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

ATLANTA WOMAN TRIES 'CUBIST' SPELLING

New System Prepared by Mrs. Grace Keifer Founded on Lines and Angles.

A simplified spelling book which revolutionizes the method of teaching the kids their A B C's in the grammar schools is being prepared for publication by an Atlanta woman, Mrs. Grace Keifer, of No. 80 East Boulevard.

The book, which is a collection of the letters of the alphabet, is more than a half century ago by Charles W. Haines, author of the original "Handy Speller," and since Mrs. Keifer's grand-grandfather, the idea of a new spelling book has been in her mind for several years.

Founded on Mathematics. The Keifer spelling is just what its name implies—it is square, or, in other words, it is founded on a mathematical principle involving the first well-known rule in arithmetic, that of connecting with another at right angles.

SIDELIGHTS on POLITICAL POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning paper of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly named without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yields the House back to business and abhors, when it gets negligent or inattentive, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

WARNS AGAINST EUROPE'S SEA MONOPOLY

Roger Sullivan Declares U. S. Must Awake to Its Opportunities When Canal Opens.

Special Cable to The Georgian. PARIS, July 24.—The United States is sleeping while Europe is awaking the opportunity under our nose," said Roger C. Sullivan, of Chicago, to-day. Accompanied by former Mayor John Hopkins, of Chicago, he had just arrived in Paris after a visit of two months to South America.

The opening of the Panama Canal is a great commercial interest of South America," declared Mr. Sullivan, "and the leading nations of Europe are vying to get the best of the business, forseeing the result are badly engaged in building ships.

"Our Government should immediately take steps to subsidize the merchant marine, otherwise it may be too late. Private capital unaided by the Government can not hope to compete with the established mercantile fleets of foreign countries, which are abundant in the United States, and which South America is obliged to import from abroad.

"I want to say right now that there are some fine cities in South America. There are many fine cities in South America. There are many fine cities in South America.

Chicago that Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires lack. They have beautiful theaters and public buildings, broad streets and spacious populations.

Their ports, harbors and docks make Chicago look cheap. We do not pay enough attention to our waterways. What is needed now is a fleet of Mexican steamships on the Gulf of Mexico somewhere on the Gulf of Mexico, either at New Orleans or Mobile.

"If we subsidized the merchant marine our South American trade would soon swell to great proportions."

5 REPORTED HURT IN CRASH

Athens Accommodation Hits Open Switch as It Enters the Yard in Athens.

The Seaboard accommodation from Athens ran into an open switch Friday morning just opposite the National Furniture Company plant on Marietta street, endangering the lives of scores of passengers as the engine, turning completely over, pulled several of the cars off the rails.

Four persons were reported hurt in the accident, according to a report to Grady Hospital, but others said that the passengers had escaped.

As the big locomotive skipped the rails and began toppling, the engineer leaped and escaped unhurt. The train was badly injured, being crushed in the overturned engine.

Physicians were rushed to the scene from Grady Hospital and the police also were called. Employees in nearby factories went to the aid of the passengers who were later taken to Grady Hospital.

JACOBS Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscript

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Chamberlain manuscript of Robert Burns by a sum exceeding $15,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscript by the Atlanta is told in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth in the report," Dr. Stetler Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscript had been purchased, it would undoubtedly have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

Accepting the London dispatches, Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscript from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscript, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacoby's agent in the transaction.

Latest Counterfeit $5 a Poor Specimen

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The discovery of a new counterfeit five-dollar "Indian head" silver certificate is announced by Chief W. J. Flynn of the Secret Service. The spurious note apparently is printed from crudely etched plates on fair quality bond paper, with ink lines to imitate the silk fabric of the genuine. The Indian portrait is poor, and on the back of the note, green ink in color, little attempt has been made to imitate the paper work.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Physicians of the Hahnemann Hospital and Medical College are performing a procedure based on discovery of a fluid by a German scientist which will make the human body transparent after death.

'PRETTY GIRL' EXHIBIT AT CANAL FAIR URGED

MISS GEORGE GREEN.

Booster Club Probably Will Send Pictures of Ten Leaders in Beauty Contest

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster contest be included in the Georgia yearbook at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "60,000 Club" booster button she will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the button. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 222 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another beauty and makes the number of beauties equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who wish to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.
COLUMBUS—D. D. Bloom, a well-known Columbus Democrat, was held in custody by the Georgia State Police after a man advanced toward him holding a pistol and shouting "I'll shoot you." Bloom was held for a few minutes and then released. He was fined $100 by the Recorder.

Atlanta Girl Injured in Auto Crash

NEW TAXES TO COVER OUTGO

Unless Senate Changes Appropriations Bill It Stands in No Danger of Veto.

If the general appropriations bill is passed by the Senate to stand practically as it comes from the House of Representatives, it will go to the Governor with no threat of veto hanging over it, nor will it be the occasion in any degree of an legislative session of the Legislature.

The appropriations bill, within itself, will be satisfactory to the Executive. In that it will not carry more appropriations than can be met, if the general and special tax acts are made what they should be.

The fact that the House added $100,000 to the common school fund, thereby increasing the total appropriations some $100,000 over those of last year, is not necessarily alarming.

The tax of 15 on automobiles alone will more than make up for it. It is proposed to tax all machines a flat 15 per annum hereafter.

Hereafter automobiles have been taxed 25 merely, when registered. Once that was paid, no further charges were assessed against them. And the bulk of that 25 has gone to pay for the embellished number furnished the owner of the machine free of cost.

A flat tax of 15 per annum on all machines, however, with nothing to be furnished the owner of the car but a written receipt, will add over $100,000 to the State income year, thus offsetting the Legislature's increase in the school fund.

As the legislative situation shapes up to-day, therefore, the appropriations bill will have plain and easy passage and is sure to meet the Governor's approval, if not greatly increased in the Senate.

Carlton DeWitt, Minister of Education, has given strict instructions to watch theatrical productions, clamorous arguments and music songs imported from France.

Teachers Still Unpaid.
There is a deficit in the State Treasury and the school teachers still are unpaid.

The State Institutions have been cut to the very marrow of their bones and can not get along with less money than the general appropriations bill carries.

The Governor and the chairman of the Appropriations Committee understand each other on that point.

Priest, Formerly to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has pronounced a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farina, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

She was picked up unconscious and with the other members of the automobile party, hurried to the hospital. Her injuries are not expected to be fatal.

VENIEMEN SERVED IN PHAGAN CASE

Neglect of Defense to Subpoena Witnesses Taken to Mean Postponement May Be Asked.

That the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, would begin next Monday morning unless the attorneys for the State or the accused made a good and sufficient legal showing when the case was formally called that would convince the court it would be impossible to proceed, was the statement of Superior Judge L. S. Rood Friday morning.

Judge Rood said Thursday he would begin subpoenaing witnesses for the defense during the day and the indications are that the trial will go on Monday, week greatly strengthened.

Judge Rood suggested it highly improbable that the case would be postponed to the next week. He said that if the State attorneys for the defense were not ready to proceed on Monday, the only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench, I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill and I will not consider any personal inconvenience past Monday.

The reason is not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the witnesses leaving the city rather than to agree.

The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on.

Despite the assurance of Judge Rood that the case would go on and the announcement of the State's attorneys that they would not be postponed, it was announced that the trial would be postponed. The report that no witnesses for the defense had been subpoenaed and the report that the State attorneys would be sought on some ground that the attorneys were confident would be sufficient.

The weather will not play any part in the postponement unless the mercury registers 10 degrees higher. Judge Rood said that he had not remained in the city Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to assist in the trial of the veniemen whose names were given in yesterday's edition of The Georgian. The trial will be held in the courtroom of the Supreme Court building before the last man was sworn in.

The fact that the trial will be postponed is a matter of course. The trial will be held in the courtroom of the Supreme Court building before the last man was sworn in.

JUDGE ROAN'S VIEWS NO CAUSE TO HALT FRANK TRIAL

Roan Expects Case Will Be Called Monday—Deputies Serving on 144 Veniemen.

Continued From Page 1. Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serving the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the court-room Monday.

Chief Heavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Barnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Conley was taken from the station secret, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, and at that point where William H. Mincey wears his saw Conley the afternoon of April 14, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are bending every effort either to discredit or, failing that, to make the Mincey affidavit made evident by the number of persons they interviewed. With the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

THE CRUISE OF THE "PIFFLE"

"Oh, fiddlesticks!" This strong and inclusive language, so habitual to sea-faring men, was uttered by Admiral Juice, of the battleship "Piffle," as he prepared to begin his lecture in the Jonesville Opera House. "Really has it been my good fortune to address such a magnificent audience," he continued. "Ah, my friends, we sailors lead a hard life! Think of it! Only $12,000 a year! No wonder you weep! It's fierce!" At this moment the second mate of the "Piffle" rushed into the hall shouting: "The Japs and Mexicans are attacking the ship! They say you're a lobster and they can lick you!" With perfect coolness the brave old sea-dog replied, "Send a flag of truce to the enemy and invite them to a basket picnic in the grove this afternoon! Tell them I'll deliver a lecture at two dollars a head!" Scarcely had he spoken these words when an awf— To be continued! DELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS BY JAMES B. NEVIN

The "delightful" morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Hill, is a masterpiece of wit. Rather than petition for more money, the Chaplain devotes his prayer to the greater portion of the appropriation in the House to reminding the members of the country of the things they now enjoy, and for which they should be eternally grateful. He said: "I have heard that you are all well, and that you are all enjoying the things of this world. I have heard that you are all well, and that you are all enjoying the things of this world. I have heard that you are all well, and that you are all enjoying the things of this world."

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call. Try as the House will, it hardly ever gets together before 10 o'clock. Members either sleep late or are more or less indifferent to the roll call. It is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably of more sensibly.

SENATOR McNEIL

Judge Robert Hodges of Macon, in Atlanta to-day spoke quite a few times in the House and Senate, giving out acquaintances and looking things over. He was the House member who was first named Senator, and his fellow-townman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conducting the House on the floor.

WARNS AGAINST EUROPE'S SEA MONOPOLY

Roger Sullivan Declares U. S. Must Awake to Its Opportunities When Canal Opens.

Special Cable to The Georgian. PARIS, July 26.—"The United States is sleeping while Europe is watching the opportunity under our noses," said Roger C. Sullivan of Chicago, today, accompanied by three French and six British, on his return after a visit of two months to South America.

"The opening of the Panama Canal is sure greatly to increase the already vast commercial interests of South America," declared Mr. Sullivan, "and the leading nations of Europe, foreseeing this result, are busily engaged building ships."

"Our Government should immediately take steps to subsidize the construction of our own ships, otherwise it may be too late. Private capital unaided by the Government can not hope to compete with the established government-owned vessels of Europe. It is shameful that a citizen of the United States should be obliged to travel in British-owned ships."
